Americans Are Dissatisfied

3 Courses Open to U.S. In Viet, Says Leader

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—"We have three alternatives in South Viet Nam," says a U.S. official who has beeen here several years.

"We can go after the root of the trouble, in Communist China and North Viet Nam. We can give up and agree to a neutralization program. Or we can continue muddling through, as we are now.

"All three alternatives are more or less unacceptable."

Other Americans agree in general as to these alternatives, but disagree as to which of them is the least unacceptable.

No American in authority here is satisfied with the way things are going now. Some speak openly of bombing Hanoi or even Peking, or short of that, throwing a naval blockade around the North Vietnamese ports of Haiphong and Vinh.

Making New Studies

The White House, the Pentagon and the State Department are making reassessments of the alternatives. Reports that direct action against North Viet Nam is a possibility generally are discounted here as little more than trial balloons.

In any case, the odds are that there will be no really important changes in American policy of limited involvement in South Viet Nam for some time to come.

Some of Reasons

Here are some of the reasons:

The war here is not going very well. On the other hand, discounting the rosy propaganda from both Washington and Saigon officials during the Ngo Dinh Diem regime, the war has not been going very well in years.

There have been setbacks in the Mekong River delta since the Nov. 1 coup which overthrew Diem. But top American and Vietnamese leaders do not regard these setbacks as irreparable. In any case, they say, things are not bad enough to warrant a complete turnabout in policy.

One Observation

A ranking American observed:

"We've said it before, and we'll go on saying it again and again: Americans are just going to have to learn to live with this thing and be patient and perservering. That's the way this game is, and if we want to win it, we have to play it."

Top Americans here oppose a joint Vietnamese-American command.

Top Americans also oppose opening an American war on North Vietnamese soil, although most agreee that some form of limited war by South Vietnamese forces might be useful.

What about bombing and blockades?

There's That Election

"Let's not forget that this is 1964 — a presidential election year," an American official said.

"Such things should not interfere with our foreign policies, but they always do. Viet Nam is going to be an issue, even though I'm afraid it could damage our efforts here. Neither party wants to be saddled with

Swears New Panel As Prospects for Jack Ruby Trial

DALLAS (AP)—Judge Joe B. Brown began swearing in 50 more prospective jurors today to hear Jack Ruby's trial on charges of murder with malice.

So far, seven men and two women have been accepted as jurors, leaving three to be found.

Newsmen Barred

Under Texas law, only 12 jurors are sworn. Should one become incapacitated during the hearings, a mistrial would be called.

Newsmen were barred today while the new group was being impaneled.

Chief defense counsel Melvin Belli said that, despite the delay, attorneys hope to complete the jury and begin hearing testimony Monday morning.

To find the first nine jurors, 110 persons were questioned through Thursday. Originally, 150 jury candidates were made available. Some were excused before the trial began Feb. 17. Only 26 of that list remained available as today's sesssion started.

The ninth juror, 108th on the list, was sworn in Thursday. He is James E. Cunningham, 34, an electronics engineer. He said he was born in Cleveland, Ohio and lived in Morristown, N.J., before coming to Dallas.

He was the only juror accepted in a long day.

Cunningham has a wife and three children, was trained at the University of Texas, and listed his religion as Episcopalian.

Cunningham said he saw only parts of a rerun of the televised scene, recorded last Nov. 24

Shop-ins Are Deplored as Malicious

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Shopping baskets piled high with unpaid-for groceries are the newest weapon in use by civil rights demonstrators—the "shop-in."

Results: A falloff in business at supermarkets because demonstrators monopolize carts and jam checkout lines; a falling out among Negro leaders in San Francisco; growing tension among frustrated employes, angry shoppers and determined demonstrators.

Leave Full Carts

In the shop-in, demonstrators enter a store, fill shipping carts with groceries, wheel them to the counter, have them checked out—then say they can't pay and leave the sacks and boxes piled in front of clerks.

Members of the Congress of Racial Equality began the tactic last week at supermarkets of Lucky Stores, Inc., in San Francisco, at Berkeley, home of the University of California, and at Palo Alto to the south, adjacent to Stanford University.

They contend Lucky didn't fulfill an agreement to hire additional Negroes. Lucky flatly denied it, pointed to its Negro employes and said it would have no part of "reverse discrimination."

Hit by Clergy, Press

Tuesday, the largest Negro group in San Francisco, the Baptist Ministers Union said it would sever its ties with CORE if the shop-ins didn't stop.

"CORE has a right to picket, but if it continues to use this tactic, we just can't go along," said the Rev. George L. Bedford, head of the group representing 40,000 of the city's 85,000 Negroes.

The Bay Area Independent, a Negro weekly newspaper, called the maneuver a "malicious idea, highly doubtful" whether it "won much sympathy from either the Negro or white community."

On Wednesday, CORE called off the shop-ins "at least for the time being," but continued picketing.

Federal Action Is Due on Railroad

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The full force of the federal government was brought to bear on the Florida East Coast Railway strike on presidential command today following the dynamiting of a train near the spot where President Johnson was speaking.

Johnson asked Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz to confer today with Florida Gov. Farris Bryant, then present recommendations for federal action.

Also, at Johnson's request, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover dispatched a top-notch inspector to head an FBI crackdown on the sabotage.

Must Stop He Says

"This criminal action has got to stop," the President declared as he departed from what had been a purely political address to a Democratic fund-raising dinner Thursday night.

"I am not passing judgment on who is right or who is wrong," Johnson said. "But as the leader and spokesman for all the people of this nation, I am saying that you cannot take the law into your own hands."

Johnson was late appearing at the banquet and apologized, saying he had been conferring with Hoover and Wirtz.

Campaign Tied to Holiday

Run Out American Forces Is Pledge

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Communists are distributing leaflets in Saigon calling for an all - out drive against Americans to coincide with the observance of a Communist holiday next week.

"'Pledged to the complete eradication of U.S. forces here and pressing for the neutralization of the southern area, the National Liberation Front Saigon-Cholen-Gia-Dinh Zone Committee has issued instructions to its military, paramilitary and political organizations," the leaflets read.

Anniversary Celebration

"Every effort must be made to carry out a sabotage campaign to celebrate the coming anniversary of the Viet Nam Lao Dong party"—North Vietnamese Communist Labor party on March 3.

Reliable informants said U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had received several assassination threats in letters and had agreed to tighter security precautions. He has shunned tight security and walked around Saigon by himself, without guards.

Grenade Injures Six

During the day, a grenade thrown into a suburban police station exploded and wounded six policemen on duty, none seriously. It was the first bombing to result in casualties in more than a week.

American and Vietnamese security precautions were sharply tightened in Saigon after the bombing of the American community theater Feb. 16 in which three Americans were killed.

No additional precuations are planned for the March 3 holiday. Communist holidays occur frequently, and security officials always expect trouble.

Tight security continues to be maintained at the American school and at all official American establishments. Americans have beeen warned to keep social functions to a minimum.

Erhard Plan On Prices Is Successful

By JOHN WEYLAND

BONN, Germany (AP)—While other Common Market countries suffer from inflation, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard is having unique success in keeping prices down in West Germany with his policy of moderation.

Erhard developed this policy while he was minister of economics, the post he held before succeeding Konrad Adenauer last October. More than two years ago, Erhard warned frequently that all groups would have to limit their demands—show moderation — if postwar prosperity was to continue.

His Formula

He laid down the general rule that the national growth rate should set the top limit for increases in wages and government spending. Businessmen were to make price increases only if these did not have inflationary effects.

Thanks to the great prestige Erhard built up in engineering the economic miracle of West German recovery, he has been able to make his policy prevail.

His Retaliation

The giant automobile industry tried to defy him in the spring of 1962 with price increases he considered excessive. Erhard pushed a measure through the cabinet lowering tariffs on cars and trucks imported from other Common Market countries.

The business community, seeing Erhard was ready to turn talk into action, has shown no willingness to cross him since. His dedication to free enterprise allays fears of excessive government intervention.

As chancellor, Erhard drew up an economy budget of $15 billion for 1964. This follows his general rule, allowing an increase of 6 per cent over last year's budget because that is the rate of economic growth expected during 1964.

Three More Firms Sign Up for Shopping Plaza

Three more local firms, a dry goods company, a barber shop and a cosmetics studio, have signed leases for occupancy in the new Kingston Plaza Shopping Center in Uptown Kingston, and several others are negotiating for space in the center, according to a spokesman for the Kingston Plaza Inc.

Previously, leases were signed by Britt's Department store and the Grand Union Supermarkets.

The three new establishments are:

The Design Fabric Center operated by Leo Kay, presently located on North Front Street; the Elite Tonsorial Parlor operated by Celestino Caruso presently located on Main Street, and the Fashion Two Twenty Studio, now located at 123 Washington Avenue, and operated by Virginia Neher.

Theatre Interested

The Kingston Plaza Inc. spokesman confirmed a report that the operators of a theater at the Hudson Shopping Plaza, South Road, Poughkeepsie, are definitely interested in locating a theater at the uptown Kingston shopping center.

Other firms interested in negotiating for space at the KPSC include Sears Roebuck and Goodyear.

The Kingston Plaza Shopping Center spokesman said today that owners of a bakery, a financial institution, and a well-known local restaurant, are presently negotiating through their attorneys and brokers for leases.

Largest Within City

The new shopping center, which will feature in addition to the many stores and other business establishments, one of the largest parking areas in this section of the Hudson Valley, will be the largest shopping center constructed within the city limits.

The company spokesman noted the potential development will provide 10 to 20 additional stores. If negotiations for occupancy by the theater firm are consumated, a building for the theater will be constructed, to include several small stores, it was said.

Announcement of the three new leases brings to a total of more than 108,000 square feet of retail floor space which has been leased in the Plaza to date. Other leases are expected to be announced within the next two weeks, the spokesman for the KPSC said today.

Workmen are presently installing fixtures in Britt's Department Store and the Grand Union Market in preparation for

Prayers in Public Schools Are Still Big House Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — On June 25, 1962, the Supreme Court barred recitation of an official prayer in the public schools of New York.

Shortly afterward, cut into the marble above the chair of the speaker of the House and picked out in gilt paint, appeared the legend "In God We Trust."

The target was obvious, and the speedy reaction was an indication of the opposition of many House members of the court's decision.

Nearly two years and several more court prayer decisions later, the issue still is boiling in the House.

144 Resolutions

No less than 144 resolutions to amend the Constitution so as to nullify the Supreme Court's decisions have been introduced in the House. They have been referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., ordered his staff to conduct a painstaking survey of the whole question. This report has now been completed and is in the hands of Judiciary Committtee members.

Celler has promised public hearings soon.

He's Impatient

But Rep. Frank J. Becker, R-N.Y., is impatient. He introduced one of the first constitutional amendments to get around the court ruling. It would say nothing in the Consti-

Two Suspected Of Casing Homes For Future Thefts

Local police said today they are interested in obtaining information on two men who indicate they are on various kinds of surveys and who may be "casing" private homes for theft.

A warning was also issued to local residents to ask for identification of any person they admit to their homes. Some families have been told that the two are on family court surveys.

One is described as six feet tall, about 55 years old, heavy set, light hair, wearing glasses and a tweed coat. The other, about five feet five inches tall and between 30 and 35 years old, has dark hair and wears a dark top coat.

They are suspected in the recent theft of a ring, valued at $100 and $40 in cash from the Walter Moll home, 44 Foxhall Avenue. Police found no evidence of forced entrance at the house.

New Hearing Equipment Installed at CP Center

New electronic hearing equipment, purchased at a cost of $1,200, has been installed in the treatment center of United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, Inc., at 400 Broadway.

Mrs. Charlotte A. Peck, director of the CP treatment center, said the installation "streamlines and modernizes the equipment used in our speech-hearing department."

In her annual report to the board of directors, Mrs. Peck noted that in 1963 the total patient enrollment at the center was 178, including 126 new patients at the center last year. The center served a total of 411 persons in 1963, and the total patient visits to the center was 8,317.

Upwards of 214 children were fitted with braces and 99 adults were availed of the same service, and the director's report also pointed to a "graduate class," which included five from the physical therapy department; 31 from the speech-hearing department and 12 from the nursery.

Other "heart-warming statistics' in Mrs. Pek's annual report disclosed that four patients were able to discard braces, and the same number were "able to walk or stand alone." Eight patients underwent orthopedic surgery. A total of 14 patients were fitted with hearing aids in 1963.

The center, the report noted, serves not only those with cerebral palsy disabilities — a total of 64 last year — but also afforded treatment to 19 post-polio patients and eight muscular dystrophy patients. Those treated last year for birth defects other than cerebral palsy totaled 77. The treatment center also provided services for 112 persons with speech problems and 58 with hearing defects.

Mrs. Peck's report disclosed that one of the essential facts, "an integral part of the center program is the role of the volunteers, faithful workers who serve not only as drivers, nursery aids and helpers for special events, but whose warm interest strikes deep responsive chords within the children themselves It is also our great good fortune to have the continued interest and support of such fine civic

Four Teeners Are Quizzed by Police After Complaint

Four teenagers, who gave Bronx and Forest Hills addresses, were questioned at police headquarters Thursday after a Pine Street woman complained that they had annoyed her near her home.

Mrs. K. N. Houghtaling, of 24 Pine Street, reported at 5:15 p.m., that she had been accosted by the four, "who claimed to be making a survey for a Communist magazine." She claimed they "wouldn't even let her get into her own house."

Sergeants William Hanley and Thomas Tomshaw with officers George Barringer and Albert Johnson were dispatched to the area. They brought the four to police headquarters and placed them on record. The report noted that "no charges were made at this time." They ranged in age from 17 to 19.

Chest Votes Regional Survey to Meet Predicted Population Growth of Area

A regional survey of health, welfare, recreation and character building services has been approved by the Ulster County Community Chest Board of Directors.

The action came this week amid predictions that the county will experience a significant population growth in the immediate years ahead. Chest spokesmen pointed out that it is anticipated that Kingston itself will increase by 15,000 persons in the next 15 years.

"We cannot be aimless any longer. Community and regional needs are outstripping us," a planning committee representative of the Chest pointed out.

William R. Stall, Chest president, following up the report of the regional survey action, said "to observe our deteriorating and crowded agencies makes the need for immediate action obvious. We must proceed deliberately but quickly."

Chest headquarters today also announced the board's approval of committee chairmen and officers for 1964 and a Boys Club modernization plan.

Chairmen approved include:

Clifford A. Henze,. planning committee; William H. Hobbs, nominating; Joseph J. Benjamin, campaign cabinet; Arthur B. Ewig, special committees; Mrs. John R. Warren, public relations and George Herbert DeKay, area advisory. In addition, Henze was appointed first vice-president and Benjamin, second vice-president.

On recommendations from the Chest planning and executive committees, directors approved the proposed plans of the Kingston Boys Club to expand its program and modernize facilities.

Club officials expect to increase the program space from 1,000 to 6,000 square feet and as a result a more adequate program will be possible and almost twice as many boys will be served.

It was pointed out that since most of the supplies and labor for the project will be donated the Boys Club will not have to conduct a financial campaign.

"Pledged to the complete eradication of U.S. forces here and pressing for the neutralization of the southern area, the National Liberation Front Saigon-Cholen-Gia-Dinh Zone Committee has issued instructions to its military, paramilitary and political organizations," the leaflets read.

Anniversary Celebration

"Every effort must be made to carry out a sabotage campaign to celebrate the coming anniversary of the Viet Nam Lao Dong party"—North Vietnamese Communist Labor party on March 3.

Reliable informants said U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had received several assassination threats in letters and had agreed to tighter security precautions. He has shunned tight security and walked around Saigon by himself, without guards.

Grenade Injures Six

During the day, a grenade thrown into a suburban police station exploded and wounded six policemen on duty, none seriously. It was the first bombing to result in casualties in more than a week.

American and Vietnamese security precautions were sharply tightened in Saigon after the bombing of the American community theater Feb. 16 in which three Americans were killed.

No additional precuations are planned for the March 3 holiday. Communist holidays occur frequently, and security officials always expect trouble.

Tight security continues to be maintained at the American school and at all official American establishments. Americans have beeen warned to keep social functions to a minimum.

Two Suspected Of Casing Homes For Future Thefts

Local police said today they are interested in obtaining information on two men who indicate they are on various kinds of surveys and who may be "casing" private homes for theft.

A warning was also issued to local residents to ask for identification of any person they admit to their homes. Some families have been told that the two are on family court surveys.

One is described as six feet tall, about 55 years old, heavy set, light hair, wearing glasses and a tweed coat. The other, about five feet five inches tall and between 30 and 35 years old, has dark hair and wears a dark top coat.

They are suspected in the recent theft of a ring, valued at $100 and $40 in cash from the Walter Moll home, 44 Foxhall Avenue. Police found no evidence of forced entrance at the house.

New Hearing Equipment Installed at CP Center

New electronic hearing equipment, purchased at a cost of $1,200, has been installed in the treatment center of United Cerebral Palsy of Ulster County, Inc., at 400 Broadway.

Mrs. Charlotte A. Peck, director of the CP treatment center, said the installation "streamlines and modernizes the equipment used in our speech-hearing department."

In her annual report to the board of directors, Mrs. Peck noted that in 1963 the total patient enrollment at the center was 178, including 126 new patients at the center last year. The center served a total of 411 persons in 1963, and the total patient visits to the center was 8,317.

Upwards of 214 children were fitted with braces and 99 adults were availed of the same service, and the director's report also pointed to a "graduate class," which included five from the physical therapy department; 31 from the speech-hearing department and 12 from the nursery.

Other "heart-warming statistics' in Mrs. Pek's annual report disclosed that four patients were able to discard braces, and the same number were "able to walk or stand alone." Eight patients underwent orthopedic surgery. A total of 14 patients were fitted with hearing aids in 1963.

The center, the report noted, serves not only those with cerebral palsy disabilities — a total of 64 last year — but also afforded treatment to 19 post-polio patients and eight muscular dystrophy patients. Those treated last year for birth defects other than cerebral palsy totaled 77. The treatment center also provided services for 112 persons with speech problems and 58 with hearing defects.

Mrs. Peck's report disclosed that one of the essential facts, "an integral part of the center program is the role of the volunteers, faithful workers who serve not only as drivers, nursery aids and helpers for special events, but whose warm interest strikes deep responsive chords within the children themselves It is also our great good fortune to have the continued interest and support of such fine civic

A regional survey of health, welfare, recreation and character building services has been approved by the Ulster County Community Chest Board of Directors.

The action came this week amid predictions that the county will experience a significant population growth in the immediate years ahead. Chest spokesmen pointed out that it is anticipated that Kingston itself will increase by 15,000 persons in the next 15 years.

"We cannot be aimless any longer. Community and regional needs are outstripping us," a planning committee representative of the Chest pointed out.

William R. Stall, Chest president, following up the report of the regional survey action, said "to observe our deteriorating and crowded agencies makes the need for immediate action obvious. We must proceed deliberately but quickly."

Chest headquarters today also announced the board's approval of committee chairmen and officers for 1964 and a Boys Club modernization plan.

Chairmen approved include:

Clifford A. Henze,. planning committee; William H. Hobbs, nominating; Joseph J. Benjamin, campaign cabinet; Arthur B. Ewig, special committees; Mrs. John R. Warren, public relations and George Herbert DeKay, area advisory. In addition, Henze was appointed first vice-president and Benjamin, second vice-president.

On recommendations from the Chest planning and executive committees, directors approved the proposed plans of the Kingston Boys Club to expand its program and modernize facilities.

Club officials expect to increase the program space from 1,000 to 6,000 square feet and as a result a more adequate program will be possible and almost twice as many boys will be served.

It was pointed out that since most of the supplies and labor for the project will be donated the Boys Club will not have to conduct a financial campaign.

Sentence Delayed In Kidnaping That Followed Rioting

By HOWARD CRISWELL JR.

MONROE, N.C. (AP)—Three Negroes and a white man have been convicted of kidnaping a white couple in the aftermath of a 1961 race riot. The maximum sentence is life imprisonment.

Superior Court Judge Walter Brock delayed sentencing Thursday after an all-white jury found each of the defendants guilty of two counts of kidnaping. The jury deliberated 35 minutes.

Scheduled for sentencing today were Mrs. Willie Mae Mallory, 37, Macon, Ga., and Brooklyn, N.Y.; Harold Reape, 19, and Richard Crowder, 21, both of Monroe, all Negroes; and John C. Lowry, 23, Flushing, N.Y., who came to Monroe as a white "Freedom Rider."

Defense attorneys William Kunstler of New York and Walter S. Hafffner of Cleveland, Ohio, indicated they will appeal.

Interracial picketing around the Union County courthouse touched off a melee the afternoon of Aug. 27, 1961. A few hours later, a white couple, Mr. and Mrs. G. Bruce Stegall of Marshville, N.C., were stopped by a crowd in a Negro section, bound back to back, and held hostage for 3½ hours.

Kunstler, who represented Lowry, told the jury that Lowry's part in the kidnaping was done as a "foolish, stupid act in a moment of excitement." Testimony was that after the Stegalls were taken from their car, Lowry drove it from the middle of the street to the curb in front of the home of Robert Williams, 39, a Monroe Negro leader now in Cuba.

Testimony was that Mrs. Mallory forced Mrs. Stegall from the car at rifle point and stood guard over the bound couple in a dark room, holding a rifle in one hand and a flashlight in another.

Alma Man Killed, Five Hurt in Crash

LITTLE GENESEE, N. Y. (AP)—A 61-year-old man was killled and five other persons were injured in the collision early today of two automobiles on Route 17 near this Allegany County community.

State Police said the dead man was John C. Mesler of Alma, N.Y., driver of one of the cars.

The injured were taken to St. Francis Hospital in Olean. None of the five suffered critical injuries, troopers said.

Mele Lecture, Demonstration Set for Onteora

Frank Mele of Woodstock, a well known symphonist, chamber musician and teacher, will appear at Onteora Central School Thursday, March 5, to hold a morning long lecture and demonstration designed to evaluate the nature and role of string, bowed instruments, from the violin on through to the double bass.

Mele's appearance is sponsored by the Cultural Arts Committee and by invitation of Paul T. Runge, Onteora principal.

The nature of string instruments will be discussed and illustrated by performers who are experts and who have had a wide experience of solo playing and chamber music in diverse forms.

The string potential will be explored in brief performances of a duo for violin and viola, a string trio in which the cello is added and the string quartet and finally the chamber orchestra, complete with double bass.

At the close of the demonstration period, the visiting musical artists will retire to individual classrooms with student string players for an intense "capsule" lesson, involving the study of individual parts of a composition for string orchestra.

To Form Orchestra

Following this period, the visiting artists will form a chamber orchestra together with the students and begin the rhearsal of a concerto grosso by the great composer of the baroque period, Antonio Vivaldi. This rehearsal will be directed by Mele in a way intended for a performance later without conductor.

When doubt was expressed as to the ability of the youngsters to perform a work of this nature, Mele said:

"I know it is a bit ambitious, and whether we can do more than one movement depends on many factors. It is an experiment which I feel confident will provide an invaluable experience for the musical youth of Onteora. If we can achieve no more than this, in giving them a few glimpses of new horizons, it will have been worth the time and energy. I am thankful for having had the fullest cooperation of Mr. Runge, Henry Simon and the Cultural Arts Committee."

Christian Guild Hears Minister

An interesting address by the Rev. Cornelius Lyseltak highlighted the monthly meeting of the Guild for Christian Service at the Woodstock Reformed Church.

Rev. Lyseltak and his wife are the managers of Kirkside, a home for retired ministers and missionaries of the Reformed Church. Beautiful slides were shown of the home, church and the surrounding countryside.

Harriet Anthony led the devotions and Bible study of the evening.

During the business meeting, the Service Committee reminded the Guild of the forthcoming phantom food sale slated Saturday, March 7, in the Fellowship Hall, from 10 a. m. to 12 noon. Any member wishing to contribute may do so at this time Cake and coffee will be served

Pictures and a letter were received concerning the recently adopted 9-year-old Korean orphan of the Guild

Refreshments were served by Kathleen Mower Harriet Anthony and Lorraine Elliott.

French Film Classic Saturday at Guild

A French film classic—Jules and Jim—will be presented Saturday, Feb. 29, at 8 p. m. by the Woodstock Festival Committee and the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen as part of the 1964 Winter Series of lectures and movies at the Kleinert Gallery.

This is a French film whose subtlety of technique is matched by its subtlety of feeling for a moral predicament that extends beyond personal confines and seems to include the confusion of its times.

Miss Berta will lecture on Textiles and Social Customs at the Sunday, March 15, lecture at 3 p. m.

Contests to Mark Ellenville Election

Contests will mark the March 17 village election in Ellenville, when voters will elect two trustees and a police justice.

Republicans have endorsed three incumbent officials for another term. They are—Police Justice Frank Decker, who is seeking his second term; Trustee DeWitt Clinton, who will seek a fourth term, and Jerome Z. Elkin, who already has served four terms and is seeking another.

Seeking to unseat the incumbent GOP trustees are—Daniel Richman and Donald Strouse. Democratic party leaders say they will not present a candidate for police justice.

Balloting on election day will take place at the Scoresby clubhouse.

Mayor Eugene Glusker is the lone Democrat on the present village board of trustees.

To Study Road Mishaps

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—A study of the West Virginia Turnpike will be made by the National Safety Council to find out why the 88-mile highway is the nation's deadliest toll road.

Traffic accidents have killed 115 persons on the toll road since it opened 10 years ago, the worst record of any toll road in the nation. The West Virginia Turnpike is one of the few two-lane toll roads in the country.

Man Is Charged In Case Involving Pedigreed Dogs

Accused of misappropriating pedigreed dogs in the Town of Denning, Milford Charles Muir, 36, of White Plains, was arrested Thursday by Hawthorne State Police on a warrant charging first degree grand larceny.

Muir was turned over to BCI Investigator Joseph Franke of Highland, and later the accused man was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Clifford Warren, Town of Denning. The defendant requested a preliminary examination.

The case was adjourned until Thursday, March 5. In lieu of $5,000 bail, Muir was ordered held in the county jail pending hearing according to BCI Investigator Joseph Ventriglia.

Aid for Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A shipment of food, clothing, medicine and agricultural tools said to be worth $5 million has arrived from Czechoslovakia to aid Cuban victims of Hurricane Flora, Havana Radio said.

The merchandise was donated by the Czech people and government for aid to Camaguey and Oriente provinces, according to the broadcast monitored Thursday night in Miami.

Curfew for All Under 21 Imposed In Princess Anne

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP)—A nightly curfew is in effect for persons under 21 years old at Princess Anne, scene of racial demonstrations and violence.

The curfew, imposed by the town commissioners, went into effect at 9:15 Thursday night and by 11 the sidewalks were virtually empty.

A meeting of town and Somerset County officials was scheduled for tonight. The racial issue erupted Wednesday into a battle between students at nearby Maryland State College and police.

About 130 State Police were called to Princess Anne to keep the peace.

John Wilson, chairman of the Student Appeal For Equality, the student group that is leading the demonstrations, told a Negro rally in nearby Salisbury that he and other student leaders would go to Annapolis Monday and meet with Gov. J. Millard Tawes and other top legislators.

He said earlier that student demonstrations would be renewed any time.

Wants Budget Data Six Months Ahead

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Joseph R. Shaw, president of Associated Industries of New York, wants the state to borrow a page from the federal government and make public its budget estimates six months in advance of the start of the fiscal year.

Shaw recommended Thursday in the industrial group's newsletter that the governor reveal his budget by Nov. 1 and submit it to the Legislature in early January.

Under present law the state budget must be presented to the Legislature by Feb. 1. Gov. Rockefeller generally submits his budget in mid-January.

Alabama Youth Going Home to Face Charges

Released from the New York State Vocational Institution at Coxsackie Thursday, David Daniels, 19, of Saginaw, Ala., was taken into custody by Leeds State police on a warrant charging him with being a fugitive from justice.

Troopers said Daniels had served a term at the Coxsackie institution following conviction in Nassau County for burglary. Daniels, authorities said, is wanted by Alabama authorities for burglary and grand larceny.

Arranged yesterday afternoon before Greene County Judge George L. Cobb, Daniels waived extradition. He was ordered held in the county jail until the arrival of Alabama authorities.

Kapreilian Heads Member Drive for KingstonChamber

Harry Kapreilian, president of the Charles Ramsey Corporation of 15-19 Gage Street and first vice-president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, heads the Chamber's membership committee for 1964. Kapreilian and his committee are making plans for an intensive membership drive during the week of March 16. Chamber President John F. Schuehler released information about Kapreilian today.

In addition to being president of one of Kingston's oldest, but aggressive manufacturing concerns, Kapreilian is head of the right Gauge Company, recently acquired as a subsidiary of the Ramsey Corporation. The latter being one of the few manufacturers of piano hardware in the United States. The new company manufactures high quality precision gauges of various types. Within recent years the number of employes in the two companies has more than doubled, now totaling over 50.

Kapreilian, a native of Kingston, has taken an active interest in various community affairs for many years. He has been a member of St. John's Episcopal Church vestry for more than a dozen years and has served on the Board of Managers of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City. He has been active in local bowling circles and is a director of the Kingston Bowling Association. Kapreilian also is an active member of the Mid-Hudson Industrial Association, the Society of Advanced Management and a director of Gateway Industries, Inc. and the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. During World War 2 he served in the U. S. Navy for three years. He is married, has two children, and resides at 320 Pearl Street.

The organization and plans of the Chamber's membership drive are now being developed and will be availabel soon. Kapreilian also urged all business and professional men to become members of the Chamber.

Report on Spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans raised their spending for goods and services by an average of $94 per person in 1963 and this added up to $17.7 billion, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

The $17.7 billion, a 5 per cent increase over 1962, was equal to the total gain in disposable personal income.

Rocky Hits Barry's Retired Pay Stand

KEENE, N.H. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller hit again at Sen. Barry Goldwater today on social security, an issue on which Rockefeller considers his opponent for the GOP presidential nomination to be vulnerable.

Asserting that Goldwater advocated a voluntary social security program, Rockefellller said such an approach would bankrupt the system "'and be a personal disaster to millions of senior citizens and their families."

Appeals to N.H. Voters

"'I would preserve and protect social security,'' Rockefeller said, "because I understand it and support it.'"

Rockefeller strategists say privately the governor's views on social security appeal to many New Hampshire voters who have been leaning toward Goldwater.

Rockefeller argues that many workers in the lower income brackets would not participate in a voluntary program and there would not be sufficient revenues to pay benefits now due to retired persons.

The governor commented in a statement isssued as he began a two-day campaign swing that will take him to 15 New Hampshire communities by Saturday afternoon.

Rockefeller and Goldwater are opponents in this state's presidential preference primary March 10.

The governor, accompanied by Mrs. Rockefeller, stopped in Vermont Thursday en route to New Hampshire aboard their private plane.

Call on Mrs. Austin

The governor addressed 2,000 students at the University of Vermont, Burlington, speaking just before he and his wife made a brief, private, visit to Mrs. Warren Austin, widow of the U.S. senator and the United States' first ambassador to the United Nations. From Burlington, the Rockefellers flew to Montpelier.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who is expecting a child early in June, limited her activities. She did not accompany him on a handshaking tour of a shopping center, where the governor was quickly surrounded by a pressing crowd, nor to a late evening social gathering of Rockefeller campaign workers.

Port Ewen Sets $43,220, Total Fire Loss in '63

A loss of $43,220.18 on $117,960 worth of property including furniture involved in fires in Port Ewen Fire District during 1963 was indicated in the annual report of Port Ewen Fire Department, announced today by Chief Edward F. Mains.

The report listed $41,468.20 allowed by insurance adjustment on property and $1,761.98 for furnishings.

Chief Mains listed the following calls covered by the department: Houses 9; shed 1; grass 12, cars 4; tank truck 1; town buildings 2; false alarms 3; car accidents 2; oven fire 1.

In accordance with a recommendation in last year's report, a small utility truck was purchased and is being prepared for service by the firemen.

The chief in his recommendation this year, suggests that the board of fire commissioners draft a set of rules and regulations for the fire department.

During Fire Prevention Week, the department held fire drills at Consolidated School No. 1 at Port Ewen in cooperation with Esopus Fire Department and town fire marshal. Fire prevention material was distributed and a demonstration was held at Ross Park and a public meeting conducted at the Town Building.

Assures Balzan Funds

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Blocked funds or not, the embattled Balzan Foundation plans to name all its 1963 prize winnners. Its secretary general, Col. Aldo Danielli, says he will put up the prize money himself if necessary.

A Balzan spokesman said Thursday prizes of about $50,000 each probably will be announced this weekend for history and literary criticism, paleontology, astronomy and astrophysics, and political economy.

The Swiss government froze the Swiss - Italian foundation's funds in Swiss banks this week because of an internal dispute over the way the $151,000 Balzan peace prize for 1963 was awarded to the United Nations. A number of members of the Balzan prize committee complain they were not consulted.

Cool to Nkrumah Idea

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—African foreign ministers have shied away from a proposal by President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana that might have made a reality of his ambitions to be top man on the dark continent.

At a meeting of the Organization of African Unity Thursday, 33 foreign ministers decided Nkrumah's idea for a continental government and military high command was outside their jurisdiction.

Calm Is Urged

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Nigeria's President Nnamde Azikiwe has urged his country to remain calm while the government completes a national census.

Rioting and protests followed a preliminary disclosure of figures Monday. The opponents charged the totals were rigged to give the less advanced and more conservative northern section continued control of Parliament.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 28, 1964

A FULL DOLLAR'S WORTH

The Department of Audit and Control is giving state financial records the closest examination in state history.

A new auditing method currently used by the federal government and private industry has been put to use in New York State for the first time.

According to the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, a state-wide tax research organization that has reviewed some two dozen of the completed audits, wastes of taxpayers' money have been turned up that previously would have gone unchecked.

Past audits did no more than "check the books." This "in-depth" audit, as it is called goes beyond the balance sheet into the actual fiscal operation of departments, agencies and state-run institutions. The auditors recommend ways of avoiding waste and of achieving tighter fiscal control.

The wastes uncovered range from overstocking of goods, purchasing at full list prices when quantity discounts were available, avoidance of non-competive bidding and so on.

Multiplying these thousands of dollars in wastes by the number of state departments, agencies, authorities and institutions, the total can add up to millions of dollars of taxpayers money just thrown away.

The size of state spending requires a business-type audit to make sure that a full dollar's worth of goods and services is received for every tax dollar spent.

AIRLINE PILOTS NEEDED

For years, one of the most exclusive professions in the world has been that of airline pilot.

Unless a man was fortunate enough to get his training at government expense or was rich enough to buy the equivalent, he had little chance of taking up this career.

Air travel came into its own after World War II and the airlines drew heavily from a reservoir of thoroughly trained and experienced ex-Air Force pilots. The same held true with the coming of the jets after the Korean War.

Now for the first time, a young man need not have thousands of multiengine hours in his log book before applying. He must be a licensed pilot, for the airlines do not yet give primary training, but he can have as few as 200 hours.

The airlines will need more than 1,000 new pilots within the next few years and they are prepared to spend $10,000 to $20,000 on advanced training for every one of them.

The reason is twofold: More new planes are going into service, especially the smaller, short-haul jets; and the veterans are aging. (Mandatory retirement age is 60; one airline alone will lose over 200 senior pilots within the next eight years.)

Cost of obtaining the necessary couple hundred hours is not small, but the investment is sound. Senior jet captains can make more than $30,000 a year.

BETTER U.S. 'MEERSCHAUM'

Here's good news for loose-ended, ex-cigarette smokers and/or secret admirers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allen Dulles, Norman Rockwell, Bennett Cerf and a number of others:

The Corn Industries Foundation has announced the results of scientific project MO Pipe 12. Put in simple terms for the layman, it means that better corncob pipes are in the offing.

MO Pipe 12 is a new hybrid corn with an exceptionally hard cob that was developed by Dr. Marcus S. Zuber at the University of Missouri. It is perhaps the greatest breakthrough in the field since 1869, when a Missouri farmer named John Scharnke had the first pipe bowl fashioned from a corncob.

Only three companies in the nation make corncob pipes, and because only Missouri bottomlands seem able to produce the quality cobs needed, they have made Washington, Mo., the corncob capital of the world.

They are currently speculating on what would happen if they could get women interested in corncob pipes.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

NEEDED, SOFT-HEARTED MEN WITH HARD HEADS

When conservatives scoff at President Lyndon Johnson for talking up a crusade against poverty, they are making a tactical mistake. For it seemingly puts them into the camp of the hard-hearted, and the hard hearts haven't won a big election in the United States in years. What the conservatives should do is to praise Johnson for raising the issue of poverty, and then go on to explain why the problem must be tackled, not by grandiose federal plans for regions extending over many states, but locally, on a town by town and plant by plant basis.

Any general federalese plan for Appalachia, for example, must fail because the Pittsburgh area of Pennsylvania is one thing and the West Virginia and Kentucky soft coal fields are another, while the hard coal region of eastern Pennsylvania is still a third. The industrial woes of the Pittsburgh area have been beautifully analyzed by my friend Harold Ruttenberg, who, in his varied career, has been a statistician and organizer for the United Steelworkers Union and a money-making steel-master and manufacturer of drilling equipment. In a devastating summary which he has just sent to me, Mr. Ruttenberg shows why the currently fetishistic process of industry-wide collective bargaining fails. The inevitable result of "cosmic" bargaining is to strand and put out of business smaller, specialized companies which can neither afford to automate nor to move away. This snowballs the unemployment problem. The situation can hardly be improved by "retraining" displaced workers, for what are they to be retrained for? A high-cost area does not create new businesses to absorb retrained workers. The retraining program is another classic example of cart-before-horse thinking.

The attempt by union management "industry-wide" collective bargainers to apply a United States Steel Corporation formula to all steel companies wreaks havoc for smaller metal-working plants which cannot afford thirteen-week vacations, sabbaticals, expensive fringe benefits, and high overtime pay. It even hurts the less efficient divisions of U. S. Steel. Going up and down the valleys of the Pittsburgh area, Mr. Ruttenberg has discovered that 80 metal-working plants, once employing 40,000 people, have gone out of existence since the war. Some 10 million square feet of empty industrial buildings stand waiting for new tenants. Whole towns such as Donora have met with disaster because of union insistence on "stretch-out" work practices that are akin to railroad feather-bedding. But management, says Mr. Ruttenberg, is often just as much to blame as labor, for it has failed to prove a sincere willingness to tackle the job of substituting plant-by-plant productivity formulas for overall union-management contracts.

Mr. Ruttenberg defines automation as a distortion of technological improvement that has been forced by "stretched-out costs." Companies resort to automation whenever good union men, with the consent of a management that wants no direct trouble with labor, contrive to run a plant operation below its "design capacity." Rather than run head-on into the union, management prefers to "redesign" capacity to get rid of men entirely. But this sort of thing runs into money, and employers who can't raise the capital for it often dodge the problem by moving from Pennsylvania to North Carolina or by selling out to "liquidation" companies and reinvesting their capital in government bonds.

Mr. Ruttenberg's recipe for saving the Pittsburgh area is to apply new "Donora formula," which was spontaneously demanded by workers in the Donora area when U. S. Steel closed down many of its facilities in the town and moved out. The "Donora formula" is to take each plant as "a closed society of its own," to forget national "norms," and to negotiate wage-and-fringe-benefit demands on a productivity basis that accounts for the circumstances of the shop and the local community. Some plants have been saved by this approach: others, failing to get into the spirit of the "Donora formula," have simply stumbled into closing.

Poverty is a blight upon the nation. But Mr. Ruttenberg proves brilliantly that the cure of poverty is, more often than not, a purely local issue.

Cancer Is Not Contagious, But Clean Room Anyway

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—My father-in-law recently died of cancer. How can we prepare his room and furniture so that this disease will not be passed on to the new occupants?

A—Since there is no evidence, according to the U. S. Public Health Service and other authorities, that cancer can be transmitted by contact with objects used by a victim, no special precautions are necessary. On general principles it is a good idea to have the room thoroughly cleaned and aired but not as an insurance against cancer.

Q—In September 1960 I had myelogram X-rays of my spine. In December 1962, when more X-rays were taken, some drops of the opaque oil injected into my spine were still present. Could this impair the nerves of my back and legs? How long after injection can the dye remain in the body?

A—The oil will be present for many years but it will not impair your nerves although it may make you nervous to think about it.

Q—Four years ago, my uterus was removed and now I take estrogen shots every two weeks. The doctor says I might have to continue taking them all my life. Are these shots harmful in any way?

A—Many women after the menopause, whether natural or following removal of the uterus, are benefited by small doses of estrogen. If the dose is carefully adjusted there is no reason why the hormone should not be given for the rest of your life as this is what is known as replacement therapy. It merely replaces a normal body substance for which there is a deficiency.

Q—What are Donnatal pills used for? I have high blood pressure and my doctor is giving them to me.

A—Donnatal contains belladonna and phenobarbital. It is a sedative that is used to treat persons with peptic ulcer, irritable bowel, painful menstruation, some forms of bladder inflammation, motion sickness, shaking palsy and high blood pressure. It is available only on a doctor's prescription. It should not be taken over a prolonged period because the phenobarbital is habit-forming.

Q—I have been taking diastase for constipation for about four months. Can this be harmful in any way?

A—Diastase is an enzyme that helps to liquefy starches. In this way it may aid digestion and reduce bloating and heartburn. It is not harmful but it shoulud not be necessary to take it regularly if you eat a balanced diet and chew your food thoroughly.

Q—My granddaughter has a skin disease which our doctor calls discoid lupus. What is this and is there any cure?

A—Discoid lupus is just another name for lupus erythematosus about which I have written before. It can be cured, but not easily.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Sargent Shriver, chief now of both the Peace Corps and President Johnson's antipoverty program, stands at the first major turning point in his public career.

The untried business of poverty fighting offers stiff challenge to the ablest administrator. It could be a reputation buster.

Should Shriver mount even a moderately successful charge against the nation's "poverty pockets," he would on the other hand establish himself both as a high grade administrator and a hot political property.

Talk to Democratic professionals and you find most of them have not yet really "discovered" Shriver as a political factor, notwithstanding the obvious facts that the President regards him highly and recurring reports that he is Johnson's favorite for the 1964 vice presidential nomination.

BUT THE PARTY POLITICIANS, and a lot of other people, will be seeing and hearing much of Shriver in the poverty-fighting campaign that lies ahead.

He is a man who likes to keep a close hand on field operations, as his many forays into remote overseas Peace Corps areas illustrate. His will likely be a familiar face before long in many U. S. communities and rural sectors.

Once they brush against Shriver's winning ways, large numbers of state and local Democratic leaders may conclude they have a new political natural on their hands.

If that should be their judgment, and it should be underscored by some success for him in the poverty battle, then a political career may follow, whether or not Johnson taps him this year, and regardless of the fact he still lacks a firm political base of his own.

THAT SHRIVER MAY HAVE the elusive "star quality" was suggested afresh by his recent National Press Club appearance—burial ground for many an aspiring public figure.

He managed there to give to a eulogy of his brother-in-law, the late President John F. Kennedy, almost the nonpartisan ring of objective history. Without self-service or sentiment, he described again—in colorful specifics — the Peace Corps' achievements.

Hiss Press Club talk exhibited the same appeals to the practical and the ideal which seem to impress the lawmakers who each year vote Shriver more and more Peace Corps money.

Such diverse conservatives as Sen. Barry Goldwater and Rep. Howard Smith of Virginia, Democratic chairman of the House Rules committe, have been won over.

BUT ALL SHRIVER'S administrative capacities, diplomatic skills, wit and charm will be tested in the antipoverty combat.

For one thing, at the federal level the program will call for an unprecedented blending among several departments and agencies, such as Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

In the field, Shriver will have to try to enlist co-operative, assistance from among countless state and local agencies, both public and private. And keep them from being overrun by Washington.

This 48-year-old Chicagoan is, however, a hardheaded optimist. He believes no homefront obstacle could outmatch the ignorance, skepticism and deliberate Communist roadblocks which have harassed but not really hurt the Peace Corps in its three years of life.

Perfume was used in the Bronze Age. The passion to please the nose may go back further, but it antedates the early Egyptian dynasties. It was used by the Chinese as religious incense, 8,000 years ago. Today, the perfume business is more sophisticated. The men of the world spend five hundred million dollars each year to make their women smell like flowers.

Half of this is spent in the United States for one-third of the perfume. Bottled scents are cheaper in other countries. In all, about 235,000 gallons are sold each year. The man who knows as much as any one in the world about perfume is Edouard Cournand, head of Lanvin. He is 67, bald, gallant and sits in an odorless office on 5th Avenue, New York.

He has a heavy French accent, but he thinks well in English. He is the author of that slogan: "Promise her anything, but give her Arpege." He also designed the big black cat surrounded by white kittens—the one which advertises My Sin. This requires a saucy, naughty mind, and Monsieur Cournand has it.

Good perfumes cost about $25 an ounce, and are sold in quarter-ounce containers (purse size); ½ oz.; 1 oz. and 2 oz. sizes. In France, M. Cournand says, the sensible man buys the 1 oz. size for his wife, and the 2 oz. size for his mistress. Different perfumes, of course, because the man is sufficiently confused before he shops for scents.

In Latin, "per" is by, and "fume" is smoke or fumes. It wasn't until Cleopatra's time that perfumes were taken out of the temple and put in the boudoir. The Egyptians said it gave a "lift" to the state of mind." In those days, perfumes were made by plucking roses and water lilies at night, and placing the bruised petals in warm oil.

The Romans may have been victims of Cleopatra's perfumes, but they learned what to do with it. They used many varieties of flowers to make lovely odors; roses, gardenias, lavender, violets, jasmine. Still, when the Roman Empire fell, so did prefume. There is no mention of it in any history between the time of Caligula and the reign of Francis I.

A group of Italian noblemen, visiting the King of France, made perfume for their own use. The King was enchanted. He ordered a perfume shop opened in Paris in 1525. Once LaBelle France got in the perfume business, it never relinquished its lead. Perfumes evaporate quickly, and Frenchmen had to find ways of keeping the precious drops.

English silversmiths made air-tight vials; Frenchmen in Limoges designed attractive bottles from native rock crystal. Limogenes also made enamel jars. Cleopatra put perfume in the boudoir, but Madame DuBarry put it on the woman. She said she desired to create a certain response in a man.

She wore a ring with a snip of felt in it. She dampened the felt in percious perfume. When her hand was kissed, the kisser frequently fell on his. Madame also wore a long necklace with a hollow crystal dangling at dead center. This was kept full of perfume.

By the time Napoleon arrived, he was mad about guns and odors. He wanted every room of the palace sprayed with perfume. His perfumers were the first to lighten the perfume oil with alcohol, thus permitting it to be sprayed on drapes and clothing without stain. The emporer also commanded Faberge to make a bottle of perfume and use a $4,000 ruby as a stopper.

Edouard Cournand recently bought that one for his wife. In the post-Napoleonic era, Frenchmen began, for the first time, to blend one floral scent with another. Soon, they were inventing whole bouquets in one perfume. At the turn of the century, Madame Lanvin bought a floral painting by Renoir. She asked Fraysse, a chemist, to look at it. He did.

"Now," she said, "Make a perfume for me which says the same as the painting." Fraysse worked hard, and long. When he completed his work, he permitted Madam Lanvin to smell it. "Exactly," she said. She named it Arpege, from the word arpeggio, a musical chord played in rapid sequence.

Around 1917, the French began to make abstract perfumes, a blending of natural floral odor with pleasing chemical odors. The two most popular are Blue Hour, by Guerlain, and My Sin, by Lanvin. Some perfumes were found to be better in the synthetic state than in the natural.

The making of perfume is tedious. Take simple jasmine: Step one is to cut the jasmine at night, because it has moisture at that time; (2) the flowers are distilled by steaming, and carrying the fragrance off into coils; (3) the scent is reduced to pure oil or wax; (4) it is melted to get the concentrated odor; (5) it is mixed with ambergris and alcohol, strring once a day for weeks; (6) impurities are filtered out; (7) the residue is frozen; (8) it is put into worn perfume vats for months to acquire an old scent as well as the new; (9) it is bottled.

It is expensive. But, men, it's worth it, not for what it does for her, but for what it can do for you . . .

Presidential Succession: Picking a Vice-President

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The United States has no Vice President today, and no provision has as yet been made to fill the vacancy in that office. The American Bar Association, at its recent convention, passed a resolution which stated that a Constitutional amendment is necessary not only to deal with such a contingency but to take care of Presidential succession in the event of the physical inability or incapacity of an incumbent. Congress is holding hearings, but there is no consensus yet on what law or Constitutional amendment should be passed.

The Bar Association's proposal would put the selection of a Vice President in the hands of the President himself. It is true that he would be submitting the nomination to Congress for its consent, but the Senate and House would have no voice in selecting the man to be voted on and would merely have to acquiesce in or reject the nomination.

It is being argued that a President who has just taken office on the death of his predecessor can speak for the country. But it is not characteristic of representative government to allow any one man to pick a leading executive. If it is not considered feasible to have a special election by the people to choose a Vice President, the next best way is to allow the people's representatives in Congress to do the electing.

The real difficulty is that Congress may be of one political party in the middle of a Presidential term while the Chief Executive may have been elected earlier as the nominee of another political party.

Every President is chosen for a four-year term, but this doesn't mean that the people continuously approve his performance throughout the four years. In fact, the election in the middle of his term of a majority in Congress of the opposite party is often a clear indication of the public's disapproval of an Administration's policies and of a desire of the people for a change.

A Constitutional amendment could provide that each party in Congress shall make a single nomination and that the President himself shall make an additional nomination of his own, and that the two Houses in joint session shall elect as Vice President the one considered by a majority of both Houses to be the best qualified of the three nominees.

The trouble with the present succession law is that neither the Speaker of the House nor the President pro tem of the Senate nor the members of the Cabinet — all of whom could succeed to the Presidency—have been chosen with that in mind. Certainly a man could make an excellent Speaker of the House or a President pro tem of the Senate and yet not be qualified for the Presidency. The same is true of individual Cabinet members.

A Constitutional amendment could also give Congress a free hand to pick the man best fitted for the office, whether or not he was a member of Congress itself.

None of the amendments to the Constitution which thus far been proposed covers all the contingencies that may arise when there is a vacancy in the office of either the President or the Vice-President. For it could conceivably happen that both a President and a Vice President would die early in a Presidential term. Certainly the American people under such circumstances ought to have a chance to vote directly on the choice of a President. A Constitutional amendment could require a mid-term election for President and Vice President coincident with the regular Congressional elections held every two years.

But even this might seem fair in a situation where a new President had succeeded to the office a year and a half after his predecessor was inaugurated. It would not leave much time for the new Chief Executive to make a record on which the people could pass judgment. As a matter of fact, President Lyndon Johnson will hardly have an opportunity to do more than carry out some of the policies of his predecessor, without really giving evidence that would be convincing to all voters on what his own policies will be. Many observers are already saying that the "real Johnson" will emerge after the election and not between now and November.

Perhaps the weakest feature in the whole system of succession now is the present law of Congress which prescribes that members of the Cabinet in a certain order may succeed to the Presidency. It would be a simple matter to amend the law so that a Vice-President would be chosen of Cabinet members, but this is perhaps the most unsatisfactory method of all. For most of the members of the Cabinet are picked not because of their ability to lead the nation but because they are supposed to be particularly qualified in the departments they are to head. Many a man has been Secretary of State who knows foreign policy intimately and is a good administrator, but who would be unfamiliar with the legislative and administrative problems involving domestic issues. As a matter of fact, the evidence points strongly to a great weakness in the whole American system Members of the Cabinet are department heads, but they are not necessarily good advisers. Recent Presidents have turned to unofficial advisers who really have the most influence in shaping the couse taken by the White House.

If a Presidential Cabinet, moreover, were responsive directly to the people, as under a parliamentary system, it would mean the selection of more persons who are familiar with all phases of national and international affairs, and then it would be logical to put members of the Cabinet in the line of succession.

A FULL DOLLAR'S WORTH

The Department of Audit and Control is giving state financial records the closest examination in state history.

A new auditing method currently used by the federal government and private industry has been put to use in New York State for the first time.

According to the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, a state-wide tax research organization that has reviewed some two dozen of the completed audits, wastes of taxpayers' money have been turned up that previously would have gone unchecked.

Past audits did no more than "check the books." This "in-depth" audit, as it is called goes beyond the balance sheet into the actual fiscal operation of departments, agencies and state-run institutions. The auditors recommend ways of avoiding waste and of achieving tighter fiscal control.

The wastes uncovered range from overstocking of goods, purchasing at full list prices when quantity discounts were available, avoidance of non-competive bidding and so on.

Multiplying these thousands of dollars in wastes by the number of state departments, agencies, authorities and institutions, the total can add up to millions of dollars of taxpayers money just thrown away.

The size of state spending requires a business-type audit to make sure that a full dollar's worth of goods and services is received for every tax dollar spent.

AIRLINE PILOTS NEEDED

For years, one of the most exclusive professions in the world has been that of airline pilot.

Unless a man was fortunate enough to get his training at government expense or was rich enough to buy the equivalent, he had little chance of taking up this career.

Air travel came into its own after World War II and the airlines drew heavily from a reservoir of thoroughly trained and experienced ex-Air Force pilots. The same held true with the coming of the jets after the Korean War.

Now for the first time, a young man need not have thousands of multiengine hours in his log book before applying. He must be a licensed pilot, for the airlines do not yet give primary training, but he can have as few as 200 hours.

The airlines will need more than 1,000 new pilots within the next few years and they are prepared to spend $10,000 to $20,000 on advanced training for every one of them.

The reason is twofold: More new planes are going into service, especially the smaller, short-haul jets; and the veterans are aging. (Mandatory retirement age is 60; one airline alone will lose over 200 senior pilots within the next eight years.)

Cost of obtaining the necessary couple hundred hours is not small, but the investment is sound. Senior jet captains can make more than $30,000 a year.

BETTER U.S. 'MEERSCHAUM'

Here's good news for loose-ended, ex-cigarette smokers and/or secret admirers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allen Dulles, Norman Rockwell, Bennett Cerf and a number of others:

The Corn Industries Foundation has announced the results of scientific project MO Pipe 12. Put in simple terms for the layman, it means that better corncob pipes are in the offing.

MO Pipe 12 is a new hybrid corn with an exceptionally hard cob that was developed by Dr. Marcus S. Zuber at the University of Missouri. It is perhaps the greatest breakthrough in the field since 1869, when a Missouri farmer named John Scharnke had the first pipe bowl fashioned from a corncob.

Only three companies in the nation make corncob pipes, and because only Missouri bottomlands seem able to produce the quality cobs needed, they have made Washington, Mo., the corncob capital of the world.

They are currently speculating on what would happen if they could get women interested in corncob pipes.

NEEDED, SOFT-HEARTED MEN WITH HARD HEADS

When conservatives scoff at President Lyndon Johnson for talking up a crusade against poverty, they are making a tactical mistake. For it seemingly puts them into the camp of the hard-hearted, and the hard hearts haven't won a big election in the United States in years. What the conservatives should do is to praise Johnson for raising the issue of poverty, and then go on to explain why the problem must be tackled, not by grandiose federal plans for regions extending over many states, but locally, on a town by town and plant by plant basis.

Any general federalese plan for Appalachia, for example, must fail because the Pittsburgh area of Pennsylvania is one thing and the West Virginia and Kentucky soft coal fields are another, while the hard coal region of eastern Pennsylvania is still a third. The industrial woes of the Pittsburgh area have been beautifully analyzed by my friend Harold Ruttenberg, who, in his varied career, has been a statistician and organizer for the United Steelworkers Union and a money-making steelmaster and manufacturer of drilling equipment. In a devastating summary which he has just sent to me, Mr. Ruttenberg shows why the currently fetishistic process of industry-wide collective bargaining fails. The inevitable result of "cosmic" bargaining is to strand and put out of business smaller, specialized companies which can neither afford to automate nor to move away. This snowballs the unemployment problem. The situation can hardly be improved by "retraining" displaced workers, for what are they to be retrained for? A high-cost area does not create new businesses to absorb retrained workers. The retraining program is another classic example of cart-before-horse thinking.

The attempt by union management "industry-wide" collective bargainers to apply a United States Steel Corporation formula to all steel companies wreaks havoc for smaller metal-working plants which cannot afford thirteen-week vacations, sabbaticals, expensive fringe benefits, and high overtime pay. It even hurts the less efficient divisions of U. S. Steel. Going up and down the valleys of the Pittsburgh area, Mr. Ruttenberg has discovered that 80 metal-working plants, once employing 40,000 people, have gone out of existence since the war. Some 10 million square feet of empty industrial buildings stand waiting for new tenants. Whole towns such as Donora have met with disaster because of union insistence on "stretch-out" work practices that are akin to railroad feather-bedding. But management, says Mr. Ruttenberg, is often just as much to blame as labor, for it has failed to prove a sincere willingness to tackle the job of substituting plant-by-plant productivity formulas for overall union-management contracts.

Mr. Ruttenberg defines automation as a distortion of technological improvement that has been forced by "stretched-out costs." Companies resort to automation whenever good union men, with the consent of a management that wants no direct trouble with labor, contrive to run a plant operation below its "design capacity." Rather than run head-on into the union, management prefers to "redesign" capacity to get rid of men entirely. But this sort of thing runs into money, and employers who can't raise the capital for it often dodge the problem by moving from Pennsylvania to North Carolina or by selling out to "liquidation" companies and reinvesting their capital in government bonds.

Mr. Ruttenberg's recipe for saving the Pittsburgh area is to apply new "Donora formula," which was spontaneously demanded by workers in the Donora area when U. S. Steel closed down many of its facilities in the town and moved out. The "Donora formula" is to take each plant as "a closed society of its own," to forget national "norms," and to negotiate wage-and-fringe-benefit demands on a productivity basis that accounts for the circumstances of the shop and the local community. Some plants have been saved by this approach: others, failing to get into the spirit of the "Donora formula," have simply stumbled into closing.

Poverty is a blight upon the nation. But Mr. Ruttenberg proves brilliantly that the cure of poverty is, more often than not, a purely local issue.

Presidential Succession: Picking a Vice-President

It is true that he would be submitting the nomination to Congress for its consent, but the Senate and House would have no voice in selecting the man to be voted on and would merely have to acquiesce in or reject the nomination.

It is being argued that a President who has just taken office on the death of his predecessor can speak for the country. But it is not characteristic of representative government to allow any one man to pick a leading executive. If it is not considered feasible to have a special election by the people to choose a Vice President, the next best way is to allow the people's representatives in Congress to do the electing.

The real difficulty is that Congress may be of one political party in the middle of a Presidential term while the Chief Executive may have been elected earlier as the nominee of another political party.

Every President is chosen for a four-year term, but this doesn't mean that the people continuously approve his performance throughout the four years. In fact, the election in the middle of his term of a majority in Congress of the opposite party is often a clear indication of the public's disapproval of an Administration's policies and of a desire of the people for a change.

A Constitutional amendment could provide that each party in Congress shall make a single nomination and that the President himself shall make an additional nomination of his own, and that the two Houses in joint session shall elect as Vice President the one considered by a majority of both Houses to be the best qualified of the three nominees.

The trouble with the present succession law is that neither the Speaker of the House nor the President pro tem of the Senate nor the members of the Cabinet — all of whom could succeed to the Presidency—have been chosen with that in mind. Certainly a man could make an excellent Speaker of the House or a President pro tem of the Senate and yet not be qualified for the Presidency. The same is true of individual Cabinet members.

A Constitutional amendment could also give Congress a free hand to pick the man best fitted for the office, whether or not he was a member of Congress itself.

None of the amendments to the Constitution which thus far been proposed covers all the contingencies that may arise when there is a vacancy in the office of either the President or the Vice-President. For it could conceivably happen that both a President and a Vice President would die early in a Presidential term. Certainly the American people under such circumstances ought to have a chance to vote directly on the choice of a President. A Constitutional amendment could require a mid-term election for President and Vice President coincident with the regular Congressional elections held every two years.

But even this might seem fair in a situation where a new President had succeeded to the office a year and a half after his predecessor was inaugurated. It would not leave much time for the new Chief Executive to make a record on which the people could pass judgment. As a matter of fact, President Lyndon Johnson will hardly have an opportunity to do more than carry out some of the policies of his predecessor, without really giving evidence that would be convincing to all voters on what his own policies will be. Many observers are already saying that the "real Johnson" will emerge after the election and not between now and November.

Perhaps the weakest feature in the whole system of succession now is the present law of Congress which prescribes that members of the Cabinet in a certain order may succeed to the Presidency. It would be a simple matter to amend the law so that a Vice-President would be chosen of Cabinet members, but this is perhaps the most unsatisfactory method of all. For most of the members of the Cabinet are picked not because of their ability to lead the nation but because they are supposed to be particularly qualified in the departments they are to head. Many a man has been Secretary of State who knows foreign policy intimately and is a good administrator, but who would be unfamiliar with the legislative and administrative problems involving domestic issues. As a matter of fact, the evidence points strongly to a great weakness in the whole American system Members of the Cabinet are department heads, but they are not necessarily good advisers. Recent Presidents have turned to unofficial advisers who really have the most influence in shaping the couse taken by the White House.

If a Presidential Cabinet, moreover, were responsive directly to the people, as under a parliamentary system, it would mean the selection of more persons who are familiar with all phases of national and international affairs, and then it would be logical to put members of the Cabinet in the line of succession.

Perfume was used in the Bronze Age. The passion to please the nose may go back further, but it antedates the early Egyptian dynasties. It was used by the Chinese as religious incense, 8,000 years ago. Today, the perfume business is more sophisticated. The men of the world spend five hundred million dollars each year to make their women smell like flowers.

Half of this is spent in the United States for one-third of the perfume. Bottled scents are cheaper in other countries. In all, about 235,000 gallons are sold each year. The man who knows as much as any one in the world about perfume is Edouard Cournand, head of Lanvin. He is 67, bald, gallant and sits in an odorless office on 5th Avenue, New York.

He has a heavy French accent, but he thinks well in English. He is the author of that slogan: "Promise her anything, but give her Arpege." He also designed the big black cat surrounded by white kittens—the one which advertises My Sin. This requires a saucy, naughty mind, and Monsieur Cournand has it.

Good perfumes cost about $25 an ounce, and are sold in quarter-ounce containers (purse size); ½ oz.; 1 oz. and 2 oz. sizes. In France, M. Cournand says, the sensible man buys the 1 oz. size for his wife, and the 2 oz. size for his mistress. Different perfumes, of course, because the man is sufficiently confused before he shops for scents.

In Latin, "per" is by, and "fume" is smoke or fumes. It wasn't until Cleopatra's time that perfumes were taken out of the temple and put in the boudoir. The Egyptians said it gave a "lift" to the state of mind." In those days, perfumes were made by plucking roses and water lilies at night, and placing the bruised petals in warm oil.

The Romans may have been victims of Cleopatra's perfumes, but they learned what to do with it. They used many varieties of flowers to make lovely odors; roses, gardenias, lavender, violets, jasmine. Still, when the Roman Empire fell, so did prefume. There is no mention of it in any history between the time of Caligula and the reign of Francis I.

A group of Italian noblemen, visiting the King of France, made perfume for their own use. The King was enchanted. He ordered a perfume shop opened in Paris in 1525. Once LaBelle France got in the perfume business, it never relinquished its lead. Perfumes evaporate quickly, and Frenchmen had to find ways of keeping the precious drops.

English silversmiths made airtight vials; Frenchmen in Limoges designed attractive bottles from native rock crystal. Limogenes also made enamel jars. Cleopatra put perfume in the boudoir, but Madame DuBarry put it on the woman. She said she desired to create a certain response in a man.

She wore a ring with a snip of felt in it. She dampened the felt in percious perfume. When her hand was kissed, the kisser frequently fell on his. Madame also wore a long necklace with a hollow crystal dangling at dead center. This was kept full of perfume.

By the time Napoleon arrived, he was mad about guns and odors. He wanted every room of the palace sprayed with perfume. His perfumers were the first to lighten the perfume oil with alcohol, thus permitting it to be sprayed on drapes and clothing without stain. The emporer also commanded Faberge to make a bottle of perfume and use a $4,000 ruby as a stopper.

Edouard Cournand recently bought that one for his wife. In the post-Napoleonic era, Frenchmen began, for the first time, to blend one floral scent with another. Soon, they were inventing whole bouquets in one perfume. At the turn of the century, Madame Lanvin bought a floral painting by Renoir. She asked Fraysse, a chemist, to look at it. He did.

"Now," she said, "Make a perfume for me which says the same as the painting." Fraysse worked hard, and long. When he completed his work, he permitted Madam Lanvin to smell it. "Exactly," she said. She named it Arpege, from the word arpeggio, a musical chord played in rapid sequence.

Around 1917, the French began to make abstract perfumes, a blending of natural floral odor with pleasing chemical odors. The two most popular are Blue Hour, by Guerlain, and My Sin, by Lanvin. Some perfumes were found to be better in the synthetic state than in the natural.

The making of perfume is tedious. Take simple jasmine: Step one is to cut the jasmine at night, because it has moisture at that time; (2) the flowers are distilled by steaming, and carrying the fragrance off into coils; (3) the scent is reduced to pure oil or wax; (4) it is melted to get the concentrated odor; (5) it is mixed with ambergris and alcohol, strring once a day for weeks; (6) impurities are filtered out; (7) the residue is frozen; (8) it is put into worn perfume vats for months to acquire an old scent as well as the new; (9) it is bottled.

It is expensive. But, men, it's worth it, not for what it does for her, but for what it can do for you . . .

Stakes Too High to Let Economy Falter in 1960s

EDITOR'S NOTE — Ways of forcing economic growth are being readied in case the 1960s turn balky. In this, the last of five articles on the decade, Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, tells how high the stakes are.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Many are saying that one way or another the 1960s will have to be made to soar. They reason that industry, labor, government, all realize that the stakes are now too high, the perils of a snowballing downturn from current heights just too great, to let the economy falter.

Disappointment to Some

How things look today depends on where you sit. For many, the times are good and likely to get better. For a few, the 1960s are a growing disappointment—dimming chances of finding work, a widening gap between the affluent and the poor. For most, perhaps, the 60s are still a tossup.

A steel executive can say, "Steel has turned the corner and the outlook is on the brighter side." Another can predict the cost of making steel will drop $30 to $40 a ton by 1970 from today's average of $152, which might give foreign competitors pause.

An electric utilities spokesman thinks "a period of striking growth could be at hand." He sees last year's outlay of $3 billion for expansion becoming $6 billion a year by 1970.

Fear Competition

Makers of consumer goods count on an increasing population for larger markets. Merchants expect retail sales to go on climbing, but they fear competition will be rougher—maybe many small stores forced out of business, small towns losing out to shopping centers.

Many in the financial markets are betting that the present upswing, now three years old, can be extended to a record five years. They look to the tax cut to give the needed nudge this year, and to pyramiding effects from that to keeep things going through 1965.

And then what?

Some anticipate big new spending programs at various government levels—for area redevelopment as part of a fight on poverty, for mass transit, for urban renewal. Corporate executives believe government is readier now to tailor taxing and spending more to the encouragement of private investment.

An easier monetary policy, joined with increased household formations, is predicted to widen the demand for new construction and more appliances and services.

Job Outlook Sticky

But there's the rub. There will be ever more people to compete for each job and every dollar.

There will be 13 million more candidates for jobs at the end of the decade than at the start. If jobs don't increase faster than they are increasing now, the unemployment rate will rise from 5.5 per cent to 7 per cent of the labor force. That's why many think that despite today's opposition to cutting the work week to 35 hours some shortening will be forced before the decade ends.

Stock prices have beeen pushed to present heights partly out of confidence in coming economic growth. A setback could crack this confidence — both of stock traders and of the public in general. That's another reason so much effort is being spent to devise ways to keep the '60s climbing.

Majority opinion right now seems to be that the 1960s will end well ahead of their starting point on most counts. The question is: Far enough ahead? And can the goal be reached without any marked or crippling slowdown along the way?

Almost no one believes that the 1960s will end as the 1920s did—in a crash. The cautious think the climb will be sedate, problem - strewn but disaster-free. Many are convinced that before the '60s end they will really be soaring by today's standards.

State Building Burns, Damage Is $500,000

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A $500,000 fire Thursday destroyed a State Public Works Department shop building. Heavy equipment housed in the building also was destroyed.

No one was injured. Shop workers were at lunch when the fire broke out.

The cause of the fire was not determined. However, fire officials said it was believed to have started in a wooden roof in an area where welders had been working earlier in the day.

Joseph Clintsman, maintenance superintendent, estimated the damage.

The wrecked 24,000-square-foot brick structure contained three cranes, threee tractors, two bulldozers, two trucks and other equipment.

The shop complex services department equipment for a seven-county district that encompasses Onondaga, Cayuga, Cortland, Oswego, Tompkins, Seneca and Wayne counties.

Court Rules Keogh Entitled to Pension

NEW YORK (AP)—The Appellate Division ruled today that former Brooklyn Supreme Court Justice J. Vincent Keogh, convicted in 1962 of conspiring to obstruct justice by attempting to influence a federal judge, is entitled to a city pension of approximately $4,000 a year.

The Appellate Division held that Keogh was a valid member of the city retirement system when he applied for a pension on June 19, 1962, since he was not sentenced until August 2, 1962.

Jury Is Excused But Hoffa's Side Continues Battle

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa's lawyers make a last-ditch effort today to knock the props from the government's jury - tampering case against the Teamsters Union president.

With the jury excused until the start of final arguments — probably Monday — the defense planned to renew its attempt to throw out the testimony of Edward G. Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., teamsters official who became the chief witness against Hoffa.

Testimony in the six-week-old trial was completed Thursday, but U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Wilson agreed to allow a hearing on the Partin matter before calling in the jury for an estimated two days of final arguments.

The jury could begin deliberations by Tuesday night or Wednesday.

Hoffa and five others on trial are accused of trying to fix the jury that heard his 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashvillle. That trial ended with a deadlocked jury and a mistrial.

In six days in the witnesss chair, Partin linked Hoffa and four of those on trial with him to alleged attempts to bribe two jurors and a prospective juror in the conspiracy trial.

The defense, in arguing that Partin's testimony should be surpressed, contend it stemmed from an illegal act: recoding of two telephone conversations between Partin and Hoffa.

Hundreds Show After Appeal of Cyprus Leader

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Hundreds of Greek Cypriots lined up at police stations today in answer to President Makarios' appeal for volunteers for a special 5,000-man police force.

The force will legalize thousands of Greek Cypriot irregulars, many of them remnants of the old Eoka underground which fought for independence from the British.

As applications were accepted three days after Makarios announced creation of the force, Vice President Fazil Kuchuk, leader of the Turkish Cypriot minority, called the move "an attempt to give legality to Greek terrorist hordes."

As a member of the government, Kuchuk said the force could not be ordered without his approval. Since the renewed outbreak of communal fighting last December, Turkish Cypriot ministers have boycotted the Cyprus Ministerial Council, leaving the government in the hands of Makarios and the Greek Cypriot majority.

The Turkish Cypriots also have irregulars under arms—about 1,000 men.

The special force would swell Makarios' official strength to 6,470 men, slightly less than the British peace-Keeping contingent on Cyprus.

Even more ominous from the Turkish Cypiot viewpoint is an estimated force of 30,000 Greek Cypriot irregulars, many of them organized into vigilante gangs.

Makarios began formation of his new force as the U.N. Security Council was under new pressure to provide an international peace team and mediator for Cyprus.

In New York, diplomatic sources at U.N. headquarters said a resolution may come before the council this weekend.

Starr on Probation

Jesse Starr, 28, of 212 Hasbrouck Avenue, who had pleaded guilty to a third degree assault charge lodged Feb. 20, was given a suspended sentence of 60 days in jail and was placed on probation not to exceed three years, in city court today. He was arrested by Officer Anthony Turck, who said Starr had assaulted him when he and Officer John Crespino were dispatched to investigate Starr's complaint that he was having trouble with another man.

Riggins Buys Diner

The Elm Diner at Greenkill Avenue and Wall Street, has been sold by Francis J. O'Neill of 84 St. James Street, to Kenneth and Helen Riggins of Sunset Park, it was learned today. The Riggins will take over the diner as of March 1. O'Neill purchased the former State Diner which was located at Broadway and E. St. James Streets, and in 1959 he moved it to its present location and operated it as the Elm Diner.

Drivers Fined

Frank P. Keyser, 22, of RD 1, Hannacroix, N. Y., admitted a recent traffic signal violation in city court today, and was fined $10. Leo J. Helmbold, 63, of 22 Shufeldt Street, charged with maneuvering his car through lowered gates at the Foxhall Avenue crossing Thursday, pleaded guilty and was fined $5. The summons was issued by Officer Thomas Coffey.

organizations as the 50 Club, Beta Sigma Phi, Jayncees, Welcome Wagon, Saugerties Columbiettes, the Sullivan County DOKK's, the DAR the Junior League and Kingston Kiwanis Club," Mrs. Peck said.

Also praised was the special work of retired Kingston Fire Department Captain Edward (Yank) Albrecht, "whose many contributions range from carpentry to toys, lollypops and roses." Other "civic generosity" noted in Mrs. Peck's report was the trip of 42 children to the famous Albany Circus, made possible by the Ulster County Shrine Club; an outing at the Catskill Game Farm, made possible by Mr. and Mrs Burhans and the annual Christmas party sponsored by the Kingston Junior League and Kiwanis Club.

Marshals Hunt 2 Baker Witnesses, Case on Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee canceled plans for a hearing today in its investigation of former Senate aide Bobby Baker's business dealings while U.S. marshals hunted two missing witnesses.

The committee had hoped to question Edward Levinson, a Las Vegas, Nev., hotel owner and gambling figure, and Benjamin Sigelbaum, a Miami, Fla., real estate operator. But its subpoenas haven't caught up with them.

L.P. McClendon, the committee's special counsel, said U.S. marshals have been asked to find the men.

He told newsmen he had no conclusive proof that Levinson and Sigelbaum were evading the committee's subpoenas.

The committee has received testimony that the men helped with stock purchases and loans to finance the Serv-U Corp., a vending machine company in which Baker is a major but unlisted stockholder.

Serv-U, doing most of its business with West Coast defense contractors, has become a focal point in the investigation of Baker's accumulation of wealth while he was secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority.

Baker resigned under fire from his $19,600-a-year Senate post last Oct. 7 after a $300,000 damage suit by a local vending machine company raised questions about his outside business dealings.

The committee will resume public hearings Monday.

Girl Scout Office Moves to New Site

The Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts office has changed its location to larger quarters in the Scholar Building, Broadway with entrance at 1 Van Buren Street.

The move from 290 Fair Street was necessitated by the expanding activities of the council. The new headquarters will provide meeting facilities as well as office space.

Simple Service Is Held for Author Of Peyton Place

LACONIA, N.H. (AP)—With the approval of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, a simple funeral service was held Thursday for author Grace Metalious.

Her first husband, George Metalious; her father, Charles de Repentigny, and her three children were among the two dozen at the funeral home service insisted upon by her family.

The service conducted by the Rev. John Morrison of the Federated Church of Gilmanton, Mrs. Metalious' home town.

One of two wills filed for probate had stipulated that there be no funeral, and that the body of the 39-year - old author of "Peyton Place" be given to Dartmouth or Harvard Medical School. That was the will signed on the eve of her death Tuesday in a Boston hospital, naming a colllaborator-friend, John Rees, as sole heir to the estate which has been estimated as high as a million dollars.

The other will, drawn in 1958, left the estate to her three children — Marsha Dupuis, 20; Christopher, 17, and Cynthia, 13.

The children's counsel noted that the eyes had been given to the Boston Eye Bank, as asked in the later will, but that both Harvard and Dartmouth had refused the body in deference to the wishes of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Maier recently entertained as dinner guests her mother, Mrs. Bertha Shiner and her brother, Robert Thompson of Passaic, N. J.

Woman Critical At Albany From Lighter Mishap

Mrs. Kenneth M. Branigan, 54, of 66 West O'Reilly Street, who suffered third degree burns of the body, head and face in a lighter fluid mishap at her home late Thursday morning, was reported in critical condition today at the Albany Medical Center.

Capt. Robert W. Hardwick, who investigated for the fire department, said he was told the burns involve some 50 per cent of the body.

Mrs. Branigan, it was reported, was in an upstairs room filling a lighter shortly after 11:30 a. m., when the can of fluid exploded. Mr. Branigan downstairs, heard her scream ran up to the room, wrapped her in a blanket, and rolled her on the floor. He then rushed her to the Kingston Hospital emergency room.

A Fatum ambulance took her to the Albany Hospital early yesterday afternoon.

Capt. Hardwick said both upper and lower extremities of the body were involved.

Says Bob Hope's Son First Choice Of Kidnap Plot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As Frank Sinatra Jr., waited in a nearby witnesss room, an FBI agent testified in federal court that the son of Bob Hope — not young Sinatra—was first choice of a kidnap plot.

FBI Agent Emmett Murphy testified Thursday that Barry Keenan told him that he first thought of abducting Tony Hope, 23, Harvard law student, but quickly abandoned the idea.

Murphy quoted Keenan as saying "'Bob Hope was such a good American and had done so much in entertaining the troops, this shouldn't be done to Bob Hope."

Keenan later told a newsman that he and Tony Hope were once school chums in St. John's Military Academy in suburban Chatsworth.

In Las Vegas, Nev., the senior Hope said of the testimony, "It's a terrible thing. I guess if it had happened, I would have followed the same routine as Frank (Sr.)."

In another disclosure, FBI Agent Robert E. Russelll quoted defendant Joseph Amsler as saying that the original Sinatra kidnap plot was sqheduled the night of Nov. 22, 1963 — the night of President Kennedy's assassination.

Russell quoted Amsler as saying the assasssination so upset John Irwin, the third defendant, that the whole thing was called offf.

Keenan and Amsler, both 23, and Irwin, 42, are accused of kidnaping the 20-year-old son of the singing star from his Lake Tahoe motel room last Dec. 8.

Frank Jr., was returned unharmed to his mother's home in Bel-Air after his father paid $240,000 ransom.

LA Offer Final

Reports Koufax May Quit Over Contract Hassle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ace pitcher Sandy Koufax is locked in a contract dispute with the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers that could cause him to quit baseball, the Herald-Examiner said today.

He reportedly is considering a lucrative outside business offer.

The club has made a final offer of $65,0000, up $30,000 from last year, but believes it would take $90,000 to satisfy him, it was reported. By contrast Don Drysdale, the club's other ace who has several years seniority on Koufax, received something over $70,000, highest ever for a Dodger.

Fire Truck Due Today

A $37,000 American LaFrance aerial platform ladder truck purchased by the City of Poughkeepsie, was scheduled to be delivered to the fire department in that city at about 4 p. m. today. It was shipped from Elmira this morning. The new truck, reportedly the only aerial platform fire apparatus of its type in this section of the Hudson Valley, is equipped with a basket apparatus on a 90-foot hydraulic boon.

To Check Rail Violence

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The FBI will send a chief inspector and a force of 30 agents to crack down on violence in the Florida East Coast Railway strike. The action was sparked by presidential command following the dynamiting of a train near where President Johnson was speaking.

Call Taunts Police

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — While President Johnson was visiting the Miami area Thursday, a man who reportedly threatened his life was sought by police at the request of the Secret Service.

Two visits to his home failed to locate him but he telephoned police a taunt in betweentimes, the Miami Herald said. Officers declined to name the man.

Honesty Pays?

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Monroe Harris' $9,000 worth of honesty didn't pay very much.

Harris, 43, a Pontiac trusty serving a 90-day disorderly conduct sentence at Oakland County Jail, found a canvas bag containing $9,000 while he was washing a sheriff's patrol car Thursday.

Harris turned in the money, which had been overlooked in transferring cash from one branch bank to another.

Told of Harris' honesty, Judge Cecil McCallum ordered him freed right then. Harris' sentence would have run out anyway Monday.

Sodomy Thrown Out

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—An appeals court has overturned the first-degree sodomy conviction of John (The Bear) English and ordered a new trial for the alleged leader of a kangaroo court at the Onondaga County Penitentiary.

The Appellate Division, Fourth Department, last December reversed the convictions of two men tried with English.

As in the two previous cases, the court held Thursday that the October 1962 verdict in Syracuse had been against the weight of the evidence.

Jury Is Excused But Hoffa's Side Continues Battle

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa's lawyers make a last-ditch effort today to knock the props from the government's jury - tampering case against the Teamsters Union president.

With the jury excused until the start of final arguments — probably Monday — the defense planned to renew its attempt to throw out the testimony of Edward G. Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., teamsters official who became the chief witness against Hoffa.

Testimony in the six-week-old trial was completed Thursday, but U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Wilson agreed to allow a hearing on the Partin matter before calling in the jury for an estimated two days of final arguments.

The jury could begin deliberations by Tuesday night or Wednesday.

Hoffa and five others on trial are accused of trying to fix the jury that heard his 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville. That trial ended with a deadlocked jury and a mistrial.

In six days in the witnesss chair, Partin linked Hoffa and four of those on trial with him to alleged attempts to bribe two jurors and a prospective juror in the conspiracy trial.

The defense, in arguing that Partin's testimony should be surpressed, contend it stemmed from an illegal act: recoding of two telephone conversations between Partin and Hoffa.

Hundreds Show After Appeal of Cyprus Leader

By ALEX EFTY

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Hundreds of Greek Cypriots lined up at police stations today in answer to President Makarios' appeal for volunteers for a special 5,000-man police force.

The force will legalize thousands of Greek Cypriot irregulars, many of them remnants of the old Eoka underground which fought for independence from the British.

As applications were accepted three days after Makarios announced creation of the force, Vice President Fazil Kuchuk, leader of the Turkish Cypriot minority, called the move "an attempt to give legality to Greek terrorist hordes."

As a member of the government, Kuchuk said the force could not be ordered without his approval. Since the renewed outbreak of communal fighting last December, Turkish Cypriot ministers have boycotted the Cyprus Ministerial Council, leaving the government in the hands of Makarios and the Greek Cypriot majority.

The Turkish Cypriots also have irregulars under arms—about 1,000 men.

The special force would swell Makarios' official strength to 6,470 men, slightly less than the British peace-Keeping contingent on Cyprus.

Even more ominous from the Turkish Cypiot viewpoint is an estimated force of 30,000 Greek Cypriot irregulars, many of them organized into vigilante gangs.

Makarios began formation of his new force as the U.N. Security Council was under new pressure to provide an international peace team and mediator for Cyprus.

In New York, diplomatic sources at U.N. headquarters said a resolution may come before the council this weekend.

Starr on Probation

Jesse Starr, 28, of 212 Hasbrouck Avenue, who had pleaded guilty to a third degree assault charge lodged Feb. 20, was given a suspended sentence of 60 days in jail and was placed on probation not to exceed three years, in city court today. He was arrested by Officer Anthony Turck, who said Starr had assaulted him when he and Officer John Crespino were dispatched to investigate Starr's complaint that he was having trouble with another man.

Riggins Buys Diner

The Elm Diner at Greenkill Avenue and Wall Street, has been sold by Francis J. O'Neill of 84 St. James Street, to Kenneth and Helen Riggins of Sunset Park, it was learned today. The Riggins will take over the diner as of March 1. O'Neill purchased the former State Diner which was located at Broadway and E. St. James Streets, and in 1959 he moved it to its present location and operated it as the Elm Diner.

Drivers Fined

Frank P. Keyser, 22, of RD 1, Hannacroix, N. Y., admitted a recent traffic signal violation in city court today, and was fined $10. Leo J. Helmbold, 63, of 22 Shufeldt Street, charged with maneuvering his car through lowered gates at the Foxhall Avenue crossing Thursday, pleaded guilty and was fined $5. The summons was issued by Officer Thomas Coffey.

Mrs. Gunzelmann Serious

organizations as the 50 Club, Beta Sigma Phi, Jayncees, Welcome Wagon, Saugerties Columbiettes, the Sullivan County DOKK's, the DAR the Junior League and Kingston Kiwanis Club," Mrs. Peck said.

Also praised was the special work of retired Kingston Fire Department Captain Edward (Yank) Albrecht, "whose many contributions range from carpentry to toys, lollypops and roses." Other "civic generosity" noted in Mrs. Peck's report was the trip of 42 children to the famous Albany Circus, made possible by the Ulster County Shrine Club; an outing at the Catskill Game Farm, made possible by Mr. and Mrs Burhans and the annual Christmas party sponsored by the Kingston Junior League and Kiwanis Club.

Marshals Hunt 2 Baker Witnesses, Case on Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee canceled plans for a hearing today in its investigation of former Senate aide Bobby Baker's business dealings while U.S. marshals hunted two missing witnesses.

The committee had hoped to question Edward Levinson, a Las Vegas, Nev., hotel owner and gambling figure, and Benjamin Sigelbaum, a Miami, Fla., real estate operator. But its subpoenas haven't caught up with them.

L.P. McClendon, the committee's special counsel, said U.S. marshals have been asked to find the men.

He told newsmen he had no conclusive proof that Levinson and Sigelbaum were evading the committee's subpoenas.

The committee has received testimony that the men helped with stock purchases and loans to finance the Serv-U Corp., a vending machine company in which Baker is a major but unlisted stockholder.

Serv-U, doing most of its business with West Coast defense contractors, has become a focal point in the investigation of Baker's accumulation of wealth while he was secretary to the Senate's Democratic majority.

Baker resigned under fire from his $19,600-a-year Senate post last Oct. 7 after a $300,000 damage suit by a local vending machine company raised questions about his outside business dealings.

The committee will resume public hearings Monday.

KHS Winter Carnival Scheduled Saturday

This year's Winter Carnival arranged by Kingston High School students will take place Saturday afternoon and evening in the Kate Walton Field House.

Thirty clubs from the school have exhibits, booths and other carnival features ready for youngsters and adults, and hope those residing in the Kingston Consolidated School District will be there.

The afternoon show starts at 1:30 and the night program at 7:30, the latter featuring music by the Thunderbirds.

Proceeds for educational programs conducted by the clubs.

Saturday's during March the assessors will be at these designated firehouses: St. Remy, 9th; Rifton, 14th; Esopus 21st and town clerk's office, Port Ewen the 28th.

Girl Scout Office Moves to New Site

The Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts office has changed its location to larger quarters in the Scholar Building, Broadway with entrance at 1 Van Buren Street.

The move from 290 Fair Street was necessitated by the expanding activities of the council. The new headquarters will provide meeting facilities as well as office space.

Simple Service Is Held for Author Of Peyton Place

LACONIA, N.H. (AP)—With the approval of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, a simple funeral service was held Thursday for author Grace Metalious.

Her first husband, George Metalious; her father, Charles de Repentigny, and her three children were among the two dozen at the funeral home service insisted upon by her family.

The service conducted by the Rev. John Morrison of the Federated Church of Gilmanton, Mrs. Metalious' home town.

One of two wills filed for probate had stipulated that there be no funeral, and that the body of the 39-year - old author of "Peyton Place" be given to Dartmouth or Harvard Medical School. That was the will signed on the eve of her death Tuesday in a Boston hospital, naming a colllaborator-friend, John Rees, as sole heir to the estate which has been estimated as high as a million dollars.

The other will, drawn in 1958, left the estate to her three children — Marsha Dupuis, 20; Christopher, 17, and Cynthia, 13.

The children's counsel noted that the eyes had been given to the Boston Eye Bank, as asked in the later will, but that both Harvard and Dartmouth had refused the body in deference to the wishes of the family.

Mrs. Katie Davis, a lifelong resident of Krumville was feted on the occasion of her birthday Feb. 27.

Supervisor Lester S. Davis recently visited Joseph Burgher and Joseph Winkler who are patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald E. Davis of Olive Bridge were entertained Sunday at a family dinner party at the home of his step-mother, Mrs. William C. Davis of Tillson.

Mrs. Elizabeth Beidler is a patient at Benedictine Hospital where she underwent surgery.

Mrs. Howard Brunn of Brooklyn is spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. Walter J. Lang.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Woodcock, Mill Road, Olive Bridge residents, are spending the winter in a sanitarium at 160 Glenbrook Road, Stamford, Conn.

Frank Jordan and his sister, Mrs. Margaret Delamater held open house Sunday for neighbors and out-of-down friends.

Mrs. Alice Cruthers and Mrs. Belle Wood attended recent luncheon at the Governor Clinton Hotel honoring Mrs. Charles L. Wright, American Legion Auxiliary department president of New York State. The Ulster County Auxiliary arranged the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Maier recently entertained as dinner guests her mother, Mrs. Bertha Shiner and her brother, Robert Thompson of Passaic, N. J.

Woman Critical At Albany From Lighter Mishap

Mrs. Kenneth M. Branigan, 54, of 66 West O'Reilly Street, who suffered third degree burns of the body, head and face in a lighter fluid mishap at her home late Thursday morning, was reported in critical condition today at the Albany Medical Center.

Capt. Robert W. Hardwick, who investigated for the fire department, said he was told the burns involve some 50 per cent of the body.

Mrs. Branigan, it was reported, was in an upstairs room filling a lighter shortly after 11:30 a. m., when the can of fluid exploded. Mr. Branigan downstairs, heard her scream ran up to the room, wrapped her in a blanket, and rolled her on the floor. He then rushed her to the Kingston Hospital emergency room.

A Fatum ambulance took her to the Albany Hospital early yesterday afternoon.

Capt. Hardwick said both upper and lower extremities of the body were involved.

Says Bob Hope's Son First Choice Of Kidnap Plot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As Frank Sinatra Jr., waited in a nearby witnesss room, an FBI agent testified in federal court that the son of Bob Hope — not young Sinatra—was first choice of a kidnap plot.

FBI Agent Emmett Murphy testified Thursday that Barry Keenan told him that he first thought of abducting Tony Hope, 23, Harvard law student, but quickly abandoned the idea.

Murphy quoted Keenan as saying "'Bob Hope was such a good American and had done so much in entertaining the troops, this shouldn't be done to Bob Hope."

Keenan later told a newsman that he and Tony Hope were once school chums in St. John's Military Academy in suburban Chatsworth.

In Las Vegas, Nev., the senior Hope said of the testimony, "It's a terrible thing. I guess if it had happened, I would have followed the same routine as Frank (Sr.)."

In another disclosure, FBI Agent Robert E. Russelll quoted defendant Joseph Amsler as saying that the original Sinatra kidnap plot was sqheduled the night of Nov. 22, 1963 — the night of President Kennedy's assassination.

Russell quoted Amsler as saying the assasssination so upset John Irwin, the third defendant, that the whole thing was called offf.

Keenan and Amsler, both 23, and Irwin, 42, are accused of kidnaping the 20-year-old son of the singing star from his Lake Tahoe motel room last Dec. 8.

Frank Jr., was returned unharmed to his mother's home in Bel-Air after his father paid $240,000 ransom.

LA Offer Final

Reports Koufax May Quit Over Contract Hassle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ace pitcher Sandy Koufax is locked in a contract dispute with the World Series champion Los Angeles Dodgers that could cause him to quit baseball, the Herald-Examiner said today.

He reportedly is considering a lucrative outside business offer.

The club has made a final offer of $65,0000, up $30,000 from last year, but believes it would take $90,000 to satisfy him, it was reported. By contrast Don Drysdale, the club's other ace who has several years seniority on Koufax, received something over $70,000, highest ever for a Dodger.

Fire Truck Due Today

A $37,000 American LaFrance aerial platform ladder truck purchased by the City of Poughkeepsie, was scheduled to be delivered to the fire department in that city at about 4 p. m. today. It was shipped from Elmira this morning. The new truck, reportedly the only aerial platform fire apparatus of its type in this section of the Hudson Valley, is equipped with a basket apparatus on a 90-foot hydraulic boon.

To Check Rail Violence

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The FBI will send a chief inspector and a force of 30 agents to crack down on violence in the Florida East Coast Railway strike. The action was sparked by presidential command following the dynamiting of a train near where President Johnson was speaking.

Call Taunts Police

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — While President Johnson was visiting the Miami area Thursday, a man who reportedly threatened his life was sought by police at the request of the Secret Service.

Two visits to his home failed to locate him but he telephoned police a taunt in betweentimes, the Miami Herald said. Officers declined to name the man.

Honesty Pays?

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Monroe Harris' $9,000 worth of honesty didn't pay very much.

Harris, 43, a Pontiac trusty serving a 90-day disorderly conduct sentence at Oakland County Jail, found a canvas bag containing $9,000 while he was washing a sheriff's patrol car Thursday.

Harris turned in the money, which had been overlooked in transferring cash from one branch bank to another.

Told of Harris' honesty, Judge Cecil McCallum ordered him freed right then. Harris' sentence would have run out anyway Monday.

Sodomy Thrown Out

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—An appeals court has overturned the first-degree sodomy conviction of John (The Bear) English and ordered a new trial for the alleged leader of a kangaroo court at the Onondaga County Penitentiary.

The Appellate Division, Fourth Department, last December reversed the convictions of two men tried with English.

As in the two previous cases, the court held Thursday that the October 1962 verdict in Syracuse had been against the weight of the evidence.

Molina to Get Hearing Linked to Deportation

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Court of Appeals will hear arguments April 1 in the case of Francisco (The Hook) Molina, a convicted murderer deported to Cuba last year as part of an exchange for 21 Americans imprisoned in that country.

The state's highest court agreed Thursday to hear the appeal after Molina's attorney, before the court that failure to permit a review of the conviction would deny Molina the right of due process of law.

In other action Thursday the court:

—Ruled 4-3 that freight companies may legally deliver liquor that New York State residents had purchased abroad and shipped home for personal use. The decision overturned a lower court ruling that held that carriers legally could not make the law, deliveries of liquor from out of state could be made only to someone licensed to deal in liquor.

— Reversed the forgery conviction of Ernest Rainey of Buffalo on the ground a search warrant was invalid because it did not describe specifically and limit the premises to be searched. Evidence found in a shed and in Rainey's apartment was used in obtaining and indictment and in his trial.

—Upheld, 4-2, a lower court ruling that Mrs. Adelaide Jones of Brooklyn, who quit her job rather than have all her wages taken to satisfy a $140 federal income tax lien, is entitled to unemployment insurance.

Molina was convicted of second-degree murder in the shooting of a 9-year-old Venezuelan girl in a New York City restaurant in September 1960.

The girl was caught in an exchange of gunfire between supporters and opponents of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Molina was sentenced in June 1961 to serve 20 years to life in prison. Gov. Rockefeller commuted the sentence last April 22, at the request of federal authorities, and Molina was turned over to immigration officials for deportation.

The governor said he commuted the sentence on the understanding that if Molina ever returned to the United States he would go back to jail to complete his sentence.

Neuburger, in his argument yesterday, said Molina had not asked for commutation and had not consented to deportation.

In the liquor case, the court ruled on an appeal by Essenfeld Bros. Inc. and Railway Express Agency against the State Liquor Authority.

"It is our opinion," the majority said, "that, if a person is privileged to carry with him alcoholic beverages, he may not be prohibited, as the applicable provisions of the law now read, from accomplishing the same result by enlisting the services of a licensed trucker or carrier to do the carrying for him."

In its other decision, the Court of Appeals said Mrs. Jones had good cause to leave her job with Peter Pan Nursery Products Inc. in August 1961, after the Internal Revenue Service obtained the lien. She earned $49 a week at the time.

Albany Woman Cleared In Husband's Death

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Emma Mae Hines, a 26-year-old mother of three, has been cleared of a second-degree murder charge stemming from the shotgun death of her husband.

An Albany County Grand Jury Friday reported no bill after hearing testimony about the shooting of her husband, Donald, 24, in their home here Feb. 20.

Franklin P. Gavin, the woman's attorney, said he understood that Mrs. Hines told the grand jury that she had been beaten by her husband, that she picked up the shotgun in an attempt to scare him and it discharged accidentally.

Mrs. Hines weighs 76 pounds. Her husband stood 6-foot-1 and weighed 190 pounds.

In 1778, John Parke Curtis, stepson of George Washington, bought 1,100 acres along the Potomac River. He named the estate "Arlington" after an ancestral home in Virginia's Northampton County.

Sentence Suspended On Saugerties Man

A 21-year-old Saugerties man, Richard Joseph Green of Partition Street, was sentenced to a year in the county jail and execution of the sentence was suspended Thursday afternoon in County Court, after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of rape as a misdemeanor.

Green had been indicted under the felony section of the law but due to his good prior record and circumstances surrounding the alleged act, County Judge Raymond J. Mino accepted the guilty plea to the lesser charge.

The plea was also acceptable to the district attorney's office which was represented by Assistant District Attorney Francis Vogt.

Following disposition of the Green case Judge Mino adjourned the February term of court to chambers where later a Youthful Offender calendar will be disposed of.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's passion for rerunning old and middle-aged feature films at all hours of the day and night has had a curious effect on the career of Van Johnson.

Although he is 47 years old and has been an important motion picture star for 20 years, use of these elderly films has gained him a legion of young fans.

This Peter Pan status in television currently bugs Johnson who yearns for some interesting, meaty dramatic parts.

"Hell," said Johnson heatedly, "I'd sure like to do something in television from New York. But how do you get on shows like 'The Defenders,' 'The Nurses' or 'East Side, West Side?'

"'Maybe they think that I'd want $10,000 a crack, but I'd just like a good part. I'd pay them if they'd let me have it."

It isn't that Johnson has not had opportunities to do a television series.

"I turned down 'The Untouchables' when it was offered to me in Hollywood," he continued. "And I've never been sorry. Then—and now—I couldn't imagine driving to Desilu to work every day of my life."

The youthful-looking actor, recovered now from two successful operations for the removal of a malignancy, is not just looking for work. His film commitments call for one picture a year and he has a very successful nightclub act.

"There's lots of money in playing nightclubs," he said. "But my big problem is that, after all those years of working at MGM, I can't get used to staying up late. I still wake up at 6 o'clock—ready to go to work."

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

I was looking through some of my old items, and found two packages of fan mail. They were dated February 1950. They are not from old timers but from children of School No. 8 when I was invited there, by the late John J. Finerty, the principal. So much has happened in the past 14 years, that I remember the visit as something long ago and far away. I seldom if ever make such visits, and it was only because I could not refuse principal John J. Finerty, a friend of my father's and mine from way back. He used to help me in arithmetic when I was going to School No. 3, especially fractions were difficult for me.

In those days there was skating on the Rondout Creek, John Finerty was a good skater, and my father liked to skate so I used to skate. Mr. Finerty used to draw well also, and had a sense of humor, and he was one of the many interesting people who used to visit my father's drug store at 46 Broadway in the olden days.

The dates on most of these letters are: Feb. 9 and 10, 1950 and most of them are written very carefully and politely, thanking me for coming to school No. 8 and showing them pictures of old houses of Kingston, which they studied in social studies. Raymond Lawrence for instance ends his letter with: "I have collected some of your columns from the Freeman," for which I thank him. George Duffner, grade 7, wrote in part: "I want to thank you for coming to our school to talk about old buildings and many other interesting things. I hope you will come again to tell us some more of the history of our city. Sincerely Yours, George." I see he has "English" written at the top of the composition paper, so I take it the students all had the same assignment.

All the letters are dated and signed, and written very well, Donald East wrote: "Thank you for coming to School 8. I am glad you came because I learned a lot about the old houses and how they looked." The boys, I see, wrote short and sweet and to the point, while girls take more time and elaborate. Etta Brant, wrote a nice letter and mentions that they received a card from me, which was read in class, and she like others asks that I come again. I remember them as such nice polite children, now they are grown up themselves.

This from Betty Reilly, which I enjoyed again: "Our class enjoyed your coming to our school very much. We are interested very much in your colmns. Our class is studying about Kingston and the community. We are very much interested in scrap books. We are wondering who will find them one hundred years from now..." I remember, how most of the children had scrap books, with my columns neatly cut out and pasted in them. Estelle Fatum wrote in 1950—."We are drawing a picture on the front board and it is an old fashioned picture and now I know the styles and looks in the old fashioned days."

Arthur Kahrs wrote in part: "I also want to thank you for the autograph. I know more about my city now than I did before. I am interested in your articles you put in the paper." Will mention more about these letters written by the children of School No. 8 in 1950.

In some of the letters Leonora M. FitzGerald is mentioned as a teacher who I see is listed at 59 Ponckhockie Street. One package of letters arrived from Mrs. Edward S. Barrett of 318 Albany Avenue. She is Nellie T. Barrett of School No. 8. Myron Epstein also wrote me about his scrap book of "Do You Remember" items, and how he enjoyed the pictures I showed that day and told about early Kingston.

Goldwyn to Enter Television Field

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Samuel Goldwyn, the foxy giant of the movie world, has decided at the age of 80 to enter the television field.

Goldwyn announced this week that he has formed an organization to distribute his movies to television. He also said that he planned to go into production of films especially for television, still reserving the possibility he may make another feature film if he finds a project that excites him.

No Deals Yet

"'For years people have been asking me when they can see pictures like 'Best Years of Our Lives' and 'Pride of The Yankees' on television," he said. "I have always said I would not go into television until the time was right. Now I think the time is right.

"I have not yet made any deals with anyone. I will make the best deals I can. But I'm not giving up the theater business."

Concerning production of new films for television, Goldwyn remarked:

"I'm a ham. I'm an egotist. I have spent 50 years in this business building a name that meant quality, and I intend to protect it. I am not going into television to make a fast buck. Quantity is not important to me; I am seeking quality."

Goldwyn said: "The first thing I will do is hire two or three goood writers to work on scripts. Writing has always been the important thing with me.

Will Proceed Slowly

"I will go slowly. I've always done that. I usually made one or two pictures a year, sometimes none. Once I had Gary Cooper on salary for a whole year at $10,000 a week but I had no picture for him. Then one night my wife and I saw a newsreel of Lou Gehrig's farewell at the Yankee Stadium in New York. We both cried.

"'I told my wife, 'There's my next story for Gary Cooper.' 'But there is no story,' she said. I told her, 'I've got a third act, and that's what matters.'

"The first act is not so important to me; it's the finish that has always mattered. I like to know where I'm going.'"

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's passion for rerunning old and middle-aged feature films at all hours of the day and night has had a curious effect on the career of Van Johnson.

Although he is 47 years old and has been an important motion picture star for 20 years, use of these elderly films has gained him a legion of young fans.

This Peter Pan status in television currently bugs Johnson who yearns for some interesting, meaty dramatic parts.

"Hell," said Johnson heatedly, "I'd sure like to do something in television from New York. But how do you get on shows like 'The Defenders,' 'The Nurses' or 'East Side, West Side?'

"'Maybe they think that I'd want $10,000 a crack, but I'd just like a good part. I'd pay them if they'd let me have it."

It isn't that Johnson has not had opportunities to do a television series.

"I turned down 'The Untouchables' when it was offered to me in Hollywood," he continued. "And I've never been sorry. Then—and now—I couldn't imagine driving to Desilu to work every day of my life."

The youthful-looking actor, recovered now from two successful operations for the removal of a malignancy, is not just looking for work. His film commitments call for one picture a year and he has a very successful nightclub act.

"There's lots of money in playing nightclubs," he said. "But my big problem is that, after all those years of working at MGM, I can't get used to staying up late. I still wake up at 6 o'clock—ready to go to work."

Recommended weekend viewing:

Tonight—Bob Hope Theatre, NBC, 8:30-9:30 (Eastern Standard Time), Budd Schulberg's "Meal Ticket," about a retired prize fighter, with Cliff Robertson and Broderick Crawford; "Carol and Company," CBS, 10-11, repeat of Carol Burnett's special of last year, with Robert Preston.

Saturday—"Sage of Western Man," ABC, 7:30-8:30 p.m., Part III of a series, this time focused on events around 1898.

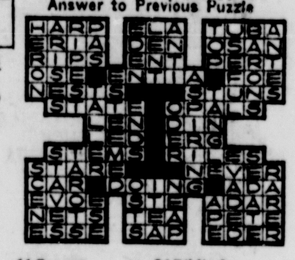

Sunday — "Britain: The Changing Guard," NBC, 10-11 p.m., documentary about the changing classs structure of the British Isles, with Joseph C. Harsch narrating.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

I was looking through some of my old items, and found two packages of fan mail. They were dated February 1950. They are not from old timers but from children of School No. 8 when I was invited there, by the late John J. Finerty, the principal. So much has happened in the past 14 years, that I remember the visit as something long ago and far away. I seldom if ever make such visits, and it was only because I could not refuse principal John J. Finerty, a friend of my father's and mine from way back. He used to help me in arithmetic when I was going to School No. 3, especially fractions were difficult for me.

In those days there was skating on the Rondout Creek, John Finerty was a good skater, and my father liked to skate so I used to skate. Mr. Finerty used to draw well also, and had a sense of humor, and he was one of the many interesting people who used to visit my father's drug store at 46 Broadway in the olden days.

The dates on most of these letters are: Feb. 9 and 10, 1950 and most of them are written very carefully and politely, thanking me for coming to school No. 8 and showing them pictures of old houses of Kingston, which they studied in social studies. Raymond Lawrence for instance ends his letter with: "I have collected some of your columns from the Freeman," for which I thank him. George Duffner, grade 7, wrote in part: "I want to thank you for coming to our school to talk about old buildings and many other interesting things. I hope you will come again to tell us some more of the history of our city. Sincerely Yours, George." I see he has "English" written at the top of the composition paper, so I take it the students all had the same assignment.

All the letters are dated and signed, and written very well, Donald East wrote: "Thank you for coming to School 8. I am glad you came because I learned a lot about the old houses and how they looked." The boys, I see, wrote short and sweet and to the point, while girls take more time and elaborate. Etta Brant, wrote a nice letter and mentions that they received a card from me, which was read in class, and she like others asks that I come again. I remember them as such nice polite children, now they are grown up themselves.

This from Betty Reilly, which I enjoyed again: "Our class enjoyed your coming to our school very much. We are interested very much in your colmns. Our class is studying about Kingston and the community. We are very much interested in scrap books. We are wondering who will find them one hundred years from now..." I remember, how most of the children had scrap books, with my columns neatly cut out and pasted in them. Estelle Fatum wrote in 1950—."We are drawing a picture on the front board and it is an old fashioned picture and now I know the styles and looks in the old fashioned days."

Arthur Kahrs wrote in part: "I also want to thank you for the autograph. I know more about my city now than I did before. I am interested in your articles you put in the paper." Will mention more about these letters written by the children of School No. 8 in 1950.

In some of the letters Leonora M. FitzGerald is mentioned as a teacher who I see is listed at 59 Ponckhockie Street. One package of letters arrived from Mrs. Edward S. Barrett of 318 Albany Avenue. She is Nellie T. Barrett of School No. 8. Myron Epstein also wrote me about his scrap book of "Do You Remember" items, and how he enjoyed the pictures I showed that day and told about early Kingston.

Bad Reaction on 'Enemy' Link

Johnson Is More Restrained Now in Criticizing Critics

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, criticized for the way he criticized his critics, is a little more restrained with them now. And his foreign policy for Southeast Asia sounds a little less ominous.

Earlier this month, after Republicans had jumped on his foreign policy, Johnson made an off-the-cuff talk to some government employes. He didn't mention Republicans.

But he hit at his critics as "'alarmists and people who like to jump on their government." He called them as "much of a problem as our other enemies'" and said "God forgive them, for they know not what they do."

He described them as "bellyachers" and told his listeners "we are a much beloved people throughout the world." He got a bad reaction, particularly for bracketing his critics "with our other enemies."'

The President took a much different line Thursday night in a speech to Democrats in Miami when he said "to those who cry havoc and shout for war, we must give understanding. We have always welcomed dissent. We would not muzzle disagreement."

He also took a tough line last week in a California speech—again without naming names—when he struck at those responsible for the guerrilla war against the American-backed government of South Viet Nam.

"Those engaged in external direction and supply," he said, "would do well to remember that this type of aggression is a deeply dangerous game."

Several things were left unclear. Was he aiming at the Chinese Reds for help given the North Vietnamese Reds? Was he just thinking of the North Vietnamese? Or was he hinting at a change in American policy in Viet Nam and a much fiercer war, perhaps carried into Communist territory?

Immediately his words were interpreted by some as indicating a tougher policy toward North Viet Nam, the beginning of American psychological warfare against it, and even that U.S. reprisals might be in store.

Then the Russians got into the act with a warning to this country not to extend the guerrilla war into Red territory. In such a case, they said, they would help the North Vietnamese. And, if they did, it might heal their split with Red China.

But it quickly began to appear that this administration didn't have any new policy on Viet Nam for it created a committee this week to examine the problem and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara is going there to examine it close-up.

And Thursday Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a news conference dumped cold water on any idea of invading North Viet Nam now. He said any question of carrying the war into Red territory "'is for the future.'"

This sounded much milder than Johnson's warning to those unnamed people that they were "playing a dangerous game."'

Book 'Fanny Hill' Declared Obscene

NEW YORK (AP)—The Supreme Court's Appellate Division banned the sale of "Fanny Hill" today, declaring the book was obscene.

The technical title of the book published in the 18th century is "'Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure'" but generations of Americans who have smuggled it into this country have called it "Fanny Hill."

The ban applies to all of New York State.

Youth, Thwarted In Love, Flushed Out of Attic

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A 17-year-old youth, thwarted in love, faced court action today after police flushed him from his attic stronghold amid gunfire and tear gas fumes.

Robert F. DeRoche, armed with a .22 caliber rifle, had held police at bay for 45 minutes Thursday before being forced from the attic by tear gas.

He was charged with first-degree assault.

Investigators said DeRoche, a high school dropout, had barricaded himself in the attic on Tuesday because his marriage plans were blocked by his parents.

They said DeRoche, a laborer, had fired two shots through the attic door and four other shots after police responded to a call from the youth's mother, Mrs. Raymond DeRoche, who said her son had declined to leave the attic.

Police returned the gunfire and numerous tear gas pellets.

Police said DeRoche, expecting that he would be confronted with tear gas, had stuck a vacuum cleaner hose out of an attic window to provide air. He also reportedly had rigged the family telephone so that he could listen in on conversations and had stocked the attic with food and 100 bullets.

Probe Airman's Death

ROME, N.Y. (AP)—An investigation was underway today in the death of an 18-year-old air policeman, found shot to death Thursday at his guard post at Griffiss Air Force Base.

Air Force officials said Airman 3.C. Edward J. Langin "died of a gunshot wound while performing routine guard duty. He was alone at his post at the time."

Langin was attached to the 416th Combat Defense Squadron at Griffiss. He had been in the Air Force since August and had been stationed at Griffiss since November.

Capitol News in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

HILSMAN SUCCESSOR: The Johnson administration's quest for a successor to Roger Hilsman as assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs is reported to have narrowed to a list of four candidates.

One of those is William P. Bundy, a key aide of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and brother of McGeorge Bundy, presidential adviser for national security affairs, sources reported.

Informants declined to identify the three other candidates for Hilsman's job but all were said to be experts on Asian affairs.

PACIFIC COMMANDER: Adm. Ulyssses S. Grant Sharp, chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet and specialist in strategic planning, reportedly will be given over-all command of the Pacific-Far Eastern area.

Sharp, informants said, will replace Adm. Harry D. Felt, who has headed the Unified Military Command in the Pacific for six years and reaches the mandatory retirement age of 62 this summer.

A native of Chinook, Mont., Sharp, 57, became fleet commander in the Pacific only last September after having served in the Pentagon as deputy chief of naval operations for plans.

ASSASSINATION PROBE: The Warren commisssion has completed hearing testimony of James Martin, who has been business agent for Mrs. Lee Harvey Oswald, without disclosing what he said.

Asked if the Dallas businessman had been a cooperative witness in the investigation of John F. Kennedy's assassination, commission general counsel J. Lee Rankin said only: "He responded to our questions."

Chief Justice Earl Warren, head of the commission, had said Martin was called because of his close association with the Oswald family after Kennedy was slain, Nov. 22 in Dallas, and Oswald was accused of the killling.

Kiwanians View Red Cross Film, Hear Snyder Talk

Down to Earth, a film concerning the American Red Cross, was shown to the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday as a preface to Red Cross Week.

As an introduction to the film, Frederic Snyder, local lecturer and news analyst, commented upon the Drama of The Red Cross.

Snyder referred to the world society as one of enthusiasm and sympathy, and classified the American Red Cross as "Mercy in Motion." He further indicated that public support of the Red Cross could be considered in the light of a "gift to the giver," and further emphasized the importance of public support with the words: "Here is a drive that might readily help keep you alive."

The film portrayed the work of the American Red Cross throughout the world, including help in disaster areas, aid to displaced persons and political refugees, and services rendered to the armed forces, both physical and with personal problems.

Hoffa Aide Charges 'Gestapo Tactics' Used

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Teamsters President James R. Hoffa has asked that the Senate look into what he called "Gestapo tactics" by federal officials in Hoffa's current trial on jury-tampering charges.

Sidney Zagri, legislative counsel for the union, wrote Sen. Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, asking that the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on Constitutional Rights send an observer to the trial at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Fong said he had sent the complaint to Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the judiciary subgroup, "for such action as may be deemed appropriate."

No One-Horse Town

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP)—This southwest Missouri city of 11,000 never was a one-horse town.

The Carthage Press recently found more than 50 fancy hitching posts in the central part of the city, left from the era when horse and mule were the chief means of local transportation.

The hitching posts were made of polished grey marble, a product of this area and designed by skilled craftsmen. Most of them are in excellent condition.

The city fathers now proclaim Carthage is the hitching post capital of the world.

Dads May Now See Births in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—There's nothing at all wrong with dad watching junior come into the world in a delivery room, the state has ruled.

Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk's ruling Thursday declared that from now on fathers may watch childbirth in the delivery room if mother, doctor and the hospital agree.

Formerly, fathers were barred from California delivery rooms by the State Public Health Department—although a number of hospitals said they ignored the rule.

Bad Reaction on 'Enemy' Link

Johnson Is More Restrained Now in Criticizing Critics

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, criticized for the way he criticized his critics, is a little more restrained with them now. And his foreign policy for Southeast Asia sounds a little less ominous.

Earlier this month, after Republicans had jumped on his foreign policy, Johnson made an off-the-cuff talk to some government employes. He didn't mention Republicans.

But he hit at his critics as "'alarmists and people who like to jump on their government." He called them as "much of a problem as our other enemies'" and said "God forgive them, for they know not what they do."

He described them as "bellyachers" and told his listeners "we are a much beloved people throughout the world." He got a bad reaction, particularly for bracketing his critics "with our other enemies."'

The President took a much different line Thursday night in a speech to Democrats in Miami when he said "to those who cry havoc and shout for war, we must give understanding. We have always welcomed dissent. We would not muzzle disagreement."

He also took a tough line last week in a California speech—again without naming names—when he struck at those responsible for the guerrilla war against the American-backed government of South Viet Nam.

"Those engaged in external direction and supply," he said, "would do well to remember that this type of aggression is a deeply dangerous game."

Several things were left unclear. Was he aiming at the Chinese Reds for help given the North Vietnamese Reds? Was he just thinking of the North Vietnamese? Or was he hinting at a change in American policy in Viet Nam and a much fiercer war, perhaps carried into Communist territory?

Immediately his words were interpreted by some as indicating a tougher policy toward North Viet Nam, the beginning of American psychological warfare against it, and even that U.S. reprisals might be in store.

Then the Russians got into the act with a warning to this country not to extend the guerrilla war into Red territory. In such a case, they said, they would help the North Vietnamese. And, if they did, it might heal their split with Red China.

But it quickly began to appear that this administration didn't have any new policy on Viet Nam for it created a committee this week to examine the problem and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara is going there to examine it close-up.

And Thursday Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a news conference dumped cold water on any idea of invading North Viet Nam now. He said any question of carrying the war into Red territory "'is for the future.'"

This sounded much milder than Johnson's warning to those unnamed people that they were "playing a dangerous game."'

Book 'Fanny Hill' Declared Obscene

NEW YORK (AP)—The Supreme Court's Appellate Division banned the sale of "Fanny Hill" today, declaring the book was obscene.

The technical title of the book published in the 18th century is "'Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure'" but generations of Americans who have smuggled it into this country have called it "Fanny Hill."

The ban applies to all of New York State.

Book education had a small place in Phelan's hard life as a miner. When he was nearing forty he made a strike in a certain claim he had taken up, and became a millionnaire several times over.

Having been obscure all his life, he was much susceptible to flattery, and his friends soon learned the trick of getting money from him. A miners' club was organized, and in consideration of his name being lettered over the entrance, Phelan was enticed into paying for the furnishings. When everything was ready for the opening he was invited to inspect the quarters.

Phelan—You fellows ought to feel pretty proud of this layout.

One of the Committeemen — We should, if we only had a chandelier for this hall.

Phelan—Well, what'll it cost?

One of the Committeemen — Three hundred dollars.

Phelan—I'll get it, but I'll bet there ain't a blame one of you can play it!

Said the speaker—It will be hard for me to live up to that obituary. I didn't know the toastmaster knew so much about me. He certainly left nothing out. He reminds me of a radio speaker, never at a loss for words, who finally found himself in a situation where there was very little for him to say. He stood at the altar repeating the marriage vows, and in repeating the words touching his material possessions, he stammered, "With all my goodly words I thee endow."

Injury Puts Off S'art of Glenn's Senate Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A mild concussion from a bathroom fall has delayed Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s plans for starting his campaign for a U.S. Senate seat.

Glenn is in Grant hospital, the result of a fall in his Columbus apartment Wednesday. He will be there at least until Saturday, possibly longer.

Glenn had planned to start his campaign for incumbent Sen. Stephen M. Young's Senate seat Monday, but aides said that all scheduled appearances for at least next week had been canceled.

His schedule called for at least two speeches next week in which the former space hero was expected to outline his position on the major political issues.

Working on Plans For Valley Area Realtor Meeting

Committee members for the Lower Hudson Regional District Conference of the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards, Inc., to be held in Kingston on April 30, under sponsorship of the Ulster County Board of Realtors, held a meeting Monday evening to formulate plans for the conference.

At the session Mrs. Adele Royael, chairman of the committee appointed her committees as follows:

Co-chairman, Marguerite Logan; general adviser, Lawrence J. MacAvery; co-ordinator, Regional Vice-president, Raymond Korzendorfer; breakfast and luncheon, James Devine, chairman, Peter Weider, Reta Frederick, Helen Williams; tickets and reservations, Ralph Carpino, chairman, Vincent Sheridan, Bertha Gally; program, Lawrence MacAvery, chairman, Robert Kershaw; information and reception desk, Frank McSpirit, chairman, Lee Madden, Mary Scafidi; Prize committee, Ralph Carpino, chairman, Frank McSpirit, Raymond Korzendorfer; publicity, Marguerite Logan; toastmaster, Benson Krom.

Mr. Korzendorfer announced that a contest for advertising and signs will be held at the various regional conferences throughout the state and final judging will be conducted at the State Conference, the chairman for this will be announced later.

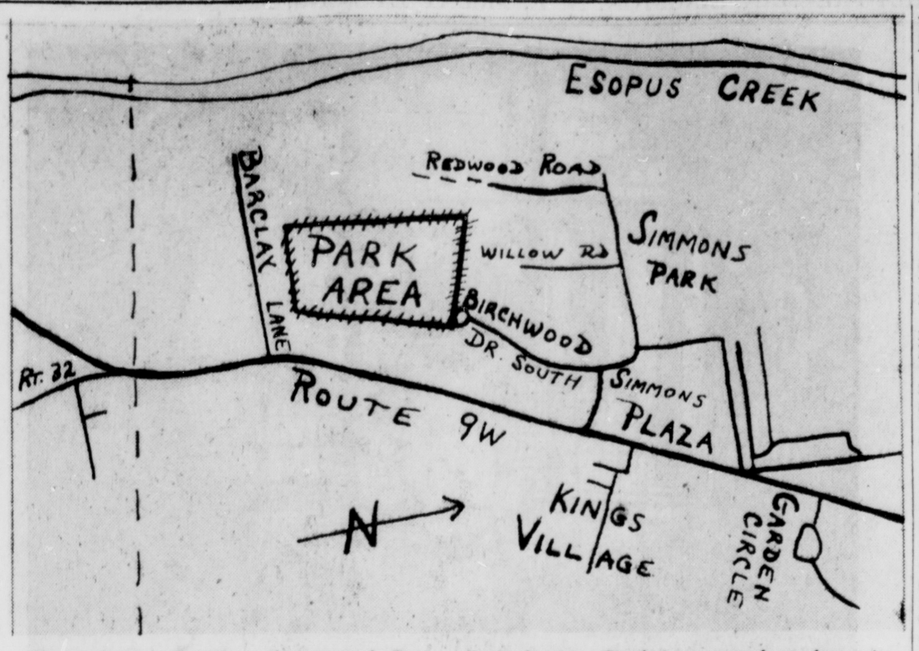

The committee will meet Tuesday evening, March 3, at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 7:30 o'clock to discuss further plans for the conference.

East Kingston Vols Extinguish Couch Fire

East Kingston Fire Company volunteers responded to an alarm at 3:45 a. m. Thursday and extinguished a fire in a couch in the garage of Ralph Guido of John Street, East Kingston.

The volunteers under Chief James Costello responded with one pumper and put out the blaze with a booster hose.

To Cost $1.56 per $1,000

Start Petition to Establish Heights Recreation District

A petition is being circulated today advocating the formation of a recreation park district embracing most of Barclay Heights and estimated to cost $1.56 per $1,000 of assessed valuation on all property within the designated district.

The assessment is proposed to be raised to provide a $2,500 budget for maintenance of the new district, if approved.

Outline Boundaries

The proposed district includes all lands within an area bounded on the north by the Saugerties Village line, on the east by the Hudson River, on the south by a line perpendicular to Routes 9W and 32 extending from the Esopus Creek to the river, and on the west by the Esopus Creek.

Property owners of more than 50 per cent of the assessed valuation of the proposed district must sign the petition before it can be presented to Saugerties Town Board and a public hearing date scheduled.

The total assessed valuation of the proposed district was not announced by Jaycee President George Leombruno, who reported on the plan.

If approved after a public hearing, the Town Board would appoint a board of park commissioners who would be the administrators of the district. The park board would be either five or seven members.

Land Donated

The six and eight-tenths acre site secured by Saugerties Jaycees as a donation from Jack Davis of Barclay Heights Development Corp., is situated at the south end of Birchwood Drive South and north of Barclay Lane on the west side of Route 9W.

Leombruno in his report said the site is free from any restrictions or easements that would prevent the development of a baseball diamond or other recreational facilities.

The Jaycees have committed its organization to developing the basic softball diamond with a permanent type backstop. A permanent parking field is also included in the committment.

The diamond has been surveyed and staked and 90 per cent of the land required for the diamond and parking facilities has been cleared.

The entire park site with diamond and backstop shall be donated to the park district when established.

Two-Year Project

Approximately two years ago the Saugerties Junior Chamber of Commerce like many other Saugerties civic minded organizations became increasingly aware of the need for recreational facilities in the growing Barclay Heights community. Recognizing this need, the Jaycees set up a committee to investigate how recreational facilities could be provided. It became apparent after soliciting opinions of respected individuals in the community in both political and non-political fields that the best approach would be to initiate a recreation park project from within the structure of the Jaycee organization.

It was last May during the tenure of Jaycee President Gerald Kurtz that the Jaycees through the particular efforts of Recreation Chairman Raymond Appleby obtained six and eight-tenth acres of donated land from Charles Davis.

Once the land had been procured the Jaycee planning committee went ahead with efforts to develop a softball diamond on the park site. The fall of 1963 was devoted to clearing the land for the ball diamond The winter of 1963-1964 has been devoted to setting up and planning out the legal aspects of what eventually shall be a Barclay Heights Park Recreation District.

To Resume in Spring

The remainder of the tree clearing, rough grading and erection of the backstop are scheduled for the spring and summer of this year.

Jaycee President Leombruno wishes to extend an invitation to all interested groups or individuals to join in the development of the recreation park. There exists enough land to develop many other park facilities not now under active planning or construction.

The park area could when completely developed also contain tennis courts, picnic areas, horseshoe pits, a children's recreation area, and even facilities for ice-skating in the winter and swimming during the summer.

The Jaycees intend to make a door-to-door canvass of residents in the Barclay Heights area to obtain approval of a petition for a recreation park site. The canvassing shall begin today and is intended to be completed by Sunday, March 15.

Information Available

Resident owners shall be asked to sign the petition if they are in favor of a recreation park in their community. Information shall be made available to residents concerning the proposed recreation park. It is believed that all aspects involved in setting up a park district has been explored by the Jaycees. However an appeal is made to all interested citizens to express their views so that a representative community opinion shall prevail.

Every effort has been made to insure each property owner a chance to sign. If a property owner has not been contacted by March 15, he may contact Robert Galpin in Windemere and arrangements will be made for a Jaycee to call with the petition.

Reformed Church Sets Communion At Sunday Service

Holy Communion will be administered at the 11 a. m. service at Saugerties, Reformed Church, Sunday. Officiating at the service will be the Rev. Orville Jay Hine, assisted by the elders and deacons of the congregation.

The worship service at the 9:45 a. m. session of the Sunday church school will be led by the high school class of John DeGroff.

Youth Fellowship meets from 7 to 8:30 p. m. in the parish hall.

The third Lenten service sponsored by the Saugerties Area Council of Churches will be held at Saugerties Methodist Church. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Joseph Rainear, pastor of the Methodist Church. The speaker for the service will be the Rev. Mr. Hine, speaking on the question asked of Jesus, "What shall be the sign of thy coming?"

The staff of the church school will meet at 8 p. m. Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John DeGroff.

The pastor will lead a discussion on the teachings of Jesus as they relate to the curriculum of the church school.

The Women's Guild of the Reformed Church will hold a birthday dinner Wednesday 7 p. m. in the parish hall. Each lady is required to bring her own place setting and silverware. Also each will bring a covered dish. Rolls, beverage, and dessert will be furnished. Guests are welcome.

The choir will rehearse in the parish hall at 7:15 p. m. Thursday. The choir is planning to present the contata entitled "Adoramus Te" on Sunday evening, March 15, in the sanctuary of the Reformed Church. They are combining their efforts with the members of the choir of the Fair Street Reformed Church to present this contata.

Jayncees Hear Activity Reports

The February dinner meeting of the Saugerties Jayncees was held at the Stonewall Inn on February 25. A note was read from Mrs. Peter Karashay, secretary of the Parent Teachers Dental Fund thanking the organization for their donation of $50.

A Valentine tea was held at the Family Care Home of Mrs. Stanley Burdick on February 13. An enjoyable evening was had by all who attended. Five Jayncees journeyed to New York City to attend the Outstanding Young Farmer State meeting held at the Park Sheraton on January 31.

The fifth session of the dancing school will be starting around April 1. Anyone interested in enrolling their child please contact Mrs. Bertrand Hall of Saugerties. Mrs. Theodore Owins was present at the meeting to talk to the membership about the dancing school review to be presented sometime in June. At present there are 62 students enrolled.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Ralph Childers. Mrs. Albert Carrion, Mrs. Richard Nash, and Mrs. John Southam.

27 Respondents Put New Supply Into Blood Bank

A total of 27 donors responded to the Saugerties Community Blood Bank drawing Thursday night at VFW Hall.

Mrs. Richard Gardner, blood bank chairman of the sponsoring Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW Auxiliary, said the drawing would add 25 fresh pints to the local blood bank's credit. Two were rejects.

In attendance were Dr. Herman Ash of Saugerties, and Miss Mary K. Wiseman, blood bank nurse in Kingston.

Mrs. Marie Sheehan was in charge of the refreshment committee in the absence of Mrs. Ruth Prendergast, who is ill at home.

No-Bill Paves Way For Mental Test

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas County grand jury declined Thursday to indict a woman who shot at a man she thought was senatorial candidate Gordon McLendon.

A no-bill on the assault to murder charge against Elizabeth Stone, expected in the grand jury's Monday report, will clear the way for lunacy court action in her case, the Dallas News said.

Mrs. Stone, 48, was arrested at Dallas Love Field Feb. 19 after she fired a pistol at W. W. Dyer, 40, of Dallas as he boarded an airplane for Chicago.

She told police she thought Dyer was McLendon and she believed the Dallas radio man was a crime syndicate leader.

Resigns as Head Of Cablevision

The resignation of William G. Dimmerling as manager of Kingston Cablevision, Inc., was made known today.

Effective March 2 he will take up his duties as general manager of similar systems in Pottsville, Pa., his home town community.

In a statement to the Freeman, Dimmerling said: "I am leaving Kingston reluctantly. In the few short years here I have made many friendships and associations, all of which I shall long remember. I mean it sincerely."

A member of St. Joseph's Church, Dimmerling was an active "tail-twister" in the local Lions Club. He served on the board of the Y.M.C.A., and functioned with the Community Chest, Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce and Red Cross. He also is a member of Wiltwyck Country Club.

Dimmerling's wife, Mary, and their two daughters will remain at home on Main Street until the end of the school year.

Wheat Seller Says U. S. Ships Too Costly

DENVER (AP) — Sales of wheat to Russia will halt if the United States insists on having 50 per cent of the wheat shipped in American vessels, a major seller said Thursday.

"It's just plain foolish to expect the Soviet Union to pay the $8 to $9 freight differential per ton which shipping in U.S. ships adds to freight costs," said Ben H. Nordemann of New York City.

Nordemann, head of the wheat sales division of Continental Grain Co., spoke at a meeting of Colorado wheat growers and grain dealers.

Arizona Scoured For Truck of Slain N.Y. Couple

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Airplanes searched a wide area of desert east of here for the missing pickup truck of a slain New York couple.

A search by eight airplanes and 20 jeeps Thursday failed to turn up any trace of the vehicle owned by John R. Bertella, 62, and his wife, Mildred, 55, of Sherrill, N.Y.

Their bodies were found Monday in some bushes near a highway known as the Apache Trail, near the base of the Superstition Mountains. They had been beaten and stabbed.

The sheriff's office said it had issued an all-points bulletin for the missing vehicle, which had a camper on the back, and officers continued to check out tips from persons who think they saw the truck.

Investigators believe the killer drove the vehicle away.

The Bertellas were killed last Saturday or Sunday.

The victims' sons arrived here Thursday and made identification of the bodies.

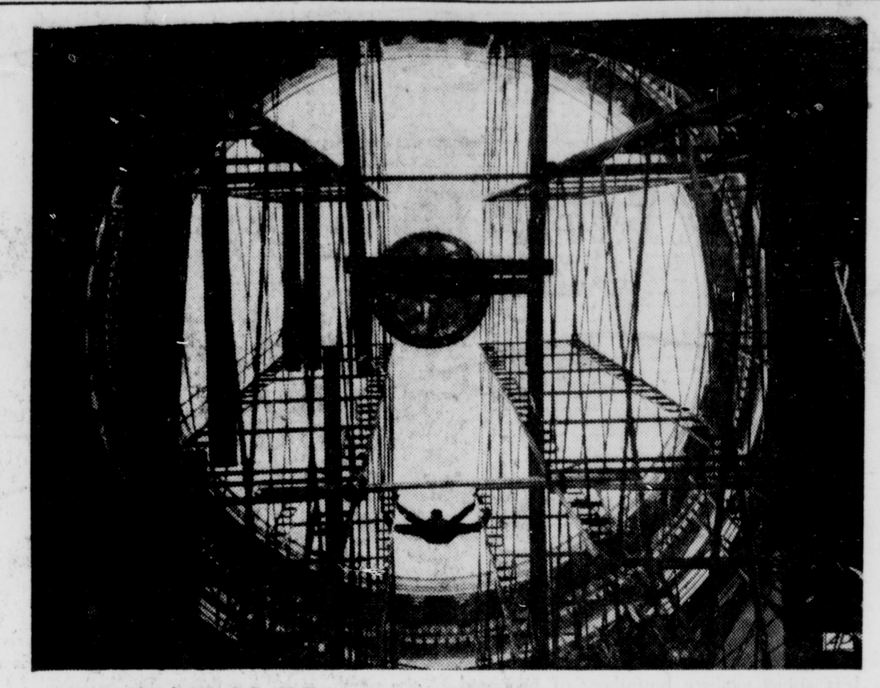

Bid President Name Depressed Area Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) —Three Republican members of Congress have asked President Johnson to appoint a full-time federal representative to help coordinate economic aid and redevelopment efforts in the Utica -Rome, N.Y., area, which has beeen plagued by unemployment.

In a telegram Thursday, Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating and Rep. Alexander Pirnie noted plans to close the supply and procurement facilities at the Rome Air Materiel Area (ROAMA) and an announcement by Sperry Rand Corp. to reduce its work force by 1,300 at Utica and Ilion.

"Immediate action at the federal level would encourage confidence and allow time for planning and coordinating governmental assistance before full economic impact of job losses will be felt," they said.

Arizona Scoured For Truck of Slain N.Y. Couple

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Airplanes searched a wide area of desert east of here for the missing pickup truck of a slain New York couple.

A search by eight airplanes and 20 jeeps Thursday failed to turn up any trace of the vehicle owned by John R. Bertella, 62, and his wife, Mildred, 55, of Sherrill, N.Y.

Their bodies were found Monday in some bushes near a highway known as the Apache Trail, near the base of the Superstition Mountains. They had been beaten and stabbed.

The sheriff's office said it had issued an all-points bulletin for the missing vehicle, which had a camper on the back, and officers continued to check out tips from persons who think they saw the truck.

Investigators believe the killer drove the vehicle away.

The Bertellas were killed last Saturday or Sunday.

The victims' sons arrived here Thursday and made identification of the bodies.

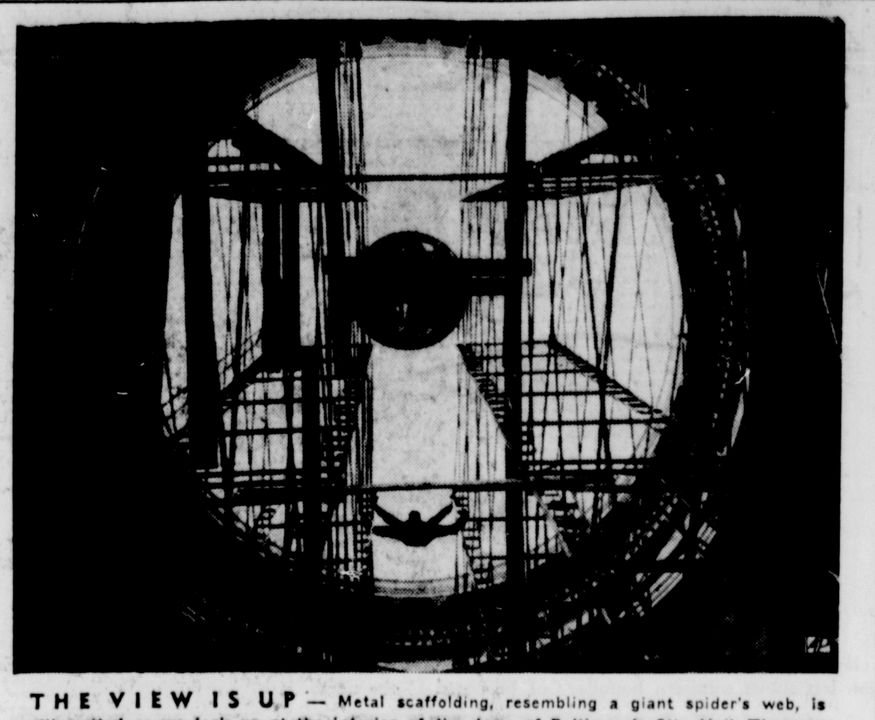

Bid President Name Depressed Area Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) —Three Republican members of Congress have asked President Johnson to appoint a full-time federal representative to help coordinate economic aid and redevelopment efforts in the Utica -Rome, N.Y., area, which has beeen plagued by unemployment.

In a telegram Thursday, Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating and Rep. Alexander Pirnie noted plans to close the supply and procurement facilities at the Rome Air Materiel Area (ROAMA) and an announcement by Sperry Rand Corp. to reduce its work force by 1,300 at Utica and Ilion.

"Immediate action at the federal level would encourage confidence and allow time for planning and coordinating governmental assistance before full economic impact of job losses will be felt," they said.

THE VIEW IS UP — Metal scaffolding, resembling a giant spider's web, is silhouetted as we look up at the interior of the dome of Baltimore's City Hall. The man straddling scaffolding is a worker assigned to clean the rotunda and inside the dome.

Special Program Scheduled Today At Local Library

The Port Ewen Story Hour will present the third of its special programs for 1963-64 today, 3:30 p. m. at the Port Ewen Library.

Mrs. Harrison Muller will speak about classical and modern dancing Her talk will be illustrated with music and pictures.

Mrs. Muller and her husband teach all forms of dancing in their school, The Academy of Dance, in Woodstock. The Mullers are performers as well as dance instructors and have appeared in musical productions on Broadway and on TV. They sometimes perform locally in special performances with some of their exceptional students.

This and other special programs are brought to the Port Ewen Library as a part of the Junior League Story Hour Program.

The Port Ewen Library has an hour-long story hour each Friday afternoon at 3:30; a crossing guard is on duty. Mrs J. R. Shults Jr., program coordinator for the Port Ewen Story Hour program, invites anyone wishing to read or tell stories for the Story Hour to contact her.

Summers in Hospitals

Enthusiams High Of Students in Medical Program

By CECELIA LYNETT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Selected high school pupils — both boys and girls—who are considering medicine as a career, can watch doctors at work in operating rooms and research labs at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital.

The innovation is the idea of Dr. Victor P. Satinsky, who believes that "exposure for a career choice should be at the high school level"—even if, in some cases, it involves watching the birth of a baby.

The program for teen-agers is offered at the college and hospital for 10 weeks each summer. Satinsky is an associate professor of research on heart surgery at the hospital.

In the two years since it was introduced the program has proved highly successful.

Typical of the participants' reaction is the enthusiasm of Nancy Oriol, 17, a senior at Philadelphia High School for Girls.

She finds that "having a superior who talks to you as an equal is a great feeling. You can disagree if you want to, and sometimes you're even right!"

The program grew out of Satinsky's Saturday laboratory volunteer project.

The pupils would come in Saturday mornings, help around the lab, and learn to assist Satinsky in his research projects at Hahnemann.

He decided to expand the program as a summer experience after conducting additional research projects and including formal classroom lectures.

"The Hahnemann faculty was very cooperative," Satinsky recalls. "The colllege council set up the curriculum and practically all the department heads participated in the lectures."

After completing two summers pupils have been exposed to every subject medical students have in four years, Satinsky said, and they are taught by the medical school professors themselves.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Feb. 28—Each year more people reach time for retirement, either because of age or because they have accumulated enough funds to ensure a living income. This always brings up anew the questions of where to go, what to do with spare time, whether to buy or rent, etc.

Climate Should Be Considered

Certainly, climate is one of the main considerations in choosing a place to retire to. First thought is usually that the warm states like Florida, California, and Arizona offer the best opportunities. For older couples this may well be true. Of course, no state, county, or community offers all the advantages. Places that may have attractive and lively business in the summer may be quite the opposite in winter,—and vice versa. So, time and care must be taken if you are to make a move for which you will not be sorry.

While I know that an even, warm climate is often fine for those who are no longer young or for those with respiratory troubles, there is something wearing about weather that is hot for too long a time. Studies have indicated that the most dynamic and intelligent people are likely to develop in climates with marked contrasts. Younger couples—especially those who still have their children with them—should consider either a section of the country with a wide temperature range or else two homes in areas with entirely different weather patterns.

Income Is a 'Must'

Rapid population growth in states with the most inviting weather has not come as a result of new babies or thriving agriculture and industry so much as from newcomers moving in to retire and bask in the sun. Such people must, of course, be able to depend upon regular checks, such as those coming from pensions, insurance, rents on properties in other localities, and dividends on stocks, interest on bonds or mortgages. Social security payments are a great help, but they will not pay all the bills in the states on which people are now converging.

Some seem to think that places with delightful winter climates offer very cheap living conditions. This is frequently an illusion, often created by publicity agencies. You may not spend so much for fuel, electricity and clothing in sunny areas, but food and rents usually cost just about as much, for comparable accommodation. So do medical and dental services, entertainment, and transportation. Also, states and cities througout the country have varying ways of collecting taxes; but even if some of these look more inviting, they turn out about the same.

Some Want to Work

Most men and even many women get restless after they loll around for a while. If you want a job, be sure to go into something for which you are trained. If you want a business of your own, work in that field first before you buy an establishment. Some interesting potential fields for "retired" workers are real estate, shopping services, typing, dressmaking, debt collecting, plant and tree nurseries, frozen-food programs, manufacturers' representatives, caretaking services, landscaping, and interior decorating.

Some people want to buy homes rather than rent, and this is often a good idea if you are careful in your scelection. Be sure that a house you are considering is in an area that is improving, not deteriorating. Be sure it is near churches and stores. It is wise to include enough land for a vegetable and flower garden, and this in a pinch might be sold as a house lot or two if you ever need to retrench a bit. Never buy unless you have lived in a community—preferably for at least a year—and have got the feeling of the place. Real estate values are influenced more by the trend of feeling than by any business statistics.

First Steps In Choosing.

Pick out a state by studying real estate booklets, maps, and information available at most libraries. Next, write the Chamber of Commerce at the capital of the state being considered. Ask for data on different parts of the state, including climate and opportunities. I urge you, then, to visit the localities, even if you have to take a leave of absence to do it. Sight-unseen decisions are often disappointing,—and can be very costly.

'64 Seen as Year Of Tree Borers

This, for shade trees, could be the year of the borers.

Roy C. Beckwith, entomologist of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories, says borers build up enormous populations following adverse weather factors such as droughts. During last year's severe drought thousands of red oaks that died in the Northeast were found to be girdled by two-lined chestnut borers.

By May and June adult borers will emerge from D-shaped holes in the bark to atack other weakened oaks, beech, blue beech and ironwood trees. These borers usually begin their assault in the upper crown and work downward Once borers are in the main trunk the tree is doomed.

Other borers attack various species of trees that become weakened by defoliation, drought, root injury, poor drainage or other cause.

At least that's the indication if you count the women writing letters to the Maine Republican.

Generally the letters that have poured into her office since she tossed her bonnet into the GOP presidential nomination ring are favorable—about 96 per cent, her office estimates.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Mass., Feb. 28—Each year more people reach time for retirement, either because of age or because they have accumulated enough funds to ensure a living income. This always brings up anew the questions of where to go, what to do with spare time, whether to buy or rent, etc.

Climate Should Be Considered

Certainly, climate is one of the main considerations in choosing a place to retire to. First thought is usually that the warm states like Florida, California, and Arizona offer the best opportunities. For older couples this may well be true. Of course, no state, county, or community offers all the advantages. Places that may have attractive and lively business in the summer may be quite the opposite in winter,—and vice versa. So, time and care must be taken if you are to make a move for which you will not be sorry.

While I know that an even, warm climate is often fine for those who are no longer young or for those with respiratory troubles, there is something wearing about weather that is hot for too long a time. Studies have indicated that the most dynamic and intelligent people are likely to develop in climates with marked contrasts. Younger couples—especially those who still have their children with them—should consider either a section of the country with a wide temperature range or else two homes in areas with entirely different weather patterns.

Income Is a 'Must'

Rapid population growth in states with the most inviting weather has not come as a result of new babies or thriving agriculture and industry so much as from newcomers moving in to retire and bask in the sun. Such people must, of course, be able to depend upon regular checks, such as those coming from pensions, insurance, rents on properties in other localities, and dividends on stocks, interest on bonds or mortgages. Social security payments are a great help, but they will not pay all the bills in the states on which people are now converging.

Some seem to think that places with delightful winter climates offer very cheap living conditions. This is frequently an illusion, often created by publicity agencies. You may not spend so much for fuel, electricity and clothing in sunny areas, but food and rents usually cost just about as much, for comparable accommodation. So do medical and dental services, entertainment, and transportation. Also, states and cities througout the country have varying ways of collecting taxes; but even if some of these look more inviting, they turn out about the same.

Some Want to Work

Most men and even many women get restless after they loll around for a while. If you want a job, be sure to go into something for which you are trained. If you want a business of your own, work in that field first before you buy an establishment. Some interesting potential fields for "retired" workers are real estate, shopping services, typing, dressmaking, debt collecting, plant and tree nurseries, frozen-food programs, manufacturers' representatives, caretaking services, landscaping, and interior decorating.

Some people want to buy homes rather than rent, and this is often a good idea if you are careful in your scelection. Be sure that a house you are considering is in an area that is improving, not deteriorating. Be sure it is near churches and stores. It is wise to include enough land for a vegetable and flower garden, and this in a pinch might be sold as a house lot or two if you ever need to retrench a bit. Never buy unless you have lived in a community—preferably for at least a year—and have got the feeling of the place. Real estate values are influenced more by the trend of feeling than by any business statistics.

First Steps In Choosing.

Pick out a state by studying real estate booklets, maps, and information available at most libraries. Next, write the Chamber of Commerce at the capital of the state being considered. Ask for data on different parts of the state, including climate and opportunities. I urge you, then, to visit the localities, even if you have to take a leave of absence to do it. Sight-unseen decisions are often disappointing,—and can be very costly.

Summers in Hospitals

Enthusiams High Of Students in Medical Program

By CECELIA LYNETT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Selected high school pupils — both boys and girls—who are considering medicine as a career, can watch doctors at work in operating rooms and research labs at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital.

The innovation is the idea of Dr. Victor P. Satinsky, who believes that "exposure for a career choice should be at the high school level"—even if, in some cases, it involves watching the birth of a baby.

The program for teen-agers is offered at the college and hospital for 10 weeks each summer. Satinsky is an associate professor of research on heart surgery at the hospital.

In the two years since it was introduced the program has proved highly successful.

Typical of the participants' reaction is the enthusiasm of Nancy Oriol, 17, a senior at Philadelphia High School for Girls.

She finds that "having a superior who talks to you as an equal is a great feeling. You can disagree if you want to, and sometimes you're even right!"

The program grew out of Satinsky's Saturday laboratory volunteer project.

The pupils would come in Saturday mornings, help around the lab, and learn to assist Satinsky in his research projects at Hahnemann.

He decided to expand the program as a summer experience after conducting additional research projects and including formal classroom lectures.

"The Hahnemann faculty was very cooperative," Satinsky recalls. "The colllege council set up the curriculum and practically all the department heads participated in the lectures."

After completing two summers pupils have been exposed to every subject medical students have in four years, Satinsky said, and they are taught by the medical school professors themselves.

'64 Seen as Year Of Tree Borers

This, for shade trees, could be the year of the borers.

Roy C. Beckwith, entomologist of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories, says borers build up enormous populations following adverse weather factors such as droughts. During last year's severe drought thousands of red oaks that died in the Northeast were found to be girdled by two-lined chestnut borers.

By May and June adult borers will emerge from D-shaped holes in the bark to atack other weakened oaks, beech, blue beech and ironwood trees. These borers usuually begin their assault in the upper crown and work downward Once borers are in the main trunk the tree is doomed.

Other borers attack various species of trees that become weakened by defoliation, drought, root injury, poor drainage or other cause.

These are borers that invade linden, tulip and ash trees. The sugar maple borer causes a raised furrow on the trunk. The flat-headed apple borer assails apple, poplar,, willow, sycamore, beech, linden, oak, hickory and ash. The roundheaded apple borer is an enemy of the crabapple and mountain ash.

Other borers cut short the life of a dogwood or birch, favorite lawn trees. Dogwood borers can severely damage a dogwood in a single season. They usually invade wounds caused by lawnmower bumps and at crotches and bark cracks. The bronze birch borer starts at the top of the tree and attacks quaking aspen.

Nor are evergreens immune from borer attack. Hemlock borers gang up on hemlock and occasionally atack spruce. And still other borers invade Austrian, white and Scotch pine.

Tree vigor can repel borers. Ample water and feeding is the key to vigor. All weakened shade trees should be fed as early as possible this spring. Then prune out dead and dying wood. Later in the spring keeping the leaves healthy green by spraying to control leaf-chewing insects, scale pests and fungi.

RECEIVING SPOILED FRUIT

Q: A friend sent me a basket of fruit from California. Most of it was spoiled. My husband thinks I should write my friend and tell her about it so that she can put in a claim to the store. I am sure it was quite expensive and it does seem a shame for her to have to pay for spoiled fruit, but I'm afraid she might be offended if I say anything. What to do?

A: Rather than say anything to your friend who would not only be distressed to hear of the spoiled fruit but perhaps feel that she should send a duplicate gift, it will be best if you wrote to the store yourself.

Rising for National Anthem

Q: Will you please answer the following question for me? Before the start of a ball game our national anthem is always played. When watching the ball game at home on television, should those present rise?

A: It is not necessary for those at home to rise upon hearing the national anthem.

Picking up Napkin

Q: At a dinner party when a lady's napkin slides onto the floor, is the man next to her expected to get down and pick it up for her, or is it left where it is?

A: If he does not have to get up from his chair and disturb the whole table, he should pick it up for her.

Coach House Production of 'Anastasia' Reaffirms Group's Theatrical Potentials

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
Freeman Society Editor

A Coach House merry-go-round of frenzied activity in preparation for the opening of its current production "Anastasia" paid off with a shining gold ring last night. First nighters were treated to a mature, polished presentation of this popular, yet difficult, vehicle and there is little doubt tonight's and Saturday's houses will be filled to capacity.

Coach House has done more than just produce a good play, it has presented a fresh public image and reaffirmed its rightful place as a thoroughly competent Little Theatre group deserving of public support.

For this we say "bravo" to a comparatively new director, William Skilling, and the guidance of its president George N. Betts.

That Ulster County has an abundance of talented individuals was re-emphasized last night also. Without a doubt the two top performers are Elizabeth Askue in the title role and Louise Greenwald as the Dowager Empress. Any apprehensions I may have had about the difficulty of the second act, when the Dowager Empress meets the alleged Anastasia, melted into sheer amazement as these two gifted ladies floated through this scene with unequaled professional grace. Mrs. Askue's skill as an actress was evident throughout the evening. She is a credit to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts where she studied. As Anastasia, she wins an audience completely.

Louise Greenwald gives a very realistic performance of the Empress. She has perfected her role down to an authentic Russian accent. Her performance is impressive.

There were other pleasant surprises in this production. These were the able performances turned in by Robert Baron, James Enderlyn and Gerald Griffin Jr. Griffin was particularly convincing as the sophisticated scoundrel Prince Bounine. All these gentlemen are responsible for the smoothness of the opening act. It set the pace for the entire performance.

Jack Marquardt also proved his theatrical talents last night with his interpretation of the part of Prince Paul. I think that Marquardt will develop into a first rate actor. You will enjoy him in Anastasia.

This capable cast is rounded out by Emilia Weyhe, Matthew Duer, James Blanc, Frank Policano, Kathleen Griffin, W. Scott Foster and Helen Hodges.

There are very few weak spots in this production As a matter of fact, they go almost unnoticed.

Ralph Harper, as always, has done a superb job with the sets. Authenticity has been his byword. In "Anastasia" he has hung a genuine Icon on the wall of the set. It bears the date 1886. The Icon is the property of Christus Larious.

Some of the props used on stage for this production actually belonged to the famous Mae West, I was told. The items of furniture now belong to Mrs. Weyhe.

Credits also got to Diane Pickering, script coordinator, Delores Crosby, costumes, Mary Becker and George Betts for stage settings.

The play will be repeated tonight and Saturday with curtains at 8:30. I recommend it.

Legion Auxiliary Activities Listed

Concert Choir Will Perform March 5 In Paltz Auditorium

The Concert Choir of the State University College, New Paltz, is in its final stages of rehearsal this week in preparation for the winter concert scheduled for Thursday, March 5, in the main auditorium at 8:30 p. m.

Featured soloist for this concert will be Martin Kelly, tenor soloist, who is a music teacher in the Highland School System. He received his Bachelor's Degree in Music from the State University College at Potsdam where he majored in voice, and he was a tenor soloist under Helen Hosmer and Nadia Boulanger. Accompanists will be D. Robert Mumper, instructor of music at the college, and Mrs. Martin Kelly.

The Concert Choir, a group of 40 selected voices composed of New Paltz College students was previously known as the "College Community Mixed Chorus," which was made up of students, faculty members, and other interested persons in this area. The new group, still under the direction of Robert Strothenke, assistant professor of music, will continue to have weekly rehearsals and will present several concerts during the year.

The program will consists of five parts:

Concert Choir: "O bone Jesu," Palestrina; "Now all the woods are sleeping," Heinrich Isaak harmonized by Bach; "Hospodi Pomilui," Lvovsky; and "Alleluja," Mozart.

Mr. Kelly: "On Wings of Song," Mendelssohn; "Traume," Wagner; "In the Silence of Night," Rachmaninoff.

Concert Choir: "Soon Ah Will Be Done," William Dawson; "My Lord, what a mornin'," arr Burleigh; and "Ev'ry Time I Feel De Spirit," arr. Lyn Murray.

Mr. Kelly: "Clorinda," R. Orlando Morgan; "When I Have Sung My Songs," Ernest Charles; and "Tally-Ho," Franco Leoni.

Concert Choir: "Holiday Song," William Schuman; "Oh Waly, Waly," John Jacob Niles; "Linden Lea," R. Vaughan Williams; "Wake Thee Now, Dearest," arr. Deems Taylor; "There's A Man Goin' Roun' Takin' Names," arr. George Kleinsinger; and Choral Procession. Richard Kountz, with Mr. Kelly and the choir.

RECEIVING SPOILED FRUIT

Q: A friend sent me a basket of fruit from California. Most of it was spoiled. My husband thinks I should write my friend and tell her about it so that she can put in a claim to the store. I am sure it was quite expensive and it does seem a shame for her to have to pay for spoiled fruit, but I'm afraid she might be offended if I say anything. What to do?

A: Rather than say anything to your friend who would not only be distressed to hear of the spoiled fruit but perhaps feel that she should send a duplicate gift, it will be best if you wrote to the store yourself.

Rising for National Anthem

Q: Will you please answer the following question for me? Before the start of a ball game our national anthem is always played. When watching the ball game at home on television, should those present rise?

A: It is not necessary for those at home to rise upon hearing the national anthem.

Picking up Napkin

Q: At a dinner party when a lady's napkin slides onto the floor, is the man next to her expected to get down and pick it up for her, or is it left where it is?

A: If he does not have to get up from his chair and disturb the whole table, he should pick it up for her.

Coach House Production of 'Anastasia' Reaffirms Group's Theatrical Potentials

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
Freeman Society Editor

A Coach House merry-go-round of frenzied activity in preparation for the opening of its current production "Anastasia" paid off with a shining gold ring last night. First nighters were treated to a mature, polished presentation of this popular, yet difficult, vehicle and there is little doubt tonight's and Saturday's houses will be filled to capacity.

Coach House has done more than just produce a good play, it has presented a fresh public image and reaffirmed its rightful place as a thoroughly competent Little Theatre group deserving of public support.

For this we say "bravo" to a comparatively new director, William Skilling, and the guidance of its president George N. Betts.

That Ulster County has an abundance of talented individuals was re-emphasized last night also. Without a doubt the two top performers are Elizabeth Askue in the title role and Louise Greenwald as the Dowager Empress. Any apprehensions I may have had about the difficulty of the second act, when the Dowager Empress meets the alleged Anastasia, melted into sheer amazement as these two gifted ladies floated through this scene with unequaled professional grace. Mrs. Askue's skill as an actress was evident throughout the evening. She is a credit to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts where she studied. As Anastasia, she wins an audience completely.

Louise Greenwald gives a very realistic performance of the Empress. She has perfected her role down to an authentic Russian accent. Her performance is impressive.

There were other pleasant surprises in this production. These were the able performances turned in by Robert Baron, James Enderlyn and Gerald Griffin Jr. Griffin was particulary convincing as the sophisticated scoundrel Prince Bounine. All these gentlemen are responsible for the smoothness of the opening act. It set the pace for the entire performance.

Jack Marquardt also proved his theatrical talents last night with his interpretation of the part of Prince Paul. I think that Marquardt will develop into a first rate actor. You will enjoy him in Anastasia.

This capable cast is rounded out by Emilia Weyhe, Matthew Duer, James Blanc, Frank Policano, Kathleen Griffin, W. Scott Foster and Helen Hodges.

There are very few weak spots in this production As a matter of fact, they go almost unnoticed.

Ralph Harper, as always, has done a superb job with the sets. Authenticity has been his byword. In "Anastasia" he has hung a genuine Icon on the wall of the set. It bears the date 1886. The Icon is the property of Christus Larious.

Some of the props used on stage for this production actually belonged to the famous Mae West, I was told. The items of furniture now belong to Mrs. Weyhe.

Credits also got to Diane Pickering, script coordinator, Delores Crosby, costumes, Mary Becker and George Betts for stage settings.

The play will be repeated tonight and Saturday with curtains at 8:30. I recommend it.

Sign of Campaign Debates

Foreign Policy Quiz Constant With Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite an initial quick clash with Republican critics of administration foreign policy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk says he intends to avoid partisan political activities in this presidential campaign year.

But Rusk told a news conference that he cannot help "talking about foreign policy" during the next several months. What he will do, he said, is discuss foreign affairs issues "on a national basis, a bipartisan basis."

More Certain to Follow

Rusk said in response to questions that "it's the desire of the President — the traditional desire of presidents—not to have the secretary of state take part in partisan political activities—and that suits my own personal attitude very well."

How fully he can succeed in this goal is unclear, however, because his news conference at the State Department Thursday afternoon brought questions of a kind he is certain to face more and more as the "grand inquest," as he called it, of policy discussion develops during this campaign season.

Asked Directly

He was asked directly whether he would agree with a statement which the questioner attributed to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Republican presidential nomination contender, that the administration is deliberately hiding the facts of the war in Viet Nam from the American people.

He was also asked whether Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Senate Republican leader, was correct in saying that administration policy for Viet Nam is an enigma.

A Sign in Advance

Such charges from the opposition party are beginning to bring home to Johnson administration leaders that they probably face a major debate over the President's handling of foreign policy.

"I don't believe," Rusk said, "that our policy is an enigma. And as far as the facts are concerned, we get a very heavy flow of facts from there (Viet Nam). I think they are made public out there and back here.

"There are some situations, of course, which you don't talk about.

"But I think the fact that there is concern in this country about the upsurge of Viet Cong (Red guerrilla) activity in the last three or four months represents the fact that the people have been informed that there is a problem, and it must be dealt with."

FAA Chief Given Protection After Telephone Threat

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Najeeb Halaby, the administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency — closely guarded by five policemen after his life reportedly was threatened—said Thursday night if Oklahoma City finds sonic booms intolerable "it is intolerable for the national government as well."

Furious and Curious

Five detectives in plain clothes were assigned to Halaby while he spoke at a civic club dinner and later as he held a 15-minute news conference.

He came to Oklahoma City to discuss a six-month sonic boom test which the FAA began Feb. 3, and which has divided city residents into two groups—the furious and the curious.

The City Council voted Tuesday to ask the FAA to halt the tests, but the next day it decided to hold up any action until it can decide just what it wants to say.

Stanley Draper Jr., office manager of the Chamber of Commerce, confirmed an anonymous caller threatened Halaby, and he said police were notified.

"The phone call was passed on to me. Because of this and other crank calls we decided it might be well to have plain-clothes men there," Draper said.

Draper then said the detectives were present in case opponents of the tests might decide to picket.

"This business of them being there because of the threat is just not true," he said.

Not Aware of Threat

Halaby said he was not aware of the reported threat until he was leaving the hotel "when I noticed five strong-looking men nearby were following me." He flew on to Los Angeles for the weekend.

At a news conference, Halaby said if the city "finds this experiment intolerable, it is intolerable to the national government as well."

The official emphasized that reaction to the tests will have a bearing on the government's decision about development of supersonic transport aircraft in the next decade.

Move Against Charlatans

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A proposal to control marriage counselors has won support from church groups and social organizations that see it as a means of driving charlatans and quacks from the field.

Little opposition was expressed yesterday at a hearing before the joint Legislative Committee on Matrimonial and Family Laws to a bill that would require marriage and family counselors to register with the secretary of state.

Romney's Hawaii-Bound

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney and his wife fly to Hawaii today after an overnight stay in nearby Palo Alto to visit their son Scott, a junior at Stanford University.

On their arrival Thursday, Mrs. Romney enthusiastically flung her arms around her son's neck and accidentally stuck her finger in the nearby governor's eye. He wasn't hurt.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged an irregular recovery early this afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

Selected issues were strong, some rising a point or more. For the over-all list of key stocks, small gains had an edge over losers.

The market was unevenly lower at the start as selling resumed on a limited basis following Thursday's sharp decline. The list soon showed signs of leveling out, however, and this tendency increased until finally stocks were higher on balance.

Little in the way of strong group leadership was apparent. Aerospace issues, rails, chemicals and building materials were mostly higher.

Airlines were still subjected to profit taking on their big recent gains. Oils, utilities and steels were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at nooon was off .1 at 296.7 with industrials off .6, rails up .4 and utilities unchanged.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .57 at 797.61.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in moderately active trading.

Corporate bonds were mixed with rails lower. U.S. government bonds were unchanged to lower in quiet trading.

Grandma Feels Part of School, Freshman at 65

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—A 65-year-old freshman, urged on by her mother, children and grandchildren, has cleared the first major hurdle on her way toward a college degree.

Mrs. Alfred J. Goldberg of nearby Pawtucket is well into her second semester at Roger Williams Junior College, having passed all of her first term courses.

"'It's difficult,'" she said, "but I passed with all C's."

Mrs. Goldberg had been out of school 50 years when she started classes at the college last fall.

"I'm an old gal and I know it," she said. "I was hesitant about the whole thing. 'How would the young people take it?' I wondered.'"

Now, she said, "I can't say I'm one of the kids, but I do feel part of the school, just as they do."

Urging Mrs. Goldberg on is her mother Mrs. Abraham Medofff, 89, of Woonsocket.

Also encouraging her are her two daughters, her three brothers, her two sisters and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Goldberg came to the United States from Russia as a little girl and finished elementary school in Woonsocket during the depresssion which preceded World War I. After taking courses at a secretarial school she went to work.

Mrs. Goldberg and her late husband operated a wholesale and retail textile store in Providence for many years.

She wants to specialize in psychology and sociology in order to take up volunteer social work.

Traffic Hampered 3 Hours by Car Off Rail Tracks

Derailment of a car on a seven-car train headed up the mountain branch of the New York Central from the Hudson Cement plant, North Street, at Murray and Hanratty streets Thursday night hampered traffic there for some three hours.

Trainmaster Edward P. Stonehouse said a front set of wheels on the car was derailed at about 8:30 p. m. and the car was righted at about 11:30. W. J. Effner, of 460 Delaware Avenue, was the engineer and C. J. Bechtold, of 337 Foxhall Avenue, the conductor.

Officers George Barringer and Albert Johnson assisted with traffic. Hanratty Street was completely blocked, but traffic continued one way on Murray Street.

To Probe Alleged Assault by Teacher

Members of the Ellenville Central School District Board of Education, will investigate an incident in which a boy student was allegedly assaulted by a man teacher.

The investigation was requested by Attorney Albert Lonstein at a recent meeting of the school board.

Ben Cramer, board president, said a meeting would be held with the attorney, the boy's parents and the district school board, to investigate the complaint.

It was reported the boy was temporarily excused from the class at the request of his parents.

Lions Hear Head Of Boys Club

John Holochuck, executive director of the Kingston Boys Club, was main speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Kingston Lions Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

More Room Now

Holochuck, who is also a member of the Lions Club, told fellow members that there are 635 Boys Clubs in the country today open to boys from seven to 16 years of age. He said the local club, in which he assumed his post in 1956, recently purchased its club building and increased the club's working area from 900 to 6,000 square feet in addition to acquisition of land in the rear of the club's building at 139 Greenkill Avenue.

Membership in the local club is about 200, the speaker said, and membership fees are so low—as little as a few cents a month in some cases—that any boy in the community can afford to belong. He said that among the many advantages members enjoy is freedom to join the club, enter and leave its facilities at any normal time and to participate in its many activities. Holochuck said that a system of "informal control" of activities and utilization of older boys—"junior leaders"—as assistants, has resulted in favorable response to "kind and considerate suggestions" with respect to desirable habits and behavior. Of this type of "informal guidance," Holochuck said, Boys' Club members, especially those "needing special attention," come very often, almost daily into some informal association or relationship with club leaders. He said that "Guidance occurs in a very quiet and natural manner. The informal guidance procedure is unique because it functions so successfully among large numbers of boys so as to improve the attitude and behavior of all."

Talk on Drugs Set

The Boys Club is a Community Chest-affiliated agency. Holochuck expressed appreciation to the Kingston Lions, who are active in the Chest's annual fund drive.

J. J. Bellizzi, director of the New York State Bureau of Narcotic Control, will be guest speaker at next week's club luncheon meeting. Jerry Sachs, club program chairman, urged all club members to attend.

Asks Why Negroes Are Not Listed On Panel for Jury

Sullivan County's system of selecting prospective jurors was attacked Thursday by Seymour Kreiger of Woodridge, a court-appointed attorney for a defendant on trial in County Court at Monticello.

Kreiger, who appeared for John Cobb, 38-year-old Negro on trial on a narcotics charge, charged in court yesterday that there is something wrong with the system of selecting jurors, since there were no Negroes on the current panel although the county has a sizeable Negro population.

The attorney for Cobb, contended the absence of Negroes on the panel, is a violation of his client's constitutional right to trial by a jury of his peers, according to The Associated Press.

It was reported that Krieger served summonses on town supervisors, clerks and assessors of the towns of Fallsburgh, Bethel and Liberty requiring them to appear in court today to answer questions about the jury system. The present panel of 57 jurors has no Negroes.

Court officials noted that Negroes have been drawn for jury service in the past, but could recall no instance where they actually served on a trial jury.

Questionnaires sent to all voters and used on the basis for jury selection do not require the voter to list his race, color or religion.

Secrecy Cloaks LBJ's Movements

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—President Johnson's movements during his overnight Florida tour were cloaked in unusual secrecy—to the point where no advance announcement was made of the time and place of his departure today from Miami.

There was no indication whether security considerations dictated the hush - hush handling of the trip. However, one unusual security move was evident when he drove through Miami Beach Thursday night: An Army helicopter with two security men sitting inside an open door hovered within 75 feet of the presidential limousine throughout the drive.

The secrecy maneuvers began even before Johnson left Washington Thursday noon. In sharp contrast to past practice, only the sketchiest kind of travel schedule was given out in advance.

Rocky Misses Hoff

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his wife took a hurried 10 minute tour of the State House this morning and dropped in to say hello to Gov. Philip H. Hoff. But the Democratic chief executive wasn't in.

The Republican presidential hopeful and his wife talked in the governor's office with Hoff's executive clerk, James Kennedy and Mrs. Priscilla LaPlante, the governor's secretary.

But with a plane waiting to take him to Keene, N.H., Rockefeller said he couldn't wait any longer.

Hoff's office said the visit was a surprise and that the governor tried to get to the office when he found out Rockefeller was there.

Daughter Helps Parents By Watching Portfolio

Q) "I want your advice for my aged parents. They have a property when sold would bring them about $30,000 — plus a home of their own which they live in. How can this money be invested safely? The difficulty is that I now live on the West Coast and they are back East. Perhaps you could mention a few stocks which we could follow for them through our broker." — N. T.

A) Your parents are extremely fortunate in having a daughter so obviously devoted to them.

I think they should buy 6 relatively stable stocks which you can follow readily through any competent broker. I suggest Consolidated Edison, serving New York City and yielding about 4 per cent; Continental Can, first in containers and selling to yield 4.5 per cent; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Rwy., serving the entire Southwest and yielding 5.1 per cent; Maytag, one of the most efficient appliance makers, selling on a 4.6 per cent basis; and General Motors, bringing a 5.1 per cent return.

Q) "You seldom mention life insurance stocks in your column. I own National Old Line Insurance and Commonwealth Life and am considering adding Philadelphia Life. I will appreciate your opinion of these stocks from the viewpoint of long-term capital gains (5 years)." — C. H.

A) I hope you will allow me to correct you. I have covered insurance stocks 10 times in the past 3 years and have specifically reviewed Commonwealth Life 14 times in the same period.

With that off my chest, I will tell you that I like life insurance stocks as a group for outstanding gains — if held over a period of time. I specifically like your present two holdings and believe you would do very well to add Philadelphia Life, one of my favored companies.

Life companies pay out little in the way of cash dividends, but in many cases they split or declare large stock dividends that over a period increase greatly the value of your holdings.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Johnson Opens '64 Drive With Solid Stand on CR

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Johnson opened his 1964 election campaign by taking a solid stand for civil rights before a Southern audience.

He also shook hands with street-corner crowds, paid a visit to the father of the late President John F. Kennedy in Palm Beach, cuffed the Republicans, and generally seemed to enjoy himself on a quick, four-stop trip to a hotel nightclub to see the entertainers Tony Martin and Cyd Charisse.

Johnson told 3,000 fellow Democrats at a fund-raising dinner Thursday night that "full participation in our society can no longer be reserved to men of one color."

"The administration," he said "intends to press forward with legislation, with education and with action until we have eliminated the last barrier of intolerance." The applause was modest.

Four times, Johnson was applauded when he said that alll Americans—regardless of color, region or religion—have certain constitutional rights and human rights that must be respected.

But, to observers on the sidelines, it appeared that about half the audience sat still and silent.

Miami Beach was the fourth stop on Johnson's Florida tour. He flew from Washington to Jacksonville Naval Air Station where, after shaking a few hands, he proceeded by helicopter to Palatka to break ground for the cross-Florida barge canal that will link the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

After returning to the air station, Johnson flew by jet transport to Palm Beach, where he paid a courtesy call on ailing Joseph P. Kennedy, father of the late president. Then Johnson, his wife and two daughters boarded a helicopter and followed the coast to Miami Beach.

Although a number of these moves were made without advance announcement, Johnson gave no sign that he was concerned about his safety.

At least five times during his Miami Beach stay, the President waded into thick crowds to shake hands, and the crowd pushed and shoved around him.

Think U.N. Will Get Resolution On Cyrus Force

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomatic sources said today that there is some chance the U.N. Security Council will get a resolution this weekend to provide an international peace force and a mediator for the Cyprus crisis.

These sources expressed belief that the resolution, if it materializes, will eventually be adopted.

The council was under new pressure from Britain, which indicated Thursday it would abandon the job of keeping peace on Cyprus if an international force is not set up soon.

Sir Patrick Dean, the chief British delegate, told the council: "It is neither helpful nor fitting for us to continue to carry out this thankless task if there is no prospect of an international force or steps toward an agreed solution of the problems of the republic."

Dean said, however, that Britain is ready to contribute troops to an international force.

Britain normally has a garrison of 2,000 men on Cyprus but has sent 5,000 more at the request of Cypriot President Makarios to enforce the cease-fire that ended the Christmas-time fighting between the Greek Cypriot majority and the Turkish Cypriot minority.

The resolution to authorize the international force and a mediator was reported being prepared by Bolivia, Brazil, the Ivory Coast, Morocco and Norway.

Van Back in Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Van Johnson, who underwent surgery in mid-January, has reentered Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases for what were described as minor complications.

A hospital spokesman said Johnson is expected to leave the hospital over the weekend but that he had canceled his scheduled opening next Tuesday at Harrah's Nightclub in Lake Tahoe, Nev.

A series of hospital appearances by the 47-year-old entertainer began about a year ago when a skin cancer was removed from his left thigh.

The spokesman said Johnson had returned Thursday because the January incision had not healed properly and an infection had developed. The spokesman called it a minor situation.

May Seek Joint Stand

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. and Canadian paper and pulp producers may try to work out a joint stand on European Common Market tariffs, a Canadian industry spokesman has indicated.

Robert M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said his group had accepted a recent American suggestion that a common trade policy be sought.

Fowler spoke to the American Paper and Pulp Association at the final session Thursday of paper week, the U.S. paper industry's 87th annual review. The five-day meeting drew several thousand paper industry executives, salesmen and engineers in more than a dozen trade groups.

Average Temperatures Predicted for Period

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Extended forecasts, prepared by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from 7 p.m. today to 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Eastern New York—Temperatures moderating somewhat and averaging around seasonal levels for the next four or five days. Scattered snow flurries over the weekend and some indication of more general light precipitation early next week.

Western New York—Temperatures averaging 4 to 6 degrees above normal. Warmer over the weeekend, turning colder again Monday but warmer Tuesday and Wednesday. Widely scattered snow flurries Saturday and Wednesday and more frequent flurries late Sunday and Monday.

Maple sap advisory—Because of the gradual warming trend, cold nights and considerable sunshine, sap flow should pick up for the next few days.

Temperature normals — Daytime highs, 27 to 35. Nighttime lows, 7 to 17.

Deer Reported in City

Local police were notified at 5:30 p. m. Thursday that a deer was "running loose" in the uptown area, and was then spotted at Franklin Street and Clinton Avenue. Agent Arnold Adams of the SPCA was dispatched on the hunt, but the animal apparently had made its way back to the open country through back yards. One report indicated the deer arrived in town from the upton arterial spur.

Dutchess Driver Arrested

Merton Stone Sr., 58, of Jefferson Street, Red Hook, was arrested Thursday night by Rhinebeck state police on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. A night patrol made the arrest after a passing motorist told troopers a northbound car was being operated in an unsteady manner. Stone was held in lieu of $50 bail pending hearing later today.

Foreign Policy Quiz Constant With Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite an initial quick clash with Republican critics of administration foreign policy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk says he intends to avoid partisan political activities in this presidential campaign year.

But Rusk told a news conference that he cannot help "talking about foreign policy" during the next several months. What he will do, he said, is discuss foreign affairs issues "on a national basis, a bipartisan basis."

More Certain to Follow

Rusk said in response to questions that "it's the desire of the President — the traditional desire of presidents—not to have the secretary of state take part in partisan political activities—and that suits my own personal attitude very well."

How fully he can succeed in this goal is unclear, however, because his news conference at the State Department Thursday afternoon brought questions of a kind he is certain to face more and more as the "grand inquest," as he called it, of policy discussion develops during this campaign season.

Asked Directly

He was asked directly whether he would agree with a statement which the questioner attributed to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Republican presidential nomination contender, that the administration is deliberately hiding the facts of the war in Viet Nam from the American people.

He was also asked whether Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Senate Republican leader, was correct in saying that administration policy for Viet Nam is an enigma.

A Sign in Advance

Such charges from the opposition party are beginning to bring home to Johnson administration leaders that they probably face a major debate over the President's handling of foreign policy.

"I don't believe,'" Rusk said, "that our policy is an enigma. And as far as the facts are concerned, we get a very heavy flow of facts from there (Viet Nam). I think they are made public out there and back here.

"There are some situations, of course, which you don't talk about.

"But I think the fact that there is concern in this country about the upsurge of Viet Cong (Red guerrilla) activity in the last three or four months represents the fact that the people have been informed that there is a problem, and it must be dealt with."

FAA Chief Given Protection After Telephone Threat

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Najeeb Halaby, the administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency — closely guarded by five policemen after his life reportedly was threatened—said Thursday night if Oklahoma City finds sonic booms intolerable "it is intolerable for the national government as well."

Furious and Curious

Five detectives in plain clothes were assigned to Halaby while he spoke at a civic club dinner and later as he held a 15-minute news conference.

He came to Oklahoma City to discuss a six-month sonic boom test which the FAA began Feb. 3, and which has divided city residents into two groups—the furious and the curious.

The City Council voted Tuesday to ask the FAA to halt the tests, but the next day it decided to hold up any action until it can decide just what it wants to say.

Stanley Draper Jr., office manager of the Chamber of Commerce, confirmed an anonymous caller threatened Halaby, and he said police were notified.

"The phone call was passed on to me. Because of this and other crank calls we decided it might be well to have plain-clothes men there," Draper said.

Draper then said the detectives were present in case opponents of the tests might decide to picket.

"This business of them being there because of the threat is just not true," he said.

Not Aware of Threat

Halaby said he was not aware of the reported threat until he was leaving the hotel "when I noticed five strong-looking men nearby were following me." He flew on to Los Angeles for the weekend.

At a news conference, Halaby said if the city "finds this experiment intolerable, it is intolerable to the national government as well."

The official emphasized that reaction to the tests will have a bearing on the government's decision about development of supersonic transport aircraft in the next decade.

Schiff also is a member of Hurley Lions. Synder's talk was an introduction to a film on Red Cross activities, Down to Earth. (Harold Van Allen photo)

Grandma Feels Part of School, Freshman at 65

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—A 65-year-old freshman, urged on by her mother, children and grandchildren, has cleared the first major hurdle on her way toward a college degree.

Mrs. Alfred J. Goldberg of nearby Pawtucket is well into her second semester at Roger Williams Junior College, having passed all of her first term courses.

"'It's difficult,'" she said, "but I passed with all C's."

Mrs. Goldberg had been out of school 50 years when she started classes at the college last fall.

"I'm an old gal and I know it," she said. "I was hesitant about the whole thing. 'How would the young people take it?' I wondered.'"

Now, she said, "I can't say I'm one of the kids, but I do feel part of the school, just as they do."

Urging Mrs. Goldberg on is her mother Mrs. Abraham Medofff, 89, of Woonsocket.

Also encouraging her are her two daughters, her three brothers, her two sisters and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Goldberg came to the United States from Russia as a little girl and finished elementary school in Woonsocket during the depresssion which preceded World War I. After taking courses at a secretarial school she went to work.

Mrs. Goldberg and her late husband operated a wholesale and retail textile store in Providence for many years.

She wants to specialize in psychology and sociology in order to take up volunteer social work.

Traffic Hampered 3 Hours by Car Off Rail Tracks

Derailment of a car on a seven-car train headed up the mountain branch of the New York Central from the Hudson Cement plant, North Street, at Murray and Hanratty streets Thursday night hampered traffic there for some three hours.

Trainmaster Edward P. Stonehouse said a front set of wheels on the car was derailed at about 8:30 p. m. and the car was righted at about 11:30. W. J. Effner, of 460 Delaware Avenue, was the engineer and C. J. Bechtold, of 337 Foxhall Avenue, the conductor.

Officers George Barringer and Albert Johnson assisted with traffic. Hanratty Street was completely blocked, but traffic continued one way on Murray Street.

The tempo picked up three months ago after a presidential emergency board recommended that the road give its 1,300 off-train workers the raise they asked, and the road refused.

The latest two explosions, the fourth and fifth this month—occurred within a few miles of each other near St. Augustine. The second went off about the time that President Johnson, 15 miles away in Palatka, pressed a button that started construction on the cross-Florida barge canal.

To Probe Alleged Assault by Teacher

Members of the Ellenville Central School District Board of Education, will investigate an incident in which a boy student was allegedly assaulted by a man teacher.

The investigation was requested by Attorney Albert Lonstein at a recent meeting of the school board.

Ben Cramer, board president, said a meeting would be held with the attorney, the boy's parents and the district school board, to investigate the complaint.

It was reported the boy was temporarily excused from the class at the request of his parents.

Lions Hear Head Of Boys Club

John Holochuck, executive director of the Kingston Boys Club, was main speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Kingston Lions Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

More Room Now

Holochuck, who is also a member of the Lions Club, told fellow members that there are 635 Boys Clubs in the country today open to boys from seven to 16 years of age. He said the local club, in which he assumed his post in 1956, recently purchased its club building and increased the club's working area from 900 to 6,000 square feet in addition to acquisition of land in the rear of the club's building at 139 Greenkill Avenue.

Membership in the local club is about 200, the speaker said, and membership fees are so low —as little as a few cents a month in some cases—that any boy in the community can afford to belong. He said that among the many advantages members enjoy is freedom to join the club, enter and leave its facilities at any normal time and to participate in its many activities. Holochuck said that a system of "informal control" of activities and utilization of older boys—"junior leaders"—as assistants, has resulted in favorable response to "kind and considerate suggestions" with respect to desirable habits and behavior. Of this type of "informal guidance," Holochuck said, Boys' Club members, especially those "needing special attention," "come very often, almost daily into some informal association or relationship with club leaders. He said that "Guidance occurs in a very quiet and natural manner. The informal guidance procedure is unique because it functions so successfully among large numbers of boys so as to improve the attitude and behavior of all."

Talk on Drugs Set

The Boys Club is a Community Chest-affiliated agency. Holochuck expressed appreciation to the Kingston Lions, who are active in the Chest's annual fund drive.

J. J. Bellizzi, director of the New York State Bureau of Narcotic Control, will be guest speaker at next week's club luncheon meeting. Jerry Sachs, club program chairman, urged all club members to attend.

Dogs Kill Cat

Police were notified at 4:30 p. m. Thursday that a pack of dogs had killed the pet cat of Mrs. William Freer, of 11 Klingburg Avenue. Agent Arnold Adams of the SPCA investigated, and found the animal had apparently been killed by dogs.

In an effort to speed things up, Becker has filed a discharge petition for his amendment, a device aimed at taking it out of the Judiciary Committee's hards and bring it directly to the House floor.

This takes the signatures of 218 House members, a majority, on the discharge petition. So far Becker has collected 149.

Asks Why Negroes Are Not Listed On Panel for Jury

Sullivan County's system of selecting prospective jurors was attacked Thursday by Seymour Kreiger of Woodridge, a court-appointed attorney for a defendant on trial in County Court at Monticello.

Kreiger, who appeared for John Cobb, 38-year-old Negro on trial on a narcotics charge, charged in court yesterday that there is something wrong with the system of selecting jurors, since there were no Negroes on the current panel although the county has a sizeable Negro population.

The attorney for Cobb, contended the absence of Negroes on the panel, is a violation of his client's constitutional right to trial by a jury of his peers, according to The Associated Press.

It was reported that Krieger served summonses on town supervisors, clerks and assessors of the towns of Fallsburgh, Bethel and Liberty requiring them to appear in court today to answer questions about the jury system. The present panel of 57 jurors has no Negroes.

Court officials noted that Negroes have been drawn for jury service in the past, but could recall no instance where they actually served on a trial jury.

Questionnaires sent to all voters and used on the basis for jury selection do not require the voter to list his race, color or religion.

Secrecy Cloaks LBJ's Movements

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—President Johnson's movements during his overnight Florida tour were cloaked in unusual secrecy—to the point where no advance announcement was made of the time and place of his departure today from Miami.

There was no indication whether security considerations dictated the hush - hush handling of the trip. However, one unusual security move was evident when he drove through Miami Beach Thursday night: An Army helicopter with two security men sitting inside an open door hovered within 75 feet of the presidential limousine throughout the drive.

The secrecy maneuvers began even before Johnson left Washington Thursday noon. In sharp contrast to past practice, only the sketchiest kind of travel schedule was given out in advance.

Rocky Misses Hoff

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his wife took a hurried 10 minute tour of the State House this morning and dropped in to say hello to Gov. Philip H. Hoff. But the Democratic chief executive wasn't in.

The Republican presidential hopeful and his wife talked in the governor's office with Hoff's executive clerk, James Kennedy and Mrs. Priscilla LaPlante, the governor's secretary.

But with a plane waiting to take him to Keene, N.H., Rockefeller said he couldn't wait any longer.

Hoff's office said the visit was a surprise and that the governor tried to get to the office when he found out Rockefeller was there.

Kohler, Gromyko Talk

MOSCOW (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler conferred with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko for nearly two hours today. Kohler said afterward he was "satisfied and reasonably optimistic" about Soviet-American relations.

The conference, Kohler said, was in preparation for talks he will have next week in Washington with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and President Johnson.

Thursday night, at a Kremlin reception, Kohler had a conversation with Premier Khrushchev.

Daughter Helps Parents By Watching Portfolio

Q) "I want your advice for my aged parents. They have a property when sold would bring them about $30,000 — plus a home of their own which they live in. How can this money be invested safely? The difficulty is that I now live on the West Coast and they are back East. Perhaps you could mention a few stocks which we could follow for them through our broker." — N. T.

A) Your parents are extremely fortunate in having a daughter so obviously devoted to them.

I think they should buy 6 relatively stable stocks which you can follow readily through any competent broker. I suggest Consolidated Edison, serving New York City and yielding about 4 per cent; Continental Can, first in containers and selling to yield 4.5 per cent; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Rwy., serving the entire Southwest and yielding 5.1 per cent; Maytag, one of the most efficient appliance makers, selling on a 4.6 per cent basis; and General Motors, bringing a 5.1 per cent return.

Q) "You seldom mention life insurance stocks in your column. I own National Old Line Insurance and Commonwealth Life and am considering adding Philadelphia Life. I will appreciate your opinion of these stocks from the viewpoint of long-term capital gains (5 years)." — C. H.

A) I hope you will allow me to correct you. I have covered insurance stocks 10 times in the past 3 years and have specifically reviewed Commonwealth Life 14 times in the same period.

With that off my chest, I will tell you that I like life insurance stocks as a group for outstanding gains — if held over a period of time. I specifically like your present two holdings and believe you would do very well to add Philadelphia Life, one of my favored companies.

Life companies pay out little in the way of cash dividends, but in many cases they split or declare large stock dividends that over a period increase greatly the value of your holdings.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Johnson Opens '64 Drive With Solid Stand on CR

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Johnson opened his 1964 election campaign by taking a solid stand for civil rights before a Southern audience.

He also shook hands with street-corner crowds, paid a visit to the father of the late President John F. Kennedy in Palm Beach, cuffed the Republicans, and generally seemed to enjoy himself on a quick, four-stop trip to a hotel nightclub to see the entertainers Tony Martin and Cyd Charisse.

Johnson told 3,000 fellow Democrats at a fund-raising dinner Thursday night that "full participation in our society can no longer be reserved to men of one color."

"The administration," he said "intends to press forward with legislation, with education and with action until we have eliminated the last barrier of intolerance." The applause was modest.

Four times, Johnson was applauded when he said that alll Americans—regardless of color, region or religion—have certain constitutional rights and human rights that must be respected.

But, to observers on the sidelines, it appeared that about half the audience sat still and silent.

Miami Beach was the fourth stop on Johnson's Florida tour. He flew from Washington to Jacksonville Naval Air Station where, after shaking a few hands, he proceeded by helicopter to Palatka to break ground for the cross-Florida barge canal that will link the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

After returning to the air station, Johnson flew by jet transport to Palm Beach, where he paid a courtesy call on ailing Joseph P. Kennedy, father of the late president. Then Johnson, his wife and two daughters boarded a helicopter and followed the coast to Miami Beach.

Although a number of these moves were made without advance announcement, Johnson gave no sign that he was concerned about his safety.

At least five times during his Miami Beach stay, the President waded into thick crowds to shake hands, and the crowd pushed and shoved around him.

Think U.N. Will Get Resolution On Cyrus Force

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomatic sources said today that there is some chance the U.N. Security Council will get a resolution this weekend to provide an international peace force and a mediator for the Cyprus crisis.

These sources expressed belief that the resolution, if it materializes, will eventually be adopted.

The council was under new pressure from Britain, which indicated Thursday it would abandon the job of keeping peace on Cyprus if an international force is not set up soon.

Sir Patrick Dean, the chief British delegate, told the council: "It is neither helpful nor fitting for us to continue to carry out this thankless task if there is no prospect of an international force or steps toward an agreed solution of the problems of the republic."

Dean said, however, that Britain is ready to contribute troops to an international force.

Britain normally has a garrison of 2,000 men on Cyprus but has sent 5,000 more at the request of Cypriot President Makarios to enforce the cease-fire that ended the Christmas-time fighting between the Greek Cypriot majority and the Turkish Cypriot minority.

The resolution to authorize the international force and a mediator was reported being prepared by Bolivia, Brazil, the Ivory Coast, Morocco and Norway.

Van Back in Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Van Johnson, who underwent surgery in mid-January, has reentered Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases for what were described as minor complications.

A hospital spokesman said Johnson is expected to leave the hospital over the weekend but that he had canceled his scheduled opening next Tuesday at Harrah's Nightclub in Lake Tahoe, Nev.

A series of hospital appearances by the 47-year-old entertainer began about a year ago when a skin cancer was removed from his left thigh.

The spokesman said Johnson had returned Thursday because the January incision had not healed properly and an infection had developed. The spokesman called it a minor situation.

May Seek Joint Stand

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. and Canadian paper and pulp producers may try to work out a joint stand on European Common Market tariffs, a Canadian industry spokesman has indicated.

Robert M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said his group had accepted a recent American suggestion that a common trade policy be sought.

Fowler spoke to the American Paper and Pulp Association at the final session Thursday of paper week, the U.S. paper industry's 87th annual review. The five-day meeting drew several thousand paper industry executives, salesmen and engineers in more than a dozen trade groups.

Average Temperatures Predicted for Period

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Extended forecasts, prepared by the U.S. Weather Bureau, from 7 p.m. today to 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Eastern New York—Temperatures moderating somewhat and averaging around seasonal levels for the next four or five days. Scattered snow flurries over the weekend and some indication of more general light precipitation early next week.

Western New York—Temperatures averaging 4 to 6 degrees above normal. Warmer over the weeekend, turning colder again Monday but warmer Tuesday and Wednesday. Widely scattered snow flurries Saturday and Wednesday and more frequent flurries late Sunday and Monday.

Maple sap advisory—Because of the gradual warming trend, cold nights and considerable sunshine, sap flow should pick up for the next few days.

Temperature normals — Daytime highs, 27 to 35. Nighttime lows, 7 to 17.

Deer Reported in City

Local police were notified at 5:30 p. m. Thursday that a deer was "running loose" in the uptown area, and was then spotted at Franklin Street and Clinton Avenue. Agent Arnold Adams of the SPCA was dispatched on the hunt, but the animal apparently had made its way back to the open country through back yards. One report indicated the deer arrived in town from the upton arterial spur.

Dutchess Driver Arrested

Merton Stone Sr., 58, of Jefferson Street, Red Hook, was arrested Thursday night by Rhinebeck state police on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. A night patrol made the arrest after a passing motorist told troopers a northbound car was being operated in an unsteady manner. Stone was held in lieu of $50 bail pending hearing later today.

St. Mary's Juniors Gain Semi-Finals at Beacon

St. Mary's of Kingston scored an impressive 60-29 victory over St. Mary's of Wappingers Falls to gain the semi-final round in the Fifth Annual Beacon Invitational CYO tournament.

The locals are scheduled to meet St. Patrick's of Newburgh, Orange County CYO Junior champions, in the semi-final game.

The county CYO Junior champions, flashing a well balanced attack in which all nine players scored, were never in trouble. They spurted to a 17-3 first period lead and were in front 26-15 at the half. A 22-8 fourth quarter margin completely buried the Wappingers squad.

Ackert Scores 15

Bruce Ackert led the Kingston scorers with 15 points and Vince Fisher and Tony Toney with 10 each led the attack which crumbled the man-to-man Wappingers defense.

Art Peluse of Wappingers took game honors with 19 points.

Rice-Kalleberg Bridge Leaders

Charles Rice of Saugerties and Arling Kalleberg of Mount Marion posted a superb 65 per cent game to lead the North-South side of the Glenerie Bridge Club's monthly Master Point duplicate bridge tournament.

The crack combine of Ralph Wesselmann, Shokan, and Harry Berleth, Woodstock, led the East-West contingent with 61 per cent. Twenty-four boards competed in a Mitchell movement.

The runnersup were:

North-South: Mrs. Harold Rakov, Kingston, and Paul Perlman, Woodstock, 58 per cent; Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Lodge, Port Ewen, 57½ per cent; Miss Dorothy Maroon-I. H. Wheatcroft, Kingston, 54 per cent.

East-West: Harry Thayer, Kingston, and Eleanor Triller, Poughkeepsie, 60½ per cent; Dr. and Mrs. Harry McNamara, Hurley, 53½ per cent; Mrs. C. Walters and Mrs. M. Albrecht, Hurley, 52 per cent.

A Fractional point game is scheduled tonight at 8 o'clock at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

Top Seeded Five Leads All Way; Bleau Scores 20

Top-seeded Cortland State did the expected and knocked off State University of New Paltz, 70-59 yesterday in the opening round of the New York State Teachers College Basketball Tournament at Buffalo.

In other games Thursday, Plattsburgh beat Buffalo State, 72-63; Potsdam mastered Brockport, 51-45; and Oswego tromped Oneonta, 58-44.

Cortland faces defending champion Potsdam and Oswego meets Plattsburgh in the semi-finals today. In consolation contests, New Paltz takes on Brockport and Oneonta plays Buffalo State.

Coach Doug Sheppard's Hawks used a collapsing zone defense to hold Cortland's ace Dave Bleau to a respectable 20 points but nevertheless trailed from the beginning. Bleau has been averaging 30 points this season and set all-tourney records last season.

Doyle Scores 16

Sophomore James Doyle led New Paltz with 16 points, one more than Fred Sadler, who was the target of the Cortland defense throughout the contest. Three other Cortland players supported Bleau with double-figure performances.

Led by Tom Chapin's 27 points, Plattsburgh rolled over state after picking up an early lead. Jim Roll contributed 18 points to Buffalo's effort.

Potsdam, which controlled the ball and made few mistakes, came from behind in the first half and maintained a four-to-five-point edge throughout the second half. Rick Stopa scored 19 points for the 1962-63 champions.

Casmir Kowalski, with an effort of 16 points, helped Oswego win.

The three-day event ends Saturday.

Referee Felix Almost Stopped Title Contest

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Referee Barney Felix says he almost decided to stop the Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay fight before the start of the fifth round because of trouble Clay was having with his eyes.

In the rest period before the fifth, Felix said Thursday, Clay sat in his corner blinking his eyes as though he was having severe vision trouble.

"I called for a doctor but the bell rang and it was too late," Felix said.

"Clay's handlers pushed him out into the ring. He was blinking badly and raised his hands as if he wanted to quit. I thought something was in his eyes and he was dangerously hurt.

"But he was able to keep away from Liston and I let it go."

Clay admitted after the fight he wanted to quit before the fifth round because his eyes were burning and everything was blurry. But he said his trainer wouldn't let him give up.

His eyes cleared near the end of the round and he went on to win in the seventh on a technical knockout.

Nordic Ski Club In Cross Country

The Roseridale Nordic Ski Club, Inc. will sponsor another 3.5 kilometer cross country race, starting at Williams Lake Sunday at 2:30 p. m. All skiers interested in racing are requested to register at 2 p. m. with the chief of the race, Capt. Alvar Ryman, at the television room of the hotel.

The public is invited and there is no entry fee. The cross country committee of directors Walter Williams, Kenneth Tokle, Arnold Berge, Ryman, Rune Karlson and William P. Curran, club president, announces that races of 3.5 to 5 kilometers will be held each week at the same time, starting on the lake in front of the hotel and finishing at he same location.

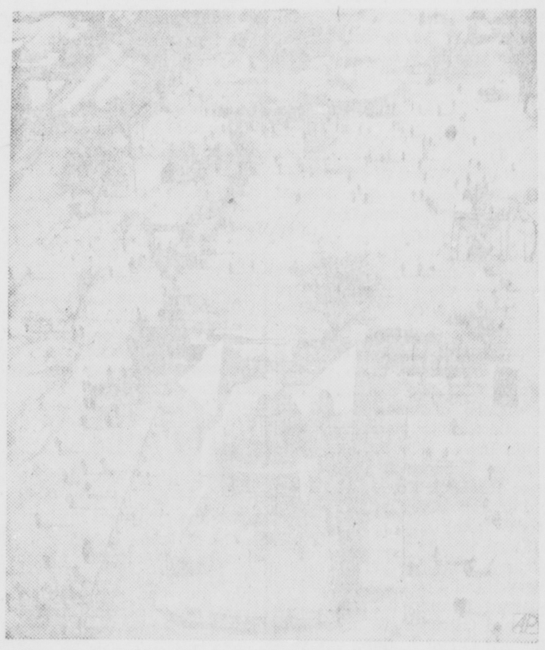

Response to the first race held on Feb. 24 was excellent and prompted club directors to slate races every Sunday for the remainder of the 1964 season.

Speaking of Sports

Not All Imponderable, These

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Freeman Sports Editor)

Question and no-answer-required period:

Wasn't Al Cawein of our editorial department one of the pheenoms of the week, picking Clay to beat Liston? Will the Mid-Atlantic Baseball League re-organize for 1964 an if the championship team doesn't complete its schedule, should it? . . . Can Frank (Bing) Van Etten restore some continuity to the Babe Ruth League, which last year failed to complete divisional and a championship playoff? Knowing Bing's penchant for detail, we have a hunch he will.

* * *

Will there be American Legion Junior baseball in Kingston this year? If not why not? What is causing the dearth of high scores in women's bowling this season? Remember way back in 1953 when the bowling column carried at least two or three "600" sets a week? . . . Wouldn't the Kingston Woman's Bowling Association and sports organizations in general be better off restricting the tenure of office of the president to no more than two terms? And wasn't there some talk about such legislation a while back? . . . Why do sports, business, fraternal and other groups persist in putting the president on the nominating committees? Isn't that the surest way to perpetuate an oligarchy, if one is intended?

* * *

The New Yankees? ? ?

Will the New York Yankees' front office break down and be nice to typewriter guys, now that the Mets are a sure bet to outdraw them with that spanking new stadium in Flushing. And even though the Yankees have their Yogi as manager . . . Isn't Johnny Ferraro still the No. 1 all-time bowling selection in Kingston tennin history? And if he isn't, will you please step front and center with your nomination? And doesn't John rate all-time Hudson Valley rating along with Jake Charter, Phil Versace, Nick Lecce and Tony Mack? . . . Aren't the big time bowlers sometimes the most querulous of the sporting clan? . . . Who dreams up those atrocious names for some bowling teams? . . . Will there be enough fathers and uncles and friends interested in umpiring Little League and Babe Ruth League games this season. We mean enough so that the kids or kids near their age won't have to umpire league games?

The Sonnenberg Opus

Do you think the Kingston Bowling Association will ever stick to a tournament entries deadline. We doubt it seriously, since they have repudiated their own warnings so many times in the past . . . And didn't Al Sonnenberg, the very finest public relations man the KBA ever had, do a brilliant job with the association's all-time records brochure? . . . Will the next golf decade produce a trio like Leon Randall, Bill Van Aken and George Hughes? . . . William (Buzzy) Costello has all the equipment to become one of the area's all-time golf greats. He isn't going to disappoint us, is he? . . . When are the oldies at Twaalfskill going to break down and admit the junior members into the club championships?? If they don't, the day is coming when George Hughes and Alvin Boice will have to be transported to the first tee in wheelchairs for the "champeenship" match . . . How long do you think baseball would last if umpires were fined and suspended as frequently as harness racing drivers, handlers and trainers? But then, you know, there's no betting on baseball's homo sapiens, per se.

* * *

Our Face Is Red, Too . . .

Is your face appropriately crimson (our is) for forecasting the early demise of Gaseous Cassius a few nights ago in Miami? And what was Sonny doing when Cassius was floundering around "blinded" in the fifth round? If this doesn't signal the beginning of the end for the manly art of scrambling ears, then Phineas T. Barnum was right. There are thousands born every minute. But be of stout heart! The line forms on the right for the return-bout suckers. And the "rubber match," too.

Kuharich Heads Philly Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Kuharich took over as head coach of the National Football today, armed with a four-year contract and a mandate from millionaire owner Jerry Wolman to build the best team money can buy.

Wolman introduced Kuharich as his new coach at a news conference Thursday night, confirming a 24-hour-old report by The Associated Press that the 46-year-old former college and pro coach would get the job.

Kuharich succeeds Nick Skorich, fired by Wolman last month on the very day the 3 year-old contractor's $5.5 million purchase of the Eagles was approved by the league. He takes over a team that has been last in its division two straight years and in dire need of a complete overhauling.

St. Mary's Juniors Gain Semi-Finals at Beacon

St. Mary's of Kingston scored an impressive 60-29 victory over St. Mary's of Wappingers Falls to gain the semi-final round in the Fifth Annual Beacon Invitational CYO tournament.

The locals are scheduled to meet St. Patrick's of Newburgh, Orange County CYO Junior champions, in the semi-final game.

The county CYO Junior champions, flashing a well balanced attack in which all nine players scored, were never in trouble. They spurted to a 17-3 first period lead and were in front 26-15 at the half. A 22-8 fourth quarter margin completely buried the Wappingers squad.

Ackert Scores 15

Bruce Ackert led the Kingston scorers with 15 points and Vince Fisher and Tony Toney with 10 each led the attack which crumbled the man-to-man Wappingers defense.

Art Peluse of Wappingers took game honors with 19 points.

Top Seeded Five Leads All Way; Bleau Scores 20

Top-seeded Cortland State did the expected and knocked off State University of New Paltz, 70-59 yesterday in the opening round of the New York State Teachers College Basketball Tournament at Buffalo.

In other games Thursday, Plattsburgh beat Buffalo State, 72-63; Potsdam mastered Brockport, 51-45; and Oswego tromped Oneonta, 58-44.

Cortland faces defending champion Potsdam and Oswego meets Plattsburgh in the semi-finals today. In consolation contests, New Paltz takes on Brockport and Oneonta plays Buffalo State.

Coach Doug Sheppard's Hawks used a collapsing zone defense to hold Cortland's ace Dave Bleau to a respectable 20 points but nevertheless trailed from the beginning. Bleau has been averaging 30 points this season and set all-tourney records last season.

Doyle Scores 16

Sophomore James Doyle led New Paltz with 16 points, one more than Fred Sadler, who was the target of the Cortland defense throughout the contest. Three other Cortland players supported Bleau with double-figure performances.

Led by Tom Chapin's 27 points, Plattsburgh rolled over state after picking up an early lead. Jim Roll contributed 18 points to Buffalo's effort.

Potsdam, which controlled the ball and made few mistakes, came from behind in the first half and maintained a four-to-five-point edge throughout the second half. Rick Stopa scored 19 points for the 1962-63 champions.

Casmir Kowalski, with an effort of 16 points, helped Oswego win.

The three-day event ends Saturday.

Referee Felix Almost Stopped Title Contest

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Referee Barney Felix says he almost decided to stop the Sonny Liston-Cassius Clay fight before the start of the fifth round because of trouble Clay was having with his eyes.

In the rest period before the fifth, Felix said Thursday, Clay sat in his corner blinking his eyes as though he was having severe vision trouble.

"I called for a doctor but the bell rang and it was too late," Felix said.

"Clay's handlers pushed him out into the ring. He was blinking badly and raised his hands as if he wanted to quit. I thought something was in his eyes and he was dangerously hurt.

"But he was able to keep away from Liston and I let it go."

Clay admitted after the fight he wanted to quit before the fifth round because his eyes were burning and everything was blurry. But he said his trainer wouldn't let him give up.

His eyes cleared near the end of the round and he went on to win in the seventh on a technical knockout.

Nordic Ski Club In Cross Country

The Roseridale Nordic Ski Club, Inc. will sponsor another 3.5 kilometer cross country race, starting at Williams Lake Sunday at 2:30 p. m. All skiers interested in racing are requested to register at 2 p. m. with the chief of the race, Capt. Alvar Ryman, at the television room of the hotel.

The public is invited and there is no entry fee. The cross country committee of directors Walter Williams, Kenneth Tokle, Arnold Berge, Ryman, Rune Karlson and William P. Curran, club president, announces that races of 3.5 to 5 kilometers will be held each week at the same time, starting on the lake in front of the hotel and finishing at he same location.

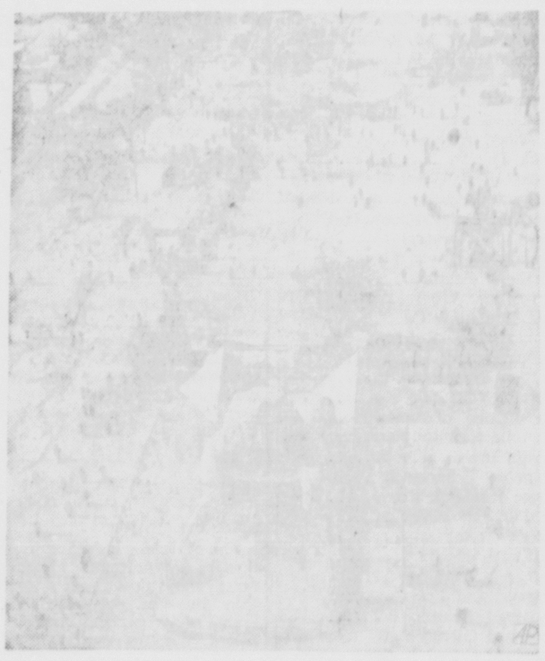

Response to the first race held on Feb. 24 was excellent and prompted club directors to slate races every Sunday for the remainder of the 1964 season.

Speaking of Sports

Not All Imponderable, These

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Freeman Sports Editor)

Question and no-answer-required period:

Wasn't Al Cawein of our editorial department one of the pheenoms of the week, picking Clay to beat Liston? Will the Mid-Atlantic Baseball League re-organize for 1964 an if the championship team doesn't complete its schedule, should it? . . . Can Frank (Bing) Van Etten restore some continuity to the Babe Ruth League, which last year failed to complete divisional and a championship playoff? Knowing Bing's penchant for detail, we have a hunch he will.

* * *

Will there be American Legion Junior baseball in Kingston this year? If not why not? What is causing the dearth of high scores in women's bowling this season? Remember way back in 1953 when the bowling columns carried at least two or three "600" sets a week? . . . Wouldn't the Kingston Woman's Bowling Association and sports organizations in general be better off restricting the tenure of office of the president to no more than two terms? And wasn't there some talk about such legislation a while back? . . . Why do sports, business, fraternal and other groups persist in putting the president on the nominating committees? Isn't that the surest way to perpetuate an oligarchy, if one is intended?

* * *

The New Yankees? ? ?

Will the New York Yankees' front office break down and be nice to typewriter guys, now that the Mets are a sure bet to outdraw them with that spanking new stadium in Flushing. And even though the Yankees have their Yogi as manager . . . Isn't Johnny Ferraro still the No. 1 all-time bowling selection in Kingston tenpin history? And if he isn't, will you please step front and center with your nomination? And doesn't John rate all-time Hudson Valley rating along with Jake Charter, Phil Versace, Nick Lecce and Tony Mack? . . . Aren't the big time bowlers sometimes the most querulous of the sporting clan? . . . Who dreams up those atrocious names for some bowling teams? . . . Will there be enough fathers and uncles and friends interested in umpiring Little League and Babe Ruth League games this season. We mean enough so that the kids or kids near their age won't have to umpire league games?

The Sonnenberg Opus

Do you think the Kingston Bowling Association will ever stick to a tournament entries deadline. We doubt it seriously, since they have repudiated their own warnings so many times in the past . . . And didn't Al Sonnenberg, the very finest public relations man the KBA ever had, do a brilliant job with the association's all-time records brochure? . . . Will the next golf decade produce a trio like Leon Randall, Bill Van Aken and George Hughes? . . . William (Buzzy) Costello has all the equipment to become one of the area's all-time golf greats. He isn't going to disappoint us, is he? . . . When are the oldies at Twaalfskill going to break down and admit the junior members into the club championships?? If they don't, the day is coming when George Hughes and Alvin Boice will have to be transported to the first tee in wheelchairs for the "champeenship" match . . . How long do you think baseball would last if umpires were fined and suspended as frequently as harness racing drivers, handlers and trainers? But then, you know, there's no betting on baseball's homo sapiens, per se.

* * *

Our Face Is Red, Too . . .

Is your face appropriately crimson (our is) for forecasting the early demise of Gaseous Cassius a few nights ago in Miami? And what was Sonny doing when Cessius was floundering around "blinded" in the fifth round? If this doesn't signal the beginning of the end for the manly art of scrambling ears, then Phineas T. Barnum was right. There are thousands born every minute. But be of stout heart! The line forms on the right for the return-bout suckers. And the "rubber match," too.

Kuharich Heads Phi'lly Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Kuharich took over as head coach of the National Football today, armed with a four-year contract and a mandate from millionaire owner Jerry Wolman to build the best team money can buy.

Wolman introduced Kuharich as his new coach at a news conference Thursday night, confirming a 24-hour-old report by The Associated Press that the 46-year-old former college and pro coach would get the job.

Kuharich succeeds Nick Skorich, fired by Wolman last month on the very day the 3 year-old contractor's $5.5 million purchase of the Eagles was approved by the league. He takes over a team that has been last in its division two straight years and in dire need of a complete overhauling.

Kingston Plays At Port Jervis In Final Game

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

While Kingston High cagers finish their season on the road, the UCAL championship will be on the line at the Rondout Valley Central school gym in Stone Ridge as the Ganders host league leading Wallkill.

Newburgh Free Academy, in first place in the DUSO circuit, can also clinch tonight. All the Goldies have to do is stop pesky Monticello at the Hilly City gym.

There are other games on tap, but for the most part, they are meaningless. In the DUSO, Liberty is at Middletown. The rest of the UCAL slate finds Onteora at Marlboro and Highland at New Paltz. Wappingers plays at Roosevelt and Arlington at Lourdes in the other DCSL contests.

Kingston can wind up its season with a 9-9 record, including 7-5 in the league, by beating Port Jervis. The Raiders were whipped, 62-44, here and don't figure to improve any tonight.

Wallkill, unbeaten in UCAL competition since losing its opener to Highland, is favored to beat Rondout Valley, which has to triumph in this one to force a tie and a playoff.

Lost to New Paltz

The Panthers won the first meeting in easy fashion. Rondout fell off the pace by blowing to New Paltz last week. Until that game, the Ganders and Panthers had been tied for the top spot.

Newburgh has no easy task but should beat Monticello, which has Ty Sands, Dave Brownbill and little else. The Goldies were impressive in their easy victory over Kingston. They beat Monticello at the Sullivan County court.

After tonight's slate, only Sectional playoffs remain. Of the local clubs, only Rondout has a chance to compete and the Ganders must beat Wallkill twice in succession to qualify.

Yogi Story

NEW YORK (NEA) — Yogi Berra had a date with Joe Garagiola and was to drive the other old catcher to a sports dinner.

Berra, now manager of the New York Yankees, was 45 minutes late picking up Garagiola, now a commentator and master of ceremonies. Berra is known as the guy who came late to dinner.

Garagiola chided his boyhood friend about his tardiness. Yogi dismissed it with a wave of the hand and said:

"That's the earliest I've ever been late."

Kingston Plays At Port Jervis In Final Game

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

While Kingston High cagers finish their season on the road, the UCAL championship will be on the line at the Rondout Valley Central school gym in Stone Ridge as the Ganders host league leading Wallkill.

Newburgh Free Academy, in first place in the DUSO circuit, can also clinch tonight. All the Goldies have to do is stop pesky Monticello at the Hilly City gym.

There are other games on tap, but for the most part, they are meaningless. In the DUSO, Liberty is at Middletown. The rest of the UCAL slate finds Onteora at Marlboro and Highland at New Paltz. Wappingers plays at Roosevelt and Arlington at Lourdes in the other DCSL contests.

Kingston can wind up its season with a 9-9 record, including 7-5 in the league, by beating Port Jervis. The Raiders were whipped, 62-44, here and don't figure to improve any tonight.

Wallkill, unbeaten in UCAL competition since losing its opener to Highland, is favored to beat Rondout Valley, which has to triumph in this one to force a tie and a playoff.

Lost to New Paltz

The Panthers won the first meeting in easy fashion. Rondout fell off the pace by blowing to New Paltz last week. Until that game, the Ganders and Panthers had been tied for the top spot.

Newburgh has no easy task but should beat Monticello, which has Ty Sands, Dave Brownbill and little else. The Goldies were impressive in their easy victory over Kingston. They beat Monticello at the Sullivan County court.

After tonight's slate, only Sectional playoffs remain. Of the local clubs, only Rondout has a chance to compete and the Ganders must beat Wallkill twice in succession to qualify.

Yogi Story

NEW YORK (NEA) — Yogi Berra had a date with Joe Garagiola and was to drive the other old catcher to a sports dinner.

Berra, now manager of the New York Yankees, was 45 minutes late picking up Garagiola, now a commentator and master of ceremonies. Berra is known as the guy who came late to dinner.

Garagiola chided his boyhood friend about his tardiness. Yogi dismissed it with a wave of the hand and said:

"That's the earliest I've ever been late."

EMPLOYMENT

NOTICE TO JOB APPLICANTS

The Kingston Daily Freeman does not knowingly accept Help-Wanted advertisements from employers covered by the Federal Wage-Hour Law if they offer less than legal minimum wages. Most employes engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or in the production of goods for such commerce must be paid not less than $1.25 an hour and at least one and one-half times their regular rate of pay for hours worked after a maximum workweek of 40 hours, unless specifically exempt. Also, most employes in certain large retail, service, construction and other enterprises engaged in or producing goods for commerce, who have been entitled to a minimum wage of at least $1.00 an hour since September 3, 1961, must be paid overtime pay of not less than one and one-half times their regular rates for all hours worked after a maximum workweek of 44 hours, unless specifically exempt. If you are offered less by covered employers, or if you have questions concerning the Fair Labor Standards Act or other activities of the U. S. Department of Labor, call or write the Department's local office at 881 Gerard Ave., Bronx, N. Y. 10452 WYandotte 2-1235.

EMPLOYMENT

NOTICE TO JOB APPLICANTS
The Kingston Daily Freeman does not knowingly accept Help-Wanted advertisements from employers covered by the Federal Wage-Hour Law if they offer less than legal minimum wages. Most employes engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or in the production of goods for such commerce must be paid not less than $1.25 an hour and at least one and one-half times their regular rate of pay for hours worked after a maximum workweek of 40 hours, unless specifically exempt. Also, most employes in certain large retail, service, construction and other enterprises engaged in or producing goods for commerce, who have been entitled to a minimum wage of at least $1.00 an hour since September 3, 1961, must be paid overtime pay of not less than one and one-half times their regular rates for all hours worked after a maximum workweek of 44 hours, unless specifically exempt. If you are offered less by covered employers, or if you have questions concerning the Fair Labor Standards Act or other activities of the U. S. Department of Labor, call or write the Department's local office at 881 Gerard Ave., Bronx, N. Y. 10452 WYandotte 2-1235.

Light Snow, Rain Outlook for Most Of East Coast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and snow hit eastern sections of the nation today after heavy rains doused areas in the Southeast but generally dry weather prevailed in most other regions.

Low clouds and fog blanketed the northeast Gulf in the wake of the rain that swept the areas Thursday and spread to the East Coast. Heaviest rainfall was in Tallahassee, Fla., with five inches during an 18-hour period.

As the storm moved northward, snow fell in parts of Kentucky and rain and snow hit southern Virginia. Fairly heavy snow was indicated in the southern Appalachians, with light snow and rain in prospect along the entire East Coast.

Only other wet spots were the northern and central Plains and the Upper Great Lakes region, with light snow or snow flurries. Fair or partly cloudy skies were reported in other parts of the nation.

Coldest weather was in New England with below zero temperatures, ranging to 13 below zero in Old Town, Maine. It was 10 below zero in Montpelier, Vt., and Lebanon, N.H. Readings were near zero in parts of Upstate New York.

Trantino Faces Chair in April

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP)—Thomas (Rabbi Tom) Trantino, convicted slayer of two Lodi policemen, was sentenced today to die in the electric chair the week of April 5.

Bergen County Court Judge Joseph W. Marini pronounced the mandatory death sentence on Trantino, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Trantino took the sentence standing silently, with his hands clasped in front. When asked if he had anything to say, Trantino simply looked at Marini and remained silent.

A jury convicted Trantino of first-degree murder with no recommendation for mercy. In New Jersey, this automatically means the electric chair at the State Penitentiary in Trenton.

The seemingly emotionless Trantino, dressed nattily in a dark suit, was taken to the penitentiary in Trenton.

An appeal of the death sentence is mandatory under New Jersey law.

ROYAL ROMANCES—A flurry of betrothals, engagements and renouncements has put at least some of the world's royalty into the headlines in recent days. Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark (top, left) will reportedly convert to the Greek Orthodox faith of her betrothed, Crown Prince Constantine of Greece (top, right) and renounce her right of succession to the Danish throne. And in Japan, Prince Yoshi, 28, (bottom, left) second son of Emperor Hirohito, will marry Hanako Tsugaru, 23, (bottom, right) sometime after the Olympic Games in October. The announcements follow that of Holland's Princess Irene, who has renounced her Protestant faith and her right of succession and will marry Prince Carlos de Borbon y Parma of Spain, a Catholic.

Both Satisfactory After Man Tries Murder, Suicide

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Authorities say an apparent murder - suicide attempt failed Thursday night when a man fired two bullets from the wrong angle.

The principals are reported in Satisfactory condition.

Sheriff's Deputy Jim Brown and Policeman Carl Day quoted Joe Blake, 44, as saying he shot Jacqueline Ruth Yarborough, 35, between the eyes at close range.

Doctors said the bullet went through her sinus, then her palate, into the tongue and shattered inside the mouth.

Day explained the woman was sitting when Blake fired from a standing position.

Then, the officers said, Blake turned the 38-caliber revolver on himself. The bullet went through his right jawbone, stopping in his mouth. He spit the bullet out.

Sees Bridge by 1969

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP) — Douglas Parker, chairman of the Jefferson County, N.Y., board of supervisors, said Thursday he believes an international bridge across the St. Lawrence River between Kingston and Cape Vincent, N.Y., will be under construction in five years.

The bridge would link Ontario Highway 401 and New York State Expressway 81, he said at a dinner sponsored by the Frontenac, Ont., bridge commmittee and attended by 40 Northern New York officials.

Fire at Bakery Starts in Motor

A blaze which originated in the motor of a heating unit at Spiesman's Specialty Bakeries Inc., 39 East Union Street, Thursday night, damaged the motor, a pump and wiring.

Smoke damage was reported to rear walls and ceiling, and there was some smoke in other areas of the building.

Firemen said the blaze was discovered by Walter Schussler, of Moore Street, an employe, as he entered the building. Units from Central and Cornell Station and the Wicks Company answered a call at 11:31 p. m.

Light Snow, Rain Outlook for Most Of East Coast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and snow hit eastern sections of the nation today after heavy rains doused areas in the Southeast but generally dry weather prevailed in most other regions.

Low clouds and fog blanketed the northeast Gulf in the wake of the rain that swept the areas Thursday and spread to the East Coast. Heaviest rainfall was in Tallahassee, Fla., with five inches during an 18-hour period.

As the storm moved northward, snow fell in parts of Kentucky and rain and snow hit southern Virginia. Fairly heavy snow was indicated in the southern Appalachians, with light snow and rain in prospect along the entire East Coast.

Only other wet spots were the northern and central Plains and the Upper Great Lakes region, with light snow or snow flurries. Fair or partly cloudy skies were reported in other parts of the nation.

Coldest weather was in New England with below zero temperatures, ranging to 13 below zero in Old Town, Maine. It was 10 below zero in Montpelier, Vt., and Lebanon, N.H. Readings were near zero in parts of Upstate New York.

Trantino Faces Chair in April

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP)—Thomas (Rabbi Tom) Trantino, convicted slayer of two Lodi policemen, was sentenced today to die in the electric chair the week of April 5.

Bergen County Court Judge Joseph W. Marini pronounced the mandatory death sentence on Trantino, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Trantino took the sentence standing silently, with his hands clasped in front. When asked if he had anything to say, Trantino simply looked at Marini and remained silent.

A jury convicted Trantino of first-degree murder with no recommendation for mercy. In New Jersey, this automatically means the electric chair at the State Penitentiary in Trenton.

The seemingly emotionless Trantino, dressed nattily in a dark suit, was taken to the penitentiary in Trenton.

An appeal of the death sentence is mandatory under New Jersey law.

ROYAL ROMANCES—A flurry of betrothals, engagements and renouncements has put at least some of the world's royalty into the headlines in recent days. Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark (top, left) will reportedly convert to the Greek Orthodox faith of her betrothed, Crown Prince Constantine of Greece (top, right) and renounce her right of succession to the Danish throne. And in Japan, Prince Yoshi, 28, (bottom, left) second son of Emperor Hirohito, will marry Hanako Tsugaru, 23, (bottom, right) sometime after the Olympic Games in October. The announcements follow that of Holland's Princess Irene, who has renounced her Protestant faith and her right of succession and will marry Prince Carlos de Borbon y Parma of Spain, a Catholic.

Both Satisfactory After Man Tries Murder, Suicide

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Authorities say an apparent murder - suicide attempt failed Thursday night when a man fired two bullets from the wrong angle.

The principals are reported in Satisfactory condition.

Sheriff's Deputy Jim Brown and Policeman Carl Day quoted Joe Blake, 44, as saying he shot Jacqueline Ruth Yarborough, 35, between the eyes at close range.

Doctors said the bullet went through her sinus, then her palate, into the tongue and shattered inside the mouth.

Day explained the woman was sitting when Blake fired from a standing position.

Then, the officers said, Blake turned the 38-caliber revolver on himself. The bullet went through his right jawbone, stopping in his mouth. He spit the bullet out.

Day said Blake would be charged with assault with intent to kill.

Sees Bridge by 1969

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP) — Douglas Parker, chairman of the Jefferson County, N.Y., board of supervisors, said Thursday he believes an international bridge across the St. Lawrence River between Kingston and Cape Vincent, N.Y., will be under construction in five years.

The bridge would link Ontario Highway 401 and New York State Expressway 81, he said at a dinner sponsored by the Frontenac, Ont., bridge commmittee and attended by 40 Northern New York officials.

Fire at Bakery Starts in Motor

A blaze which originated in the motor of a heating unit at Spiesman's Specialty Bakeries Inc., 39 East Union Street, Thursday night, damaged the motor, a pump and wiring.

Smoke damage was reported to rear walls and ceiling, and there was some smoke in other areas of the building.

Firemen said the blaze was discovered by Walter Schussler, of Moore Street, an employe, as he entered the building. Units from Central and Cornell Station and the Wicks Company answered a call at 11:31 p. m.
